A New Hampshire Moses [Senator George H.] last night pointed the way to the promised land of prosperity by means of legislation to be carried through congress through an expression of the will of the people.

He denounced creation of governmental bureaus as "weird devices to thrust the government into doing what the community should do for itself." He declared governmental regulation of private life has changed the motto of the country from E Pluribus Unum to "pass the buck." He urged closing of the tariff portal to develop American products for the American market.

Addresses Coal Merchants.

Senator Moses, president pro tempore of the senate, spoke at the 26th annual coal trade banquet of the Chicago Coal Merchants association in the Stevens hotel. His address followed an entertainment, largely of dancers, which he said had given him a new interpretation of liberty. He talked to a gathering, he said, which from its externals recalled the happy era of "B. V. D.—Before the Volstead Disaster."

The senator said in opening that he did not intend to speak in the congressional fashion with no thought of time or relation to the subject before the house. He said the mass of legislation before congress seems to have but one object and that is to take away $4.95 from every one who has $5.

"I cannot think of the present program without feeling much as do you gentlemen when you regard some of the propositions now up," he went on. "I speak particularly of the Kelly-Davis bill to regulate interstate and foreign commerce in bituminous coal, which creates a coal commission.

One More for Furniture Shop.

"I think of it only as adding a new bureau to that furniture shop which we have already set up in which weird devices thrust the government into doing for the community what the community should do for itself.

"It is another of the measures to regulate the private life of the citizen. What an individual used to do for himself and took much satisfaction in doing now has passed on to a paid public officer.

"Once a mother saw to it that her offspring brushed his teeth and washed behind the ears. Now a school nurse is paid to do it. Once a parent punished his offspring for some infraction. That, too, has passed on—to the school teacher. The individual looks to the community, the community to the legislature and the legislature to the congress, with the result that no one here present, no matter how law abiding, can lay his head on his pillow at night without having violated some law, even in his most circumspect day."

A Day of Regulation.

Senator Moses traced the life of an individual throughout a day: Governmental regulation at breakfast in eating bacon inspected by and stamped at government expense by an official. A ride to work in a street car on a fare regulated by an official body with no interest in the property. Work in a building constructed under rigid official regulation and union laws. Home to another inspected meal. An evening at a movie, passed and approved by an official board, and so to bed.

"And when the individual lays his head on the pillow, if a law had been passed as sponsored by a legislator of my state, he would be compelled to sleep eight hours a day," the senator added.

In tracing the origin of such laws Senator Moses said: "They occur because of a type of public mind developed by paid propagandists who become agents of some association with a long name to bombard congressmen with a deluge of letters of recommendation. The result is that too

ROME, Feb. 15.—(AP)—A mysterious message from America revealed the existence of a deadly bomb near the central altar of St. Peter's cathedral in a supposed plot against Pope Pius XI. or Premier Mussolini, who appeared there last week, it was learned today.

The bomb was found Saturday under a massive bronze lion, but not until today was it disclosed that a cablegram from across the Atlantic had directed Vatican authorities to the exact spot. It was safely exploded by Italian artillery officers.

Cathedral Carefully Inspected.

Plotters who hid the explosive in the famous basilica, it was believed, having failed in their aim against the life of either the premier or the pope, chose to reveal the bomb's presence rather than have it explode later and possibly kill persons against whom the conspirators had no design.

Vatican officials thoroughly inspected the basilica last Wednesday, the day before Premier Mussolini visited St. Peter's after calling on the pope for the first time in his career. They said the bomb was not there then. Hence, it either was placed there the following day, when Il Duce knelt and prayed at the central altar, or the next day when the pope appeared to celebrate the tenth anniversary of his coronation.

Creates Tremendous Blast.

The bomb, a package about the size of a shoe box, created a tremendous blast when it was set off. Some 2,000 persons were present when Mussolini appeared in the basilica Thursday, but all were subjected to careful scrutiny before entering.

The only untoward incident of either Thursday or Friday revolved around the actions of a middle-aged man who advanced from the congregation and tossed an envelope at the pontiff, shouting "I want a grace." He was taken in charge by gendarmes but was released when nothing offensive was found in the letter.

ROBBER TAKES BABIES ALONG ON HOLDUP FORAYS

A bandit who compels his two little girls to accompany him on his robbery tours was being sought last night by Cragin police. The children are being used to ward off suspicions on the part of intended victims.

During the last few weeks the robber has held up half a dozen gasoline filling stations on the northwest side. Last night he drove into the oil station at Kostner and Diversey avenues. Murray Levine, 2609 Hirsch street, and John Jerchen, 2820 North Kenneth avenue, attendants, were not suspicious of the motorist because of the two girls, one about 2½ years old, the other 4, sitting beside him.

The attendants serviced the automobile. Suddenly the motorist whipped out a pistol and demanded their money. The little girls looked on indifferently as their father took $40 from Levine and $12 from Jerchen. Then the robber and his innocent confederates sped away.

Sheriff Guards Paschen Cows at State Line

Waukegan was perturbed yesterday over the moot question of who owns the calves, cows, turkeys, incubators and other movables on the Paschendale farm of Chris Paschen, former building commissioner of Chicago.

CHRIS PASCHEN.

On Feb. 4 Deputy Sheriff John Froelich of Lake county received a writ of execution from the Municipal court of Chicago, relating in legal phraseology that Darling & Co., fertilizer merchants, had obtained a $1,500 judgment against Mr. Paschen and instructing him to take charge of 140 Jersey calves, six heifers, three bulls, and other animals, and the equipment of the 3,000 acre Paschendale estate.

Two Deputies on Guard.

The farm lies partly in Lake county and partly across the line in Wisconsin. So the deputy sheriff waited until all the Jerseys were in his jurisdiction and levied on them. It was agreed that Mr. Paschen should continue to feed them, furnishing two men to ladle their feed and fork their hay. To prevent the animals wandering into Wisconsin and out of Illinois court jurisdiction, the deputy placed two custodians to guard the state line.

Sale of the cattle was advertised to be held yesterday at 2 p. m. In the morning matters began to be complicated. Mr. Paschen sent the deputy sheriff a board bill of $476 for the first week after the Jerseys were seized. The rate was $68 a day, which included the pay of the feeders, but not the pay of the custodians, which also has been going along at the rate of $12 a day.

Bank Claims Mortgage.

However, it was figured that the cattle ought to bring enough to pay the Chicago judgment and the board bill. Then notice was served in the Lake county court by the Foreman-State National bank, which stated that the bank, which was absorbed by the First National bank, has a mortgage against all the Jerseys, turkeys and equipment.

County Judge P. L. Persons ordered that the sale be delayed until Friday afternoon and set a hearing on the bank's plea for Thursday morning. Meanwhile the board bill goes on and by Friday the tally, including the cost of the custodians, will be $1,200. The sheriff's office is puzzled about who is going to pay this.

AGREE TO TRIM SCHOOL BUDGET MILLIONS MORE

Trustees to Call in Experts.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Many millions of dollars additional—probably between twenty and forty millions—are to be slashed from the school board budget, according to an informal agreement reached last night by the school trustees at a private dinner given by Trustee Robert Carr at the Union League club. It was agreed that the budget should be trimmed until it comes within a reasonable estimate of the revenue to be obtained by the school system this year.

Virtually every one present is said to have expressed the opinion that the present budget is beyond all hope of paying out. It stands at $90,045,140. No trustee has predicted that the board will get more than half that sum in cash during 1932. Most of the trustees believe that the amount will be still less; and in the discussion at the gathering last night there was much talk about cutting the budget in half.

To Get Experts' Figures.

It is planned to call in tax experts like John O. Rees, Harry C. Cutmore, George O. Faithweather, County Judge Jarecki, County Collector McDonough, Harris S. Keller, County Tax Attorney Hayden Bell, and Douglas Sutherland. They are to be asked to estimate the taxes which will be collected this year. Then the board will determine what its estimate shall be, and trim the budget to that figure.

To date the school board has not made any official or formal estimate of the revenue it will get this year.

Trustee Carr, selected as the spokesman for the gathering, said last night:

"We have discussed practically all phases of the school finances. We will at once seek the best expert advice on the amount of income the board will get this year. We will base our budget on that income. It will not be the type of education which we should provide, but we will do the best we can. We will curtail in all departments."

Busch Comments on Plan.

Asked regarding the names of the experts, Mr. Carr called on Attorney Francis X. Busch, who, after suggesting several names, said:

"This is a plan which I believe all of the local governments should adopt. We will ask the Sanitary district, city, county, and park boards to listen to the experts' views. It is possible there may be an agreement among all of the local governments on the estimated tax receipts."

"If we adopt a fair estimate of revenue," added a school trustee, "the other governments cannot get by with inflated estimates."

Demand Budget Slashes.

Most of the demand for slashing of the budget is said to have come from Sewell Avery, chairman of the mayor's advisory committee, and D. F. Kelly, chairman of the committee to sell tax anticipation warrants. The latter is said to have intimated to the trustees that he could not borrow money for the board on a budget of $90,045,000.

Mr. Avery is reported to have taken the position that he is not versed in education, but that no sum close to $90,045,000 can be collected for the schools from the property owners of Chicago this year. He advised the trustees, according to report, to get down to a sane basis if they would avoid piling up debts so high that they would be properly blamed for closing the schools for six months or more to catch up on the debts.

The curtailment agreed upon probably means a cut in the salaries of all employés of the board, in the opinion of some of the conferees. John Howatt, chief engineer, John Christenson, architect, were virtually instructed to start negotiations at once for a wage adjustment, but it was pointed out to the trustees that they would have to do considerable work themselves in any such negotiations.

Will Pick Places to Trim.

Superintendent of Schools Bogan and Dr. George Strayer of Columbia university, who is conducting a survey of Chicago schools, and the principal members of the staffs of both, were at the gathering. The discussion, although no instructions were issued, indicate that both staffs will be asked to start at once to pick out the spots in the budget where the least injury will be done, so that the cuts may be made as soon as a decision is reached on the estimated revenue.

If the school board goes through with the program tentatively agreed upon last night, it is certain that the county will have to revise its $42,000,000 budget, the Sanitary district will have to trim its figures, and the city will be forced to accept similar tax estimates. It was anticipated by some of the conferees that certain of the purely political bodies might try to delay until after the primaries.

Head of Chain and 14 Others Named, Report

John Bain, 63 year old head of a chain of twelve Chicago banks which were closed on June 9 last year, and fourteen other officials of his institutions were reported to have been named last night in true bills charging them with conspiracy to defraud depositors.

When the indictments are returned, it was said, numerous specific charges involving the mismanagement of the banks will be made known.

John H. Bain, eldest son of the bank head, and W. Merle Fisher, his son-in-law, were among those against whom the grand jury is reported to have taken action. The names of the others were withheld and the state's attorney's office announced their identities would be kept secret until all have been apprehended and placed under bonds.

Mass of Evidence Presented.

Five hours were consumed by Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber in presenting a mass of evidence he had collected in months of investigation of the Bain bank crashes. A number of witnesses were called before the grand jurors. Among these was Irwin T. Gilruth, now receiver for the institutions.

It was understood on reliable authority that Mr. Raber had difficulty in persuading the grand jurors not to lengthen the list of officials in the true bills. He has taken the position that only those officers directly responsible for the failure of the chain and the loss of a large part of the $13,000,000 of deposits left at closing time should be prosecuted.

To do away with possible objections to the legality of the true bills, two members of the grand jury who were among those who had deposits in Bain banks refrained from voting.

Bain Debts Revealed.

No hint of the kind of information presented yesterday was allowed to leak out. However, in the preliminary investigation in the Circuit court it was brought out over several weeks of testimony that the Bain family and personally controlled companies owed the bank $2,135,000 borrowed without security and that the Bain dynasty had been collecting $100,000 annually in salaries.

It was Receiver Gilruth who furnished those figures. He declared that $500,000 of this huge sum was taken by the family from the banks within sixty days before the crash and $90,000 in the last eight days.

Indications were given in the previous investigation that officials and directors of the closed banks, exclusive of the Bain family, owed these institutions about $4,500,000.

Named Once Before.

The elder Bain and Fisher were reported once before to have been named in true bills charging them with illegal withdrawal of properties from a trust fund. No indictments were returned, however, as Prosecutor Raber asked for more time to complete his investigation. John H. Bain also was named in a previous true bill, charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses. This also was withheld while investigation proceeded.

On Nov. 3, 1931, John Bain appeared before Judge Michel Feinberg, took the stand and asserted that he had $2,000,000 invested in the bank's stocks and that he had surrendered all his property for the benefit of the depositors. Given a little time, he added, he would "make it all good." He denied then that he had any revenue from any source.

It was shown in one of Receiver Gilruth's earlier statements that the assets of the twelve closed institutions reached a total of $18,249,000. Their doors had to be shut when depositors made continual runs. At the time of the closing the higher officials spoke confidently of their ability to pay 100 cents on the dollar to the depositors.

Cost of Liquidation Told.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson yesterday released a report showing that the gross cost of liquidation of 77 closed banks was six and one-fourth per cent of the money collected and the net cost was only one per cent after deducting the operating earnings. Twenty-four of the closed banks showed an operating profit since closing.

"For many years it was customary to turn over the receiverships to banking houses which specialized in this work," said Mr. Nelson. "These savings are due largely to the plan under which receivers are paid salaries and attorneys on an hourly basis for time actually rendered."

Judge Orders Moonshine Put in Auto Radiator

Municipal Judge Edward B. Casey in the Chicago avenue court yesterday found a new way of confiscating evidence of liquor violators who appear in his court. He ordered a gallon of moonshine poured into the radiator of his automobile, remarking that he was taking a chance on a possible destruction of his radiator.

U. S. ORDERS 170 YANKS TO FLEE CHINA WAR ZONE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 16.—[Tuesday]—The American state department has ordered all American residents in five cities in the lower Yangtze valley to leave their homes immediately and come to Shanghai for protection.

The cities are Wusih, where 24 Americans live; Soochow, with 105; Changshu, with 10; Changchow, with 13, and Kiangyin, with 18.

All cities between Shanghai and Nanking are likely to be affected in event the Chinese troops defending Shanghai are forced to retire in the face of the expected Japanese attack or in event the war area is extended, as is now expected following the arrival of Japanese reinforcements.

All Quiet on War Front.

Meanwhile, all was quite on the war front today. Although there was sporadic firing at intervals, in which each side sent over deadly "love tokens" just to show they were still holding their positions, there was no serious fighting. The Woosung front, 16 miles to the north, was also quiet.

Both the Chinese and Japanese worked busily, consolidating their positions and preparing for the great struggle which is expected to start momentarily. The Japanese are apparently taking their time about launching their drive determined not to make the mistake they made three weeks ago, when their bluejackets were driven back by a surprising show of strength and determination on the Chinese side. The Japanese now have between 25,000 and 35,000 troops and marines here, and it is estimated that the Chinese force numbers about 50,000 men.

U. S. Women Fleeing Shanghai.

Although the American government apparently has decided not to evacuate the large American population from Shanghai, it was learned today that most of the trans-Pacific liners are well filled, due to the voluntary withdrawal of American citizens, particularly wives and families of business men.

The Dollar steamer President Grant will be filled to capacity when it sails on Feb. 19, while the Empress of Canada, sailing on Feb. 23 for Manila, will also have a full list.

Wealthy Chinese families are also leaving, feeling that the Philippines or the British colony at Hongkong are safer than Shanghai, despite the large concentration of foreign troops here. There are now about 10,000 foreign soldiers and marines, in addition to the Japanese forces ready to defend the international settlement.

Fear Trouble in Interiors.

In addition to the evacuation of American citizens from the lower Yangtze and the voluntary withdrawal from Shanghai, reports from the interior provinces of Kiangsi, Hunan and Hupeh indicate that an increasing tenseness in the communist situation there is likely to a precipitate complete evacuation of foreigners from the interior, similar to that in 1927 in connection with the Nationalist movement and the establishing of a communistic régime at Hankow.

According to American consular authorities, ten Catholic priests, including Bishop J. O'Shea, Father L. Casill, Father J. Gately and Father F. McLaughlin, Americans, who are stationed at Kanchow, in Kiangsi, are in a critical predicament because of a communist attack on the city.

Nanchang, the capital of Kiangsi province, has been captured by Chinese communists, which gives the reds virtual mastery of the entire province except the Yangtze river port of Klukiang and a small strip of railway outward to Nanchang. Nanchang is about 400 miles southwest of Shanghai and a little more than 300 from Nanking.

Reds Strongly Entrenched.

It was in Kiangsi that Chiang Kai-shek's government waged a desperate anti-communist campaign last summer at a cost of 100,000 soldier and civilian lives and more than $250,000,000. The attempt to defeat the red army proved in vain.

The situation around Hangkow and Wuchang is growing increasingly perilous as the reds draw the surrounding net closer and closer.

China today was also faced with a new situation which threatens to split the solid front which the Chinese have maintained since the beginning of the Shanghai trouble. One faction is demanding stern action to resist the Japanese to the bitter end, while another faction is in favor of withdrawing from Shanghai voluntarily and permitting the creation of a neutral zone about the city, somewhat along the line of the recent preposal of the great powers. The situation has become an important political issue.

Government Leader Quits.

Kuo Tai-chi, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, resigned yesterday as vice minister of foreign affairs because the Nanking government is advising a policy of moderation. Tonight a group of members of the Kuomintang central executive committee, headed by Sun Fo, issued a circular telegram addressed to government leaders throughout the country demanding the initiation of a four point policy. Under this policy:

1. The entire nation would be requested to unite to resist the Japanese.

2. Adequate land, naval and air forces would be concetrated to defend the port of Shanghai and to aid the Nineteenth route army.

3. The national forces in the north would be ordered immediately to launch a counter-attack against the Japanese in Manchuria for the recovery of occupied territory.

4. The government would clarify its policy of no direct negotiations with Japan until all Japanese forces have been withdrawn and the Shanghai question would not be treated separately from the Manchurian question.

Charges Outside Influence.

The telegram in effect accuses the national government at Nanking [temporarily now at Honanfu] of trying to localize the Shanghai question and to seek an adjustment independent of the Manchurian issue. It alleges that the government is being influenced by a certain unnamed foreign minister, supposedly either American or British.

The telegram declares that "the nation's success or failure depends upon the morale and psychology of the people. Despite an army's equipment the determining factor often depends upon the morale of the opposing troops.

"That China is not powerless to oppose the Japanese was definitely illustrated by the stout resistance of the Nineteenth route army. The Japanese proudly announced their intention to capture Chapei within four hours, but Chinese troops have held their ground for nearly three weeks.

Resentment at Highest Point.

"The people's resentment against Japan has now reached its highest point. It is, therefore, abundantly evident that any attempt at nonresistance or withdrawal of troops would result in irretrievable loss of the people's confidence and also would leave Hangchow, Soochow, and Nanking easy prey to the Japanese military."

The American government is not interested in and will not support the plan for a neutral zone about Shanghai, according to an unofficial statement made today by Nelson T. Johnson, American minister to China. Mr. Johnson declared that the American government is preserving a strictly neutral policy and has no intention of becoming involved in the Sino-Japanese controversy or in the attempt by Japanese military authorities to involve other powers in so-called defense schemes against the Chinese troops.

Mr. Johnson was interested in a report that certain local real estate interests are involved in the proposal for a neutral zone proposal as a means of obtaining an extension of the borders of the international settlement into Chinese territory.

50,000 Volunteers Mobilized.

Gen. Chen Chi-tang, ruler of Canton, today ordered the mobilization of 50,000 volunteers to reinforce the Nineteenth route army at Shanghai.

Canton also sent another contribution of 200,000 Chinese silver dollars here to defray the expenses of the army. In addition to the military contribution, the Chinese Tungwan hospital at Hongkong contributed 100,000 Chinese dollars for use in relief measures at Shanghai.

The Chinese Bankers' association also presented the army with 200,000 Chinese dollars an expression of "gratitude and good will."

SUPREME EFFORT OF LEAGUE TO BE MADE NEXT WEEK

Assembly to Try Its Hand at Stopping the War.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Feb. 15.—The first extraordinary meeting of the league of nations assembly ever to be called now seems imminent next week to consider the Chinese-Japanese war.

Such a gathering, composed of delegations of the fifty-four members of the league, who are now sitting in at the disarmament conference, will undoubtedly occupy the main tent, reducing the disarmament meeting to the proportions of a sideshow for the moment.

Rumors are current that the disarmament conference will advance the date of its projected Easter adjournment to make way for the assembly, which will test the league's capacity not to stop war, because the league's investigating commission in Shanghai is of opinion that a war is already on, but to halt it. This was vigorously denied by Arthur Henderson, president of the disarmament conference.

Council Meets Today.

The league council will meet tomorrow for the last time to consider its responsibilities under articles X, XI and XV of the covenant, all of which have been invoked by China.

The chances for the council to take the responsibility of calling the extraordinary assembly instead of leaving it to the Chinese tonight seemed slight. The council members insist that to do so would amount to an admission of their impotence, which some of them are not willing to grant has already been clearly shown.

Ransack U. S. Files.

The first bright note thus for in a dull conference was struck today with the revelation that spies had broken into the files of the American delegation Feb. 2 and again on Feb. 3. They broke open the desk of Robert Pell, American press attache, cut open a brief case belonging to Senator Claude A. Swanson and ransacked the files of Ambassador Hugh Gibson.

It seems that the objective was a copy of Gibson's speech, which was sprung still virgin some days later. Curiously, the only objects stolen were two of the senator's date books.

JAPS APOLOGIZE FOR ATTACK ON AMERICAN ENVOY

SHANGHAI, China, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Japanese consul apologized to United States Consul General Cunningham today for an assault last week on Arthur Ringwalt, American vice consul, and Mrs. L. Young, an American citizen.

Mr. Ringwalt, whose home is Omaha, Neb., and Mrs. Young, a Chinese woman born in Los Angeles, were set upon by a mob of Japanese when they entered the Hongkew district to take Mrs. Young's infant child from a family of relatives.

The Japanese consul told Mr. Cunningham the attackers would be punished and that he believed the men were new members of a volunteer civilian patrol on the lookout for Chinese snipers. He promised also that in the future foreigners authorized to do so would be permitted to enter the Hongkew district without molestation.

AMERICANS ORDERED TO FLEE

Fearing that their lives may be endangered should the Japanese be victorious in the forthcoming battle in Shanghai and the Chinese army retreat westward up the Yangtze valley, the United States government yesterday ordered all American residents of five cities in this area to leave their homes immediately for Shanghai. The cities are Wusih, Soochow, Changshu, Changchow, and Kiangyin.

We'll Send as Many Troops To China as We Need—Japan

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 16.—[Tuesday.]—Gen. Sadao Araki, minister of war, declared today that, judging from information available, the Shanghai situation does not warrant optimism as there is no indication that the Chinese 19th route army will withdraw.

Moreover, he pointed out, the central national army is being mobilized and what is still worse, Chinese regulars in the vicinity of Shanghai are making little of the Japanese troops, apparently unimpressed by the landing of additional forces. This is difficult to understand, he said.

Will Send More Troops.

Under the circumstances, Gen Araki declared that new and unexpected developments may occur, necessitating the sending of more troops from Japan. Should it be necessary, Japan must send two or three divisions or whatever number is required, he declared.

A foreign office spokesman today declared that reliable official reports from Russia state that the soviets are preparing to send troops to northern Manchuria to "protect their nationals" and that the movement of troops is already beginning. The spokesman, commenting, declared that he felt the Russians had just as much right as Japan to protect their nationals.

He announced that Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister at Shanghai, had been instructed to reply today to the protest of the three powers against the landing of Japanese troops in the international settlement. Shigemitsu has been ordered to point out that Great Britain and the United States also had landed troops and that Japan's action was for the common purpose of safeguarding interests at Shanghai.

Envoy Explains to Stimson.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Following the filing of a new British-American protest at Shanghai against Japanese use of the neutral settlement as a base, Katsuji Debuchi, the Japanese ambassador, called at the state department late today and conferred for almost an hour with Secretary of State Stimson. Later he declined to divulge the nature of his discussions with the secretary beyond saying that the international settlement matter and the general situation was discussed.

Diplomatic "War" Rages.

The Japanese complaints include everything from the assertion that the Chinese troops at Lion hill are training their guns on the Japanese warships in the Yangtze, to the allegation that the Chinese are building machine gun nests in the Hsiakwan waterfront section.

The Chinese on their side complained that Japanese warships have trained their guns on the military wireless station, thereby frightening the attendants. They also objected strenuously because the Japanese warships fired a salute on the occasion of the Japanese national holiday last week without notifying the Chinese authorities in advance.

The Chinese government again today protested to the American and British governments against the continued landing of Japanese troops in the Shanghai international settlement, charging that it constituted a violation of the settlement neutrality.

WAR SHUTS OFF YANKEE COTTON SALES TO CHINA

U. S. Firms Have Millions Tied Up in Credits.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 16.—[Tuesday.]—American cotton importers in China are hard hit and America's second best cotton customers are likely to be forced out of the market as a result of Japanese military intervention in the Shanghai industrial district.

It became known today that cotton trade credits totaling many millions of gold dollars held by American importers handling raw cotton are uncollectible and frozen because of the refusal or the inability of Chinese banks to pay cash for cotton purchases.

American Sales Paralyzed.

It is stated that American cotton sales to China averaging $4,000,000 a month are temporarily paralyzed. According to a local custom, American cotton importers sell cotton to Chinese mills on a ten day credit plan, receiving checks payable in cash through native banks. The native banks, due to financial stringency, are unable to meet their obligations now and are giving their holders credit. The credit is not convertible into cash and the mill owners have been unable to pay cash for cotton delivered prior to or since the Sino-Japanese hostilities began.

As a result of the situation, American firms have several million dollars of American currency tied up. A local American firm, Anderson & Clayton, large cotton dealers, sold $75,000 worth of cotton to the Wingon mills before the conflict. It is said the cotton was stored in the Woosung mill which was burned after being set on fire by Japanese artillery fire.

Because of the high price of Indian cotton, American cotton practically had a clear field in China before the present trouble began. In the last six months, great quantities were sold and imports here averaged 100,000 bales a month, valued at $4,000,000. From Aug. 1 to Feb. 6, China imported 821,000 bales, compared with 238,000 bales in the same period last year.

For a long time China has been America's second best customer. Since hostilities opened here, American cotton en route to Shanghai has been unloaded at Kobe, Japan, while stocks here have been covered with war risk insurance.

Pope to Offer Prayers for Peace on China's Plea

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 15.—(AP)—In response to a request from Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference, Pope Pius is saying special prayers for peace in the far east. The Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, revealed today that in reply to Dr. Yen's request, Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, sent a telegram saying that the "holy father, whose universal paternalism embraces all people," has promised his prayers.

BRITAIN SHIPS $25,000,000 WAR CARGO TO JAPAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Nine cargo boats left Belfast, Ireland, bound for Corea Saturday morning loaded with munitions, chemicals, and guns valued, according to information received here today, at $25,000,000.

The shipment was handled by a syndicate operating at Belfast as representatives of a group of British arms and explosives manufacturers. The shipment was made up of whippet tanks, field guns, machine guns, rifles, ammunition, gases, explosives, and chemicals. The convoy will avoid the Suez Canal, going around the cape. The ships will be met by Japanese warships at the entrance to the China sea.

It was understood that the order was contracted for months ago.

36 More War Refugees Reach Manila from China

MANILA, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Thirty-six refugees arrived today from Shanghai aboard the President Cleveland, bringing to 102 the number who have come here within ten days to escape the peril of Chinese-Japanese fighting there.

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat in Just 4 Weeks
Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and, furthermore, I've never had a hungry moment."
Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast, cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.
For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drugstore—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

HOUSE QUICKLY APPROVES BILL TO SPUR CREDIT

Vote Is 350 to 15; Senate Action Next.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Suspending the rules today the house of representatives rushed to adopt the Glass-Steagall bill providing for a drastic loosening of the federal reserve system's rediscount privileges and for a potential two billion dollar expansion of the currency.

H. B. STEAGALL. [Acme Photo.]

The final vote was overwhelmingly in the bill's favor—350 to 15. The debate that preceded the balloting was brief and repetitious. It was a foregone conclusion that with the administration and the Democratic leadership in congress committed to the measure it would pass.

It is considered equally certain that the bill will receive like treatment in the senate, where it is expected to be approved within the next day or two.

Inflation Is Admitted.

That the Glass-Steagall legislation will mean inflation was admitted with complacency by house members during today's discussion. There were a few representatives who objected to so far-reaching a revision of fundamental principles of the federal reserve act. There were a few more who balked at the manner in which the bill, they said, was being railroaded through at the behest of the Hoover administration.

But the large majority lauded the measure as a means of restoring confidence and credit.

Politics, thinly disguised, and "patriotism" trumpeted as a rallying call jostled with one another as speaker followed speaker during the three hours' debate agreed on.

Reserve Board Attacked.

Chairman H. B. Steagall [Dem., Ala.] of the house banking and currency committee assured an already certain Democratic support by claiming that the Democrats had been working for such a measure for the last ten years. His attacks on the federal reserve board, whose "unfair practices had choked the small banks to death," and his wallops at the big bankers, who had turned out to be the "biggest dupes in the world," were always good for Democratic cheers.

He brought out one salient point in answer to a question—that, barring foreign securities, any and all securities become theoretically acceptable discount collateral under the proposed act.

And this feature was reinforced later in the speech of Representative Stevenson [Dem., S. C.], who pointed out that, with the bill made law, school district bonds, municipal securities, and tax anticipation warrants, if approved by the federal reserve board, could be made the basis of federal reserve loans.

"Not So Wild," He Says.

The bill, said Mr. Steagall, was "not so wild" nor was it a "wide inflation, but merely a sufficient expansion to counteract the horrible deflation now afflicting the country."

Representative Strong [Rep., Kas.] declared the measure would help raise commodity prices, and Representative Luce [Rep., Mass.] asserted that:

"We are trying to save the country. Passage of this bill will give the banks courage. Securities have already gone up 5 billion dollars. What we need now is inflation, properly controlled as in this bill."

According to Representative Goldborough [Dem., Md.], the free gold to be released by virtue of the new act, if used as the basis of new currency, would permit a currency expansion of 2 billion 200 million dollars and the flowing of twenty billions of new credit.

"I was talking with a Frenchman the other day," he said, "and he told me France might have to withdraw her gold from this country. I told him we had plenty of gold in this country and that France could take her gold and go to hell with it."

"In their desire to maintain liquidity," said Representative Beeby [Rep., Me.] banks are hoarding three and a quarter billions of eligible paper. With the passage of this measure they will be able to use this paper for rediscount, for they will know that if some future exigency arises they can fall back on their government securities."

Take Opposite Views.

But Representatives McFadden [Rep., Pa.], La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], and Shannon [Dem., Mo.] took opposite views. Mr. Shannon demanded to know what Gen. Dawes—"with the profanity omitted"—had said at the White House conference where the necessity for the bill was impressed on members of congress.

He was told that the "delicacy surrounding matters of banking and credit" prevented Gen. Dawes' statements from being made public.

"I'll tell you what it was," Mr. La Guardia elucidated. "Under a ruling of the controller of the currency banks are allowed to list the securities at what they paid for them instead of at market prices; in other words, at a fictitious value. A lot of banks are getting by on bookkeeping solvency.

"Don't worry," he declared to the gentleman who had protested the delicacy of banking matters. "I won't tell all I know."

It remained for Representative Dies [Dem., Tex.] to close the debate.

"I don't know anything about banking and currency, but Speaker Jack Garner is one of the greatest patriots in the country," was the gist of his logic, and on this note, amid Republican jeers disguised as cheers, the discussion ended.

TOM MIX.

MRS. TOM MIX (Mabel Ward). [H. A. Atwell Photo.]

Wed in Mexicali

Calexico, Cal., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Tom Mix, cowboy who has galloped across untold reels of film, was married at 2:30 p. m. today to Mabel Hubbell Ward, aerial performer of the Sells-Floto circus. The ceremony was read across the border in the town of Mexicali.

With Mix and his bride were Mr. and Mrs. Monte Blue, Thomasina Mix, 9 year old daughter of the film star, and Dale Tierney, his secretary.

The couple met last year while Mix was filling an engagement with the circus. Miss Ward, whose home is at Middle Grove, Ill., is said to have performed the record feat of making 300 revolutions on a high bar in the big top, clinging to it with only one hand and disdaining to have nets spread below her.

This matrimonial venture is the third for Mix, who is 52 years old. His first wife was Olive Stokes and his second was Victoria Forde, who is now the wife of a diplomat in Washington. Of the first union a daughter, Ruth, was born. She is now the wife of a film actor. Thomasina is the daughter of the second wife.

WRONG VERSION OF HIS BILL CAUSED STOCK FLURRIES, SAYS GLASS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The potential effects of his own bill have been misconstrued and grossly exaggerated, said Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] tonight, following the house passage of the Glass-Steagall bill revising the federal reserve act.

The result of this misconception, said the Virginia senator, has been a "riot of speculation." "I think the people who have sent out these exaggerated reports about this bill and started another riot of speculation on the stock exchange are very culpable and are causing the loss of many millions of dollars to persons who have been utterly misinformed as to the requirements of this bill," he declared.

JAPAN MUST NOW SAVE HONOR, SAYS CHINESE OFFICIAL

Japan, having met stubborn resistance by the Chinese army in Shanghai, is in the position of having to save her military and naval honor, Wallace V. C. Tsang, chancellor for the Chinese consulate in Chicago, said yesterday. He addressed the Advertising Men's post of the American Legion at luncheon in the Sherman hotel. Mr. Tsang, who is a member of the confidential section of the ministry of foreign affairs at Nanking, has been in this country six months.

"The Chinese government still believes in a peaceful conference attended by foreign powers as the only possible way to assure settlement of the Manchurian question," Mr. Tsang said. "Meanwhile, the Chinese government will resist all military invasion of Chinese territory and will never recognize any Japanese government in Manchuria."

Mr. Tsang said he had been advised from a confidential source that it was Japan's intention to seize all Chinese seaports. He pointed out that any disturbance in China directly affected the United States, "as 45 per cent of China's imports come from the United States."

PHILIP WRIGLEY RETURNS TO HIS CHICAGO OFFICE

Philip K. Wrigley returned to his Chicago office yesterday to carry on the business affairs of his father, William Wrigley Jr., who died recently in Phoenix, Ariz.

Mr. Wrigley told interviewers that the policies established by his father would be carried out. One of his father's beliefs, he pointed out, was that a big industry should be organized so as to function efficiently of itself.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The estate of Thomas Fortune Ryan, the financier, was estimated to be worth a half billion dollars at the time of his death in November, 1928. Today a tax transfer appraisal revealed the gross value of the estate at $141,824,497 and the net value at $135,164,110. The early estimates antedated the stock market crash and thus the story of the decline of another vast fortune was revealed.

Nevertheless, the estate remains as the second largest ever appraised here and tonight federal and state tax balances have been swelled $25,055,659. The late Payne Whitney's property had a net value of $178,893,655 but it was broken up before stock values had plunged to the bottom.

The United States gets $5,011,131 in taxes and the remainder of the $25,055,659 except negligible amounts levied on property in Virginia goes to New York state. The transfer tax alone is $9,241,187.

The principal assets included $126,646,313 in stocks and $484,975 in bonds. There was $1,120,234 in cash. A check of the long list of stocks owned by the estate reveals that many of them have been reduced to about half of their value in 1928.

The Ryan estate was divided into 54 parts, but the greater portion of it goes to his widow, Mrs. Mary T. Ryan of Shipman, Va., and two of his three sons, Clendennin J. Ryan and John Barry Ryan. The third son, Allan A. Ryan, as revealed at the time the will was filed, receives only his father's pearl shirt studs, valued at $14,500, and an opportunity to purchase busts and paintings owned by his father before they are offered at public auction. Father and son are known to have quarreled because of Allan Ryan's part in the Stutz stock corner in 1920.

$60,000 to Virginia U.

Eleven grandchildren, including Allan's six children, share in the estate, and twenty-seven other legatees, relatives and employés are named. There are two public bequests of money—$50,000 to the Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament here and $60,000 to the University of Virginia to continue the Ryan scholarships.

Funeral and administration expenses sheared off $1,732,549 from the Ryan fortune, and debts amounted to $4,939,733, most of which were in the form of loans. Lawyers got $1,400,000 as administration fees and $81,400 was spent for a mausoleum.

World Court 10 Years Old; President Is Banquet Host

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Feb. 15.—The Permanent Court of International Justice celebrated its tenth anniversary today. Messages of congratulations were received from all over the world. Because of illness Judge Frank B. Kellogg was unable to attend tonight's banquet given by President Mineitciro Adatchi of Japan, which was attended by the judges of the world court, and Dutch ministers and diplomats.

750 MILLION FOR RELIEF BEATEN IN SENATE, 48 TO 31

Vote on Radical Dole Bill Due Today.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—By a vote of 48 to 31 the senate today defeated the bill put forward by the Democratic leadership under which the federal government would have loaned $75 million dollars to states for unemployment relief work and would have donated an additional $75 million dollars for state aid road work during the next 18 months.

Calls for Outright Gift.

Seeking passage of their bill for direct relief, the radical Republicans and radical Democrats threw their strength with the conservative Republicans.

A vote is expected tomorrow on the Costigan-LaFollette bill, the original relief measure introduced in the senate, which provides for an outright gift of 375 million dollars to charitable organizations, to be administered by a new federal agency, in proportion to state population, together with the same 375 million dollar road appropriation as was carried in the defeated bill.

Indorsed by Robinson.

The Democratic measure, introduced by Senators Walsh of Montana, Black of Alabama and Bulkley of Ohio, was prepared as a substitute for the Costigan-LaFollette bill and carried the indorsement of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic floor leader.

Republican leaders tonight predicted that they could defeat the Costigan-LaFollette bill tomorrow. They are counting on enough Democratic votes to offset the defection of the radical Republican group which has conducted a two weeks' fight on behalf of the bill for direct relief.

FACES COURT FOR SHORTAGE.

John S. Green, a salesman for the Reuben H. Donnelley corporation, publishers, will appear in the Town Hall court today on a charge of embezzling $1,000 from his employers.

HUSBAND, 83, SUED BY WIFE, 81, FOR GIRL'S VISIT TO HIS BEDROOM

Salem, Mass., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Her 83 year old husband's entertainment of a young girl in his bedroom was described in Probate court today when Mrs. Elizabeth D. Webber, 81, sought separate support from her husband, Charles H. Webber, town assessor of Salisbury.

In charging cruel and abusive treatment, Mrs. Webber said her spouse drank heavily and hit her with a billet of wood.

Late last summer, she said, she had heard a noise in their home and going to see what it was, saw her husband and a young girl tip-toe upstairs and into Webber's bedroom. When the girl left, Mrs. Webber said, she upbraided her husband for his conduct and he called her an "ugly old thing" and "an old peeker."

HOOVER SELECTS NEW YORKER FOR SUPREME COURT

B. N. Cardozo Expected to Get Senate Approval.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Setting aside geographical considerations, President Hoover today named Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, chief justice of the New York state Court of Appeals, to take the place vacated by Oliver Wendell Holmes as associate justice of the United States Supreme court.

The nomination was sent to the senate shortly after noon today and the senate's concurrence is expected shortly and without opposition.

Justice Cardozo will become the third New Yorker on the court, since two now sit there—Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone. He also will become the second Jew ever to be appointed to the country's highest court, the other being Associate Justice Louis D. Brandeis, now sitting.

Choice Appears Popular.

In selecting Justice Cardozo for the vacancy created when Associate Justice Holmes resigned last January, President Hoover finally set aside the many pleas that he choose a nominee from some other section of the country. The arguments in favor of a midwesterner particularly were strong, since the mid-west has no representative on the Supreme bench.

To judge by the comments on Justice Cardozo's appointment, however, the President's choice is a popular one, approved in general by conservatives and radicals alike. Senator Norris of Nebraska, radical Republican chairman of the senate judiciary committee, praised the selection as a "fine appointment."

Praised by Senator Reed.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, regular of regular Republicans, declared: "I think Justice Cardozo is not only one of the great judges of the United States, but I am glad to see that the tradition of liberal thought, set by Justice Holmes, is to be carried on by his successor."

The appointment of Justice Cardozo, a Democrat, makes the political lineup of the Supreme court five Republicans and four Democrats. Former Justice Holmes is a Republican.

Senator Wagner [Dem. N. Y.], who was a judge in New York City before coming to the senate, was among the first to suggest Judge Cardozo's elevation to the Supreme court.

Born in New York City.

Judge Cardozo was born in New York in 1870. He studied at Columbia, Yale, New York university, the University of Michigan and Harvard. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1891 and since then has served both on the state Supreme court and the Court of Appeals bench.

Justice Cardozo is unmarried and a member of the Manhattan, Columbia university, City and Century clubs. He has written numerous legal books and is vice president of the American Law institute.

Father of Spanish Blood.

Cardozo is the son of a judge who presided over a New York City bench during the days of Tammany's "Boss" Tweed. His father was of Spanish blood and his mother a Jewess. The judge never entered the scramble of politics and so little has his party views entered into his judicial decisions that many of his fellow townsmen could not say to which party he belonged. He was supported for his first public office by men of all parties, including Joseph H. Choate, Henry W. Taft, Louis Marshall, Harlan F. Stone, and Henry L. Stimson.

He is of a shy, retiring disposition and his chief hobby is reading. He does not smoke, drink nor play cards and takes very little exercise. He is the author of four volumes well known among the legal profession.

"Growth of the Law," "Paradoxes of Legal Science," "Jurisdiction of the New York Court of Appeals," and "The Nature of the Judicial Process."

Justice Cardozo's Views on Law

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Benjamin Nathan Cardozo is, first of all, a liberal. He is a firm believer in the theory that the law must take the form and pressure of the time, that it must compromise between the claims of the past and the needs of the present, between settled traditions and the evolution of public purpose.

In an address to the New York State Bar association three weeks ago he enunciated this broader view of existing statutes by declaring:

"For the lawyer and the judge a driving force at all times has been the avalanche of precedents. Battered and pelted, we grope for a principle of order. A changing civilization demands outlet and expression in changing forms of law and a jurisprudence and philosophy adequate to justify the changes. The necessity is deeply felt for a rationalizing principle whereby precedents that are outworn may be decently discarded without affront to the sentiment that there shall be no breach of the legal order in the house of its custodians."

Holds Laws Are Made for Men.

Judge Cardozo, in his writings, lays emphasis on his theory that laws are made for men and that human rights govern their interpretation. He believes ancient law can be adapted to modern conditions.

"Our survey of judicial methods," the judge wrote, "teaches us the lesson that the whole subject matter of jurisprudence is more plastic, more malleable, the molds less definitely cast, the bounds of right and wrong less preordained and constant, than most of us have been accustomed to believe.

"We are tending more and more toward an appreciation of the truth that after all there are few rules; there are chiefly standards and degrees.

"My duty as a judge may be to objectify in law, not my own aspirations and convictions and philosophies, but the aspirations and philosophies of the men and women of my time."

Demon of Formalism.

On relating the law to social well-being, he said: "Logic and history and custom have their place. We will shape the law to conform to them when we may; but only within bounds. The end which the law serves will dominate them all. There is an old legend that on one occasion God prayed, and his prayer was: 'Be it my will that my justice be ruled by my mercy.' That is a prayer which we all need to utter at times when the demon of formalism tempts the intellect with the lure of scientific order."

Regarding the necessity of orderly progression in the law, the judge wrote: "Principles and rules that were malleable in Lord Holt's day have petrified with the accumulated weight of precedent on precedent. Land within the territory of the law that was then unsettled or uncultivated has been peopled or reclaimed. Frontiers, however, there still are, and always will be, where the lines of demarcation are uncertain and debatable, where occupation, if any, has been provisional and timid—borderlands and marches where minds impatient of injustice refuse to be held back, but point to path of advance into regions unexplored beyond. It may hearten spirits such as these to bear in mind the creative energies that dwelt within the legal system at the threshold of the modern era two centuries ago."

Prohibition Views Unrecorded.

Justice Cardozo never has gone on record in decisions or from the speaker's rostrum on the question of prohibition.

Among his better known decisions are those upholding the act granting "home rule" to New York City, and an earlier case was a minority opinion favoring the New York state soldier bonus law on the ground that the bonus represented the "liquidation" of a "moral obligation" incurred by the state to its sons who had fought.

COUNTY LEGION AIDS NATIONAL JOB CAMPAIGN

F. J. ASHLEY. [Chambers Photo.]

All American Legion posts in Cook county yesterday were starting cooperation with the national drive of the Legion to put 1,000,000 men to work. A salvage campaign in which salable articles will be collected and resold by unemployed veterans was begun by eighty posts. Persons with clothes or other articles for which they have no further need may call a Legion post and the material will be collected and sold by an unemployed veteran.

While the national drive started yesterday the Illinois Legion has been conducting a relief program since last November. Among plans sponsored by the state posts were salvage sales similar to the one now started in Cook county, stations for automobile repairing, and house to house canvasses to provide small jobs for veterans.

"We wish to emphasize that the drive is a community and not a city wide proposition," said Fred J. Ashley, state chairman of employment for the Legion.

REED LANDIS IS INJURED IN FALL AT SPRINGFIELD

Maj. Reed Landis, world war ace, chairman of the Illinois aeronautics commission, suffered serious injury yesterday in a fall from a balcony into the lounge room of the house of representatives at Springfield. Maj. Landis was trying to recover some papers which had fallen from the floor of the balcony to the lounge, according to Elwood B. Cole, secretary of the aeronautics commission, who saw the accident.

Mr. Cole said that when the legislature is not in session the doors of the lounge are locked and Maj. Landis, thinking to save the time necessary to call a janitor to unlock them, started to slide down a piece of rope from the balcony to the lounge. The rope broke under his weight and he fell about 10 feet, striking a chair. His right ankle was fractured and his left heel crushed.

After receiving emergency treatment, Maj. Landis was placed in a plane and piloted to Chicago by Roger Humphrey of Bloomington, another member of the commission. He was met at Curtiss-Reynolds airport by his wife and his father, former Judge K. M. Landis, and taken to the Evanston hospital.

Last night Mrs. Landis said her husband was resting well, but that both his feet were in plaster casts and he would probably have to remain in the hospital for more than ten days.

Woman Held to Grand Jury for $7,500 Embezzlement

Mrs. Martha H. Miner, 7844 Clyde avenue, was held to the grand jury by Judge John J. Rooney yesterday in bonds of $7,500 on charges of embezzling $6,741 from the American Dental association, for which she was cashier for eight years.

Police, It Seems, Know Plight of City Treasury

A scrubwoman working in the city treasurer's office in the city hall accidentally sounded the burglar alarm last night. The alarm registered at the central station. Within a few minutes two squads and a patrol auto arrived at the city hall. Last year a similar accidental alarm sent almost a dozen squads to the treasurer's office. Police, asked last night why only three details had been sent instead of a dozen, explained: "Last year there was some money in the city treasury."

BUDD TO SPEAK AT SESSION OF EDITORS TODAY

The annual meeting of the Inland Daily Press association will open today at the Morrison hotel with approximately three hundred newspaper publishers and editors of the United States and Canada participating in the two day session. Methods of reviving business and the solution of publishing problems will be the keynote of the discussions.

Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington railroad, will be guest speaker at the inaugural luncheon today. Tomorrow morning E. Ross Bartley, promotion director of the World's fair, will tell the newspapermen of the present plans for the 1933 exposition. The sessions will be under the direction of Fred Schilpin, president of the association, and publisher of the St. Cloud [Minn.] Times.

POLICE TRACE STORY OF STOLEN MYSTERY BONDS

Part of the mystery concerning the $41,000 of bonds "left on a shelf" at the Palmer house was dispelled yesterday when Chief of Detectives Shoemaker learned they were part of a series of bonds valued at $53,000 stolen from Ernst & Co., 120 Broadway, New ork City, on Oct. 26, 1931. They were insured by the National Surety company and the insurance has been paid

Oscar Mohr, who was arrested when he sought to leave the valuable package behind as he was being ejected from the hotel, and who told police he was a New York bond salesman, was held in the custody of the sheriff yesterday by Judge John Prystalski, before whom a habeas corpus petition was filed for Mohr's release. Judge Prystalski fixed his bail at $24,000. Arthur Rosenberg, 1331 Carmen avenue, who went to the hotel to visit Mohr, was held in $15,000 bonds. Rosenberg once served a term in prison

Why wouldn't we make friends?

We disregard our losses on these suit sale prices. And there are losses! Instead of making dollars and cents we make new friends and keep our old ones. That's our only profit.

When a man buys a $50 Rogers Peet suit for $25 or a $75 suit for $35, we have won his good will for the many months of good wear and good looks he gets out of the suit.

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as any other leading mouth wash. Hence it goes 3 times as far. That's economy for you! Why waste money on antiseptics that must be used full strength to be effective?

FEWER colds—quicker relief once you have them—and the cost of fighting colds reduced two-thirds! Those are the reasons the public is changing to Pepsodent Antiseptic. Because Pepsodent Antiseptic is three times as powerful as other leading mouth washes... hence it goes three times as far—gives you three times as much for your money and gives you extra protection against sore throat colds. For protection against germs associated with common ills, remember there are really only two leading kinds of mouth washes. On the one hand you have the mouth wash that must be used full strength to be effective. On the other hand you have Pepsodent Antiseptic, utterly safe even if used full strength, yet powerful enough to be diluted with two parts of water and still kill germs within 10 seconds. It is bad enough to pay a premium by using antiseptics that must be used full strength ... it's worse to dilute them and fail to kill the germs... so choose the antiseptic that kills the germs even when diluted. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be sure! Be safe—and save money! Now is a good time to start.

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)
The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds, proves its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Pepsodent Antiseptic is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, it kills germs even when diluted with water!

Prohibition Gets No Cut at All.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The cheese paring policy of retrenchment continued to prevail in the appropriation bill for the state, justice, labor and commerce departments reported to the house today by the appropriations committee.

GEO. H. TINKHAM. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

For these departments for the next fiscal year the committee recommends appropriations aggregating $124,401,318, a reduction of only $14,600,386 from the amount they are expending this year and of only $5,382,818 from the amount President Hoover asked for next year.

Three bureaus, conspicuously engaged in paternalistic activities, were exempted from any reductions at all, being allowed the same amounts for the next as for this fiscal year.

No Cut for Prohibition.

These are the prohibition bureau of the department of justice and the women's and children's bureaus of the department of labor. For the prohibition bureau the committee recommended $11,369,500, for the women's bureau, $179,900, and for the children's bureau, $395,500.

The committee hearings made public with the bill disclosed that Col. Amos Woodcock, director of prohibition enforcement, was subjected to a searching cross-examination by the anti-prohibitionist, Representative George H. Tinkham [Rep., Mass.], on the conduct of his organization to which Representative William B. Oliver [Dem., Ala.], prohibitionist chairman of the subcommittee, strenuously objected.

Under questioning by Mr. Tinkham, Col. Woodcock stated that between July 1, 1930, and Jan. 1, 1932, thirteen citizens were killed by federal prohibition officers. On the other hand nine dry agents were killed. Thereupon Representative Thomas L. Blanton [Dem., Tex.], started this colloquy:

Mr. Blanton—That would indicate that the bootleggers are better shots than our prohibition agents. I would suggest to Col. Woodcock that he have them trained a little bit in the use of firearms. Whenever they go to arrest a man they ought to arrest him. If it requires killing him, they ought to kill him, in my judgment.

Predict Dierks' Dismissal.

Mr. Tinkham—On the other hand, of course, the colonel does not want any more killing than possible. I do not assume the honorable representative from Texas would want any unnecessary killing.

Mr. Blanton—When a police officer goes to arrest a man, I think he ought to arrest him.

Testifying on Jan. 20 last, Col. Woodcock said that Henry Dierks, prohibition officer, who killed the youth Milford Smith in seeking to arrest him for possession of a half bottle of wine, "will be ultimately dismissed; in fact he has been dismissed, as far as I am concerned."

Mr. Tinkham wanted to know what was done about the prohibition officers who caused the electrocution of Mrs. Helen Vasilzevic of Milwaukee when she turned on an electric light while standing in a pool of wine they had left in her cellar after a raid. Col. Woodcock said the agent had been exonerated by the coroner, but the colonel reprimanded him for being careless "in the way they had destroyed that wine." Besides, alleged the colonel, the light socket was of a type condemned by the city inspectors.

Says Instructions Were Disregarded.

Col. Woodcock said that in the case of the entrapment of the Indianapolis policemen his instructions to dispense no liquor were disregarded. He said he reprimanded the administrator after the Appeals court had held the evidence procured by entrapment.

Attorney General Mitchell illuminated the attitude of the public toward prohibition when he told the committee that if the Supreme court decision upholding wire tapping by prohibition officers had been rendered "in a case where some young girl had been kidnaped, had been held for misuse or for ransom, there would have been an overwhelming volume of approval by the people and the press of the country."

Mr. Mitchell testified that 11,000 of the 25,000 prisoners in the federal penitentiaries are confined for violation of the prohibition law and that just about 50 to 60 per cent of the activities of the federal department of justice in criminal cases is due to prohibition. Col. Woodcock had asked the budget bureau for an additional $2,265,915 to employ 500 additional agents but the request was refused and the attorney general acquiesced inasmuch as more enforcers arresting more violators would increase the strain on the whole judicial system.

Beer Receipe Irks Blanton.

Mr. Mitchell said he is not satisfied with prohibition enforcement. Woodcock is making headway, he thought, but the volume of violation to cope with is discouragingly large.

Mr. Blanton was exercised over a letter from one public official to another giving a recipe for good beer which was inserted in the Congressional Record and thus made privileged for newspaper publication. Mr. Mitchell refused to go farther than to say it is illegal to publish any liquor recipes.

The attorney general said he did not approve of prohibition agents setting up speakeasies in which to catch violators and did not have to admonish Col. Woodcock not to do so.

Mr. Tinkham drew from Col. Woodcock statistics on 48 agents dismissed for various offenses, 14 of which were "drinking not in line of duty."

With the 500 agents added last summer, Col. Woodcock said, the number of federal prohibition cases had risen from 36,000 in the last six months of 1930 to 46,000 in the last six months of 1931. Mr. Tinkham brought out the fact that in the last fiscal year of 51,360 convictions 47,841 were on pleas of guilty.

Denies Concentration on Cities.

Col. Woodcock denied that prohibition enforcement is concentrated in the cities particularly in the east, and north. He submitted figures showing that violations are preponderantly in urban centers in the south and west and as well as in the north and east, and expressed the opinions that violations are fewer in the rural districts because rural people more generally support the prohibition law.

Commenting on figures showing that of the 34,775 stills seized in the last fiscal year the southern states led all others, Col. Woodcock said that in the south moonshining is an "old art" and an "immemorial practice." A map dotted black with the stills seized in Maryland he accounted for by the demand of Washington, Baltimore, and other neighboring cities for illicit liquor.

Of the failure to apply the economy ax to prohibition enforcement the committee report said:

"This is the only item in the bill about which there was disagreement on the part of the subcommittee and two members of the subcommittee felt that since it appears there will be an obligated balance in the appropriation carried during the present fiscal year for this year, that the appropriation for 1933 should be reduced by the amount of such unexpended balance. The majority of the committee felt that as this appropriation is for the enforcement of a law which presents unusual difficulties at times in its enforcement, the appropriation should not be reduced. Similar action was taken by the committee for like reasons in the appropriations carried for the enforcement of anti-trust laws and the immigration law, under each of which heads unobligated balances are shown for the present fiscal year."

HOLDS POLICE PARTLY TO BLAME FOR HOODLUMS

Professor Tells Findings on Young Criminals.

The making of a hoodlum and criminal out of a child in the poorer districts of Chicago is partly due to the conduct of the police, W. F. Byron, assistant professor of sociology at Northwestern university, charged yesterday. Prof. Byron spoke before 160 police chiefs and officials at a conference on police problems and methods at Harris hall on the Northwestern university campus.

A sociological study of juveniles on the west side was the basis for Prof. Byron's statements. He told his hearers that he had questioned scores of young hoodlums to discover their background and the reasons for their lawlessness.

Stories of Young Hoodlums.

"They told me," asserted Prof. Byron, "that they couldn't hold any respect for the police when they saw their cars parked in front of speakeasies and disorderly houses. Only an outraged public opinion can remedy the situation, I believe."

Prof. Byron declared that the youths would rather use a gun than undergo the horrors of the police third degree questioning.

"These youths want to live a short and gay life," said the speaker. "The search for thrills leads them into bootlegging and criminal activities.

"They told me that when they got in trouble they went to see a politician to get help. They say there are many judges that can't be seen and can't be bought for votes or money."

Bruce Assails Police.

Another attack on the police was launched by Andrew A. Bruce of the Northwestern university law school. He told the conference that prisoners were herded into police stations for minor offenses in as large numbers as two hundred at a time and that the stations looked like the "black hole of Calcutta."

Criticism of the present practice of permitting a defendant in a capital crime to plead not guilty and waive a trial by jury was made by Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks. A result of this practice, Mr. Brooks contended, was the selection of a "favorable" judge.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Yes, her figure was marvelous

By Julia Foster ★

Hers was the kind of figure Paris dressmakers must dream about. No gown ever draped a handsomer form. Imagine my disappointment when I saw a blemished skin! Didn't she know this simplest secret of complexion care?

You can have that advice. The few simple instructions that have saved thousands of women from developing a "tragic" skin. More than 20,000 beauty experts have agreed on this easy home care for the complexion. Here it is. Follow it.

With your hands, work well into the pores of your face and throat a generous lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water. Then a thorough rinse with warm water to wash it away, followed by a cold rinse. Hot water should never touch your face. After this, in the morning, your make-up. At night, if your skin is dry, follow with oil or tissue cream.

There is a very definite reason why more than 20,000 beauty experts prefer Palmolive to all other soaps for this foundation cleansing. It is fully explained in the panel to the right, headed: "Beauty In a Test Tube." Please read it.

Beauty . . . relaxation in your bath!

Weary nerves need soothing? Experts have told me about this form of relaxation that's a beauty treatment, too: Shave up a whole bar of Palmolive. Melt it by boiling in 4 cups of water and pour the solution into your tub. Palmolive's so inexpensive, you can easily afford this. Step in, and do nothing for a minute or two but relax. Then massage every inch of your body, every pore, with rich lather from another cake of Palmolive. When you get out, you'll find fatigue, nervousness, gone. Your skin, soft and smooth, thanks to this olive and palm oil care. Some evening soon, when you're so tired you feel tempted to cancel an engagement, try this instead!

And by all means, start at once giving yourself the twice-a-day facial treatment with Palmolive Soap. Try it for ten days, at least. What other treatment has ever given your skin such luxurious, youthful softness?

BEAUTY IN A TEST TUBE

But can you get enough olive oil in soap? How much, actually, goes into Palmolive? Here is the exact amount of olive oil that goes into every ten-cent cake of Palmolive—in this test tube at the right. To this generous olive oil content can be directly traced Palmolive's great complexion benefits. It is the only large-selling soap made of vegetable oils exclusively. The only one using olive oil as a base. Other ingredients are simply oils from palm trees necessary to produce a richer, creamier, more workable lather. The color is the natural green of olive and palm oils—no artificial coloring.

VON HINDENBURG HEEDS PLEA OF GERMANS TO RUN

At 84 He Again Becomes Presidential Candidate.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—Heeding the appeal of 2,500,000 German petitioners, President Paul von Hindenburg today agreed to become a candidate for reelection as president on March 13, a red letter day in the annals of German history. That is the anniversary of the German revolution of 1848 and of the "Kapp Putsch" of 1920.

Today republicans of Germany, trembling lest the Fascisti, headed by Adolf Hitler, should succeed in seizing power in the presidential election, turned to the 84 year old Von Hindenburg, former field marshal for former Kaiser Wilhelm, to try to save the republic.

Duty Brings Decision.

"Conscious of my responsibility for the fate of our fatherland, I have decided after earnest consideration to offer myself for eventual reëlection," he said. "The appeal to stand for reelection came to me not from a party but from the broad masses of the people. Therefore, I recognize it as my duty to stand.

"If I am elected, I will continue to serve the fatherland faithfully and conscientiously with all my power to help the country attain freedom and equality of rights abroad, and unity and progress at home. If I am not elected, I will be spared the reproach that I deserted my post at a critical time."

In those words Von Hindenburg announced that he is a candidate.

To define his program he added a single sentence.

"For me there is only one truly national goal—cooperation of all German people in their fight for existence and the absolute self-sacrifice of every German in a desperate struggle for the survival of the nation."

Doubts He Can Win.

Von Hindenburg himself is doubtful of his reelection. His lifelong friends stood behind him seven years ago and urged him to seek the presidency of the country then. Now they have abandoned him because he failed to establish the reaction for which they plotted.

Socialists and Republican parties which opposed him seven years ago will back him today, although many a Socialist is not wholeheartedly for him.

Personal ambition does not figure in his candidacy. His is the attitude of an old soldier ready to serve if the nation commands. He will not fight for the presidency they way his opponents will.

Bruening Visions Victory.

"He does not need to fight for the presidency because the grateful German people will elect him by an overwhelming majority regardless of the intrigues of politicians," Chancellor Bruening said today.

The "Kyffhaeuserbund" of war veterans stands behind Von Hindenburg, but its rival organization, the "Steel Helmeters," is against him. They demanded that he dismiss Bruening and adopt the policy of the Nationalists. The president refused.

The German People's party, the Democrats, the Centrists and also the "Volksnationale Reichsvereinigung" and the Bavarian People's party have announced that they will support Von Hindenburg. The Socialists, too, have ordered their followers to vote for the president.

The only other avowed candidate against Von Hindenburg is a communist, Ernst Thaelmann, who is backed by 5,000,000 communists. Hitler's Fascisti and Dr. Alfred Hagenburg's Nationalists are certain to nominate a candidate.

TWO MEDICAL GROUPS START PROGRAM FOR CONTROL OF CANCER

The Chicago Medical society and the American Society for the Control of Cancer will begin a two day cancer control program today. The Illinois branch of the cancer society will meet tonight at the Union League club, where leaders from seventeen local and state organizations will discuss a five year program of cancer education in the state. Tomorrow evening the Chicago Medical society will conduct a public symposium at the Medical and Dental Arts building, at which Dr. Burton J. Lee, secretary, and Dr. Clarence Cook Little, managing director of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, will speak.

TEACHERS TELL EXPERT ABOUT SCHOOLS' ILLS

Heads of twenty-five teachers' organizations gathered at the City club yesterday to tell Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university what they think is wrong with the city schools. Dr. Strayer is making a complete survey of the school system here.

Among the things mentioned as leading to inefficiency were political control, a division of authority between the school board, superintendent, and law department; poor system governing promotions; high costs of janitors, and the employment of teachers without proper certificates.

Dr. Strayer told the representatives, many of them school principals, that none of these points would be overlooked in his study.

DOCTORS DISPUTE BUSINESS AS AID TO PROFESSION

Idea Called Unsound at Conference.

Dr. Hugh Cabot, associated with the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., drew caustic remarks yesterday from officials of the American Medical association and other doctors when he suggested that big business might be able to solve the economic ills of the medical profession.

Dr. Cabot spoke in the medical education session of the association's congress on medical education, licensure and hospitals which opened at the Palmer house yesterday. He declared that the profession had adjusted itself remarkably to changes in scientific fact in the past three decades, but has not accommodated itself with equal skill to the economic changes of the period.

Mentions Three Experiments.

Dr. Cabot mentioned three economic experiments in the field of medicine that have been tried in this country, the care of employés and their families by industrial organizations, the care of policy holders by the large insurance companies under health insurance, and group practice by members of the profession. These three methods seek to lower the cost of medical care and at the same time not react to the detriment of the profession.

"I am frank to say that at the present moment I would be more willing to trust the future development of health service at this economic level in the hands of corporate business than in the hands of political organizations," Dr. Cabot declared, in touching on the subject of state, or socialized medicine.

Dr. Stephen Rushmore of Boston scoffed at the idea of big business settling the economic ills of medicine in the discussion that followed. Dr. Olin West, secretary of the association, made a sarcastic suggestion that doctors turn to installment paying for their services. "That is worth about as much as any of these fantastic schemes offered as solutions," he said.

Originate Within Profession.

"There are many experiments in social medicine going on, but about the only ones worth anything have originated within the profession," he declared. He ridiculed the possibility of big business saving the profession, saying he thought the doctors could do more to save big business. He called health insurance impractical and group practice not economically sound.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the association, declared that great economical changes must come through evolution and not revolution to aid the profession. He pointed out that Dr. Cabot's suggestion of group practice has been proven unsound in the present depression, because most of the groups have gone bankrupt.

Discuss Other Problems.

In two other sessions of the congress yesterday afternoon prominent physicians from all parts of the nation discussed regulation of medical specialists and hospitals for nervous and mental patients. The great need for a method of certifying specialists in all branches of medicine for the protection of the public was brought out and what has been done to that end disclosed.

Treatment of nervous and mental patients in state hospitals was advocated by Dr. W. F. Lorenz, University of Wisconsin Medical school, and Dr. F. A. Carmichael, of Osawatomie, Kas. Dr. Carmichael declared the care of war veterans can be administered at a cost of $1 a day in state institutions, while they cost federal institutions $4 and $5 a day.

In the ensuing discussion, Dr. Malcolm A. Bliss, noted psychiatrist of St. Louis, forecast great progress in psychiatry as soon as sufficient funds and facilities are provided for the required researched work.

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, who presided at the session yesterday morning, declared that unless there is another war, or a change in our national methods of dealing with the sick, there will be thousands of empty beds, with constant invitations for our legislators to devise methods of filling them at public expense, in Veterans' Bureau hospitals.

JUDGE REFUSES TO REDUCE BAIL FOR MRS. KEGEL

Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court yesterday dismissed a motion in behalf of Mrs. Marie Sahlin Kegel for a reduction of the $50,000 bond, set following her indictment on a charge of trying to kill with poison her former maid, Mrs. Mary Ryan. The judge was told that Mrs. Kegel, who is in seclusion, is so ill she could not sign the petition asking the bond reduction.

At the time that her attorney was giving this excuse Mrs. Kegel denied the poisoning charge and declared she has an alibi. She donned a powder blue negligee and was propped up in her bed to tell her story. The alleged victim, Mrs. Ryan, was in the John B. Murphy hospital. Her condition was reported unchanged by Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, estranged husband of Mrs. Kegel and former city health commissioner.

Mrs. Kegel said she had not seen Mrs. Ryan since last October. She is charged with having put bichloride of mercury in a soda eaten by Mrs. Ryan on Jan. 25 in a drug store at Irving Park boulevard and Broadway. Her alibi, she said, is that she was elsewhere on a shopping tour at the time she is alleged to have put the poison in the soda.

According to Mrs. Kegel's story, her indictment was sought by her husband to strengthen his suit for divorce, which charges that she attempted to poison him.

DRAFTS
RAW WINDS
OVERHEATED ROOMS

Why are some people so susceptible to ills at this time of year?

Not because they get their feet wet oftener or encounter worse weather than anyone else. Drafts and indoor living are not wholly to blame.

What these people lack is good resistance! They cannot stand the slightest drain on their vitality.

In this condition of low vitality germs attack them. And infection by germs, along with drafts and wet feet, results in common ills.

To avoid going through another miserable spring, regular sufferers should begin at once to build good resistance.

With a vitamin concentrate of cod-liver oil—Squibb Adex Tablets!

They provide the resistance-building factor, Vitamin A. Taken regularly, this vitamin has been found to help maintain resistance against infections of the nose and throat.

Each Adex tablet contains as much Vitamin A and Vitamin D as one-half teaspoonful of Squibb Cod-Liver Oil.

This year can be different! Adex Tablets, taken every day, will help to keep regular sufferers well. You will find them at all reliable drug stores.

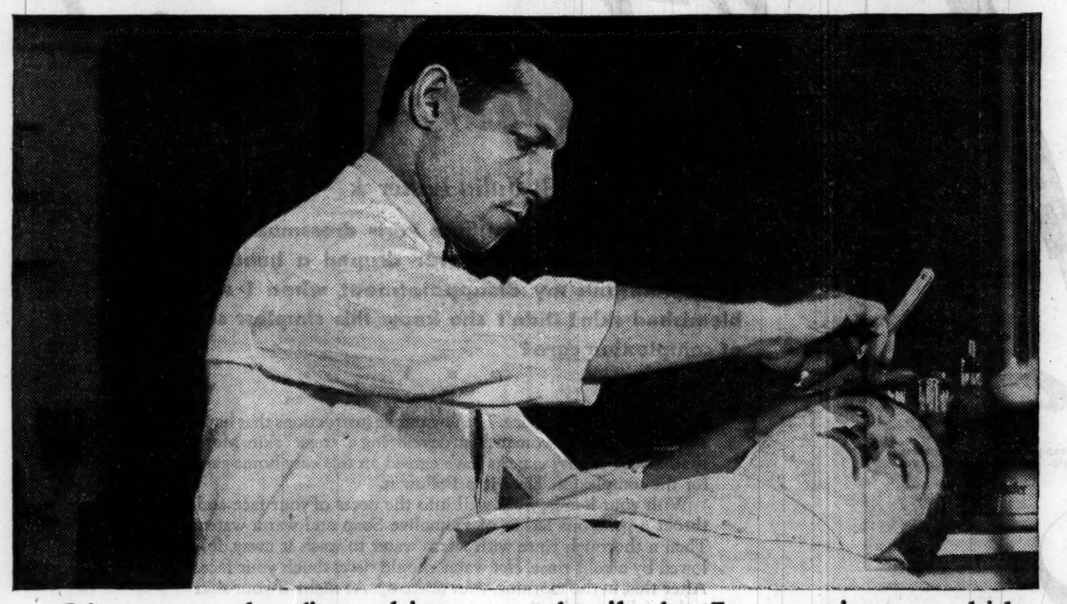
HE KNOWS HOW TO KEEP HIS CUSTOMERS



Of course, the first thing a barber has to do to keep his customers is to be a good barber --and Mr. Schrift is that. He conducts the Art Barber Shop, 177 Rivington St., New York. But "even a good barber can't cough and keep his customers, as it's annoying to both," Mr. Schrift observes. He continues: "We have used REM in the family for 7 years, since my kids were youngsters. We get it at Breitbart's Pharmacy, Rivington & Attorney Sts., and wouldn't think of using any other cough remedy. Occasionally I get a cold and a cough, but REM always ends it quickly." Millions agree with Mr. Schrift that REM is the quick, harmless cough remedy that's really in a class by itself!

Last of the Street Car "Elder Financiers."

Henry Augustus Blair, president of the Chicago Surface lines, died yesterday following a ten days' illness of bronchial pneumonia. He was 79 years old.

Every street car in the city will be stopped for one minute at 2 o'clock today, the hour of Mr. Blair's funeral in the home at 209 Lake Shore drive. Burial in Graceland cemetery will be private.

Mr. Blair was the last survivor of the quartet of "elder financiers" who managed Chicago transit properties during the last quarter of a century. Other members of that group were John J. Mitchell, who at the time of his death in 1927 in an automobile accident was receiver with Mr. Blair for the Chicago Railways company, comprising the north and west side lines; Leonard A. Busby, president of the south side lines, and Frank O. Wetmore, co-chairman of the board of the First National bank. Mr. Busby and Mr. Wetmore both died in 1930.

Rawson and Hurley Receivers.

Frederick H. Rawson, chairman of the First National board, remains as the sole receiver of the north and west side lines, and Edward N. Hurley as receiver of the south side lines. All of the city's traction companies went into federal court receivership following the expiration of their franchises in 1927. Guy A. Richardson, as vice president and general manager of the Chicago Surface lines, directs their operation.

Mr. Blair was born in Michigan City, Ind., on July 6, 1852. His father, Chauncey B. Blair, founded the Merchants National bank of Chicago. Henry Blair was educated at Williston seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and then entered his father's bank. Ill health, however, forced him to go west, and he purchased a ranch in Wyoming, in a country which had only recently been won from the Indians. He lived there until 1891, when he returned to Chicago to become vice president of the Merchant's National bank.

Turns to Street Railways.

That institution was merged with the Corn Exchange bank in 1902, and Mr. Blair turned his attention to street car interests which occupied him until his death. He was appointed receiver for the North Chicago Street Railway company and the West Chicago Street Railway company in 1904, and was active in their reorganization and the financing of the Chicago Railways company. He became president of this company in 1913.

The following year he assisted in the formation of the Chicago Surface lines, which unified street car operation in the city. He was chairman of its board of operation from 1914 to 1930, when he succeeded Mr. Busby as president.

Mr. Blair also participated, for a period of five years, in the management of the city's elevated lines. He was active in the unification of the various elevated properties in 1911 through the Chicago Elevated Railways Collateral Trust company, and remained a trustee of that company until 1916.

Active in Merger Projects.

Mr. Blair was one of the principal spokesmen for the street car lines in the numerous efforts to unify all of the local transportation facilities of Chicago. He had numerous financial interests outside of the transportation field, being a director of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, Commonwealth Edison company, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and Elgin National Watch company.

He was a member of the Chicago, Union League, Caxton, Chicago Golf, Onwentsia, Saddle and Cycle, Old Elm, Racquet, and Shoreacres clubs.

His widow, Mrs. Grace P. Blair; two daughters, Miss Anita Carolyn Blair and Mrs. Natalie B. Bradley, and a sister, Mrs. John J. Borland, survive.

Married Again

Mrs. A. P. Scott (Colleen Moore).

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—Colleen Moore, film star, today married A. P. Scott at Fort Pierce, Fla., it was revealed tonight when the couple arrived here to spend their honeymoon.

They were delayed in attempts to elude friends at Palm Beach, arriving here by motor later than was planned.

MRS. PEARSONS AIDED IN COURT BY EX-MOUNTIE

Tells of Mate's Calls on Woman in Flat.

A former Notre Dame football tackle and a one-time Northwest Mounted policeman were among the witnesses who appeared for Mrs. Elizabeth Schmitt Pearsons yesterday before Judge Harry B. Miller in the Superior court. She is suing Harry P. Pearsons, bank director and former mayor of Evanston, for separate maintenance.

The former mountie, Charles Overwater, is now a private detective. Mrs. Pearsons took the witness stand for a short time and under examination by her attorney, Frank Cantwell, testified that she hired him to watch her husband's movements after Pearsons had had her arrested on Nov. 3, 1929, when she broke into his home at 1816 Chicago avenue, Evanston, in an attempt to talk to him.

Tells Visits to Woman.

Overwater's testimony was concerned principally with the lighting schedule in an apartment at 429 Briar place, where he charged Pearsons visited a woman described in Mrs. Pearsons' bill as "Mary Doe" on two occasions. The first of these was May 4, 1930, when Pearsons visited the apartment at 6 p. m. and escorted the woman to dinner at a hotel, from which they returned at 9 p. m., Overwater testified.

"I recognized Mr. Pearsons at a window in the apartment," Overwater said, "and then at 10 p. m. the lights there went out. They were turned on again at 10:45 p. m., and at 11 p. m. Mr. Pearsons left."

He described a similar visit a week later, on which Pearsons arrived bearing a box of candy, and on which the lights again flickered on and off during the evening.

Wife's Kin Testifies.

John Charles Schmitt of Kenosha, Mrs. Pearsons' nephew, was the ex-football player. He testified that two months after her marriage to Pearsons in June, 1928, his aunt called him to her apartment, where she was sick in bed, and asked him to summon Pearsons. He left the couple alone in Mrs. Pearsons' bedroom, and returned just as her husband was leaving.

"I heard Mrs. Pearsons say, 'Are you going to live with me?' and he replied, 'No!'" Schmitt said. "I grabbed both his arms and said, 'You can't treat my aunt like this.' Mr Pearsons pulled away. Mrs. Pearsons slipped on a negligee and followed him, clinging to his arm. She was dragged along as he walked down the hall.

"She said, 'Don't leave me, Harry. Tell me where you are going.' He said, 'I'm going to No Man's Land for dinner. Try and stop me.'"

Happy at Marriage Rites.

Elmer Roberts, justice of the peace at Ottawa who married the couple, denied that either was intoxicated on that occasion. Pearsons charged in his reply to his wife's bill that he was plied with liquor before the marriage.

"They appeared to be a very affectionate couple, and more highly elated over their marriage than the usual middle aged couple," Roberts said.

RICH SPORTSMAN ESCAPES FROM HIS KIDNAPERS

Cleveland, O., Feb. 16 [Tuesday].—(AP)—Mysteriously kidnaped last Thursday, Harry H. Blagden, wealthy sportsman of Lake Placid, N. Y., was located early today, unharmed, at the home of a friend, Claude J. Peck, in Cleveland.

During his absence from Lake Placid friends and relatives there had feared Blagden had been murdered. A letter in his writing appealed for $1,000 ransom, but when a brother took the money to the appointed place the kidnapers failed to appear.

Police said Blagden walked into headquarters shortly before going to Peck's home and told them three kidnapers brought him to Cleveland in an auto truck.

Two of them, known as "Jim" and "Zeke," went into a house to eat, leaving Blagden under guard of a third kidnaper called "Curly."

Blagden pretended to go to sleep. Curly became drowsy and when his watch slackened Blagden slugged his guard in the stomach, took a revolver away from him, and fled.

Detective Feels "Bullet," Finds It's Only a Pebble

Ray Clark, a detective employed by the Hargrave Detective agency, was walking in Archer avenue, near Wentworth avenue yesterday when he felt a sharp twinge in his ankle. Thinking he had been shot he called for help and was taken to the Peoples' hospital. Examination disclosed a slight wound, evidently not made by a bullet. It was concluded that he had been hit by a pebble cast by the tire of a passing auto.

NEW YORK PHYSICIANS CRITICIZE DR. BEVAN FOR RUM TESTIMONY

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—A resolution expressing "disbelief and disapproval" of the recent testimony of Dr. Arthur D. Bevan of Chicago, former president of the American Medical association, before the senate manufacturers' subcommittee that 90 per cent of the whisky prescriptions issued by doctors are for beverage and not medical purposes, has been adopted by the Comitia Minora [committee on lesser affairs] of the Medical Society of the County of New York.

Dr. Dougherty, secretary of the society, said that the resolution undoubtedly will be adopted when it is presented to the society at the next meeting on Feb. 29. Pointing out that no statistics are available upon which such statements as those madeby Dr. Bevan could be based, the resolution states:

"The high position of Dr. Bevan as a leader of organized medicine gives weight to his opinions regardless of whether they are merely his conjectures or based on fact, and

"Whereas, Such statements tend to destroy the confidence and faith in our profession, therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Medical Society of the County of New York hereby register its disbelief and disapproval of Dr. Bevan's statement and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to Dr. Bevan, the Cook County [Illinois] Medical society, the chairman of the senate subcommittee, the Journal of the American Medical Association, and to the daily press."

Want to Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young — to do this you must watch your liver and bowels — there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes — pimples — a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about the natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

2 GUNMEN FREED ON SHURTLEFF'S PERSONAL PLEA

Prison Doors Opened by Court Manuever.

Two gunmen, one of them the nephew of a South Dakota judge, have been set free by an unusual Cook county court maneuver in which at least two judges and a woman participated. These facts were disclosed yesterday by government investigators after complaint was made to them by one of the seven complaining witnesses in a series of robbery cases, that the defendants, whom he had seen sentenced to the penitentiary, were at liberty.

JUDGE SHURTLEFF.

The freed robbers are Carl Parker, 25 years old, nephew of Judge Carl G. Sherwood of Clark, S. D., a former member of the South Dakota Supreme court, and Stanley Wilson, 19 years old. They were liberated by the action of Judge Charles A. Williams in a ruling that his sentence of the two to the penitentiary for one year to life should be "held for naught."

Shurtleff Urges Release.

Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo carried on the negotiations for the release of the gunmen through Mrs. Erna Gareri, 1400 Lake Shore drive, according to letters in the files of the state's attorney's office.

Judge Shurtleff, former speaker of the Illinois house of representatives, said he had "no excuses to make" for urging the release of the two robbers. Mrs. Gareri, who carried the messages between Judge Shurtleff and the state's attorney's office, at first denied last night that she knew Judge Shurtleff, or any one connected about the matter, but would not discuss it.

Judge Williams entered the order unlocking the prison gates for the two robbers through the medium of probation. The judge had before him, the records show, the fact that Wilson had been discharged from two positions for suspected thefts and that a brother was serving an Indiana prison term for bank robbery. The records, however, do not disclose whether the presiding judge knew that Parker was once an inmate of a New York asylum from which he escaped and was held to be a paranoiac. The state's attorney's office, however, had been apprised of this fact by Judge Shurtleff.

Confesses Seven Robberies.

Parker and Wilson confessed seven drugstore robberies at the time they were arrested by Detectives Louis Capparelli and Michael Casey of the state's attorney's office on May 21, 1931. In the attempted robbery of the drugstore of William Troutvetter, 2338 East 79th street, Parker fired six shots at the druggist when he resisted.

Jay Power, 1859 East 79th street, was the complaining witness in the case in which the original sentence was imposed for holding up two store clerks and four customers. Power was in court to hear the sentences on Aug. 19. He was, therefore, surprised when he received through the mail recently a $5 check as the first payment of restitution under the terms of probation imposed by Judge Williams. Power complained to government officials, who had not proceded against the defendants for robbing a postal station because they thought they were serving a state sentence.

The letters of Judge Shurtleff to the state's attorney's office, found in the prosecutor's files yesterday, disclosed the efforts made to free the robbers.

Although the prosecutor's office protested that a release would be illegal, once the men were in the penitentiary and the court term [a court month] had passed, Judge Shurtleff's desires, it was shown, were finally granted "as a Christmas gift."

Shurtleff Changes Views.

In the first two letters, Judge Shurtleff said that inasmuch as Parker escaped from an asylum, he would advise the relatives that it would be better for the defendant to be in the penitentiary.

Then, it appeared, Judge Shurtleff talked to Mrs. Gareri. His third letter, and all succeeding missives, written in longhand, showed that he had changed his mind. In contrast to the first letter in which the judge said, "He is probably dangerous to be at large," the third letter says:

"From the story I now have I have changed my mind as to what should be done with Carl Parker. I think the boy should be put on probation and given a chance. He was drawn into this and, without counsel or advice, has gotten into the position he is in."

Suggests Appeal to Governor.

Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse replied to the judicial request for leniency by saying that he did not believe the sentence could be legally changed because the courts had lost jurisdiction. He suggested an appeal to the governor for executive clemency. To this Judge Shurtleff replied:

"To vacate judgment, after the term of course, is error, but mere 'error,' and only in two or three malodorous cases where public indignation was aroused has the Supreme court ordered the record expunged. The court has never considered it as an affront or other than an error except where the judgment has been affirmed by the Supreme court.

"I am taking care of a young man at Woodstock, a soldier, convicted over a year ago of conspiracy. I know it is error, but I believe that I am doing what is right."

Judge Shurtleff's final letter, written just before Christmas, expresses the judicial thanks for the "Christmas present" and says the judge is sure that Parker will now do what is right.

Former Cases Recalled.

In 1927 Judge Williams on a technicality released Joseph Chapman from the penitentiary, where he was serving a life term for murder. The Supreme court held this to be error, ordered the release order expunged and the man returned to the penitentiary. A coincidence as shown by the court files is that Attorney W. G. Anderson, colored, who appeared for Chapman when he was freed, was also the attorney who filed the release petitions for Parker and Wilson. Anderson also obtained the release of Elmer Schneider, a rapist, on technicality in Judge Williams' court. This action was also rectified by the Supreme court.

Parker and Wilson spent only a few days in the penitentiary. They were brought back to the county jail on a special order from Chief Justice McGoorty, acting apparently in the absence of Judge Williams. The case was continued for months and finally the judge, for no reason appearing in the record, re-sentenced them on Oct. 5. It was on this re-sentencing that Attorney Anderson based his petition, which resulted in the judge holding the proceedings to "be for naught," but on which he still predicated his probation order.

No complaint was made as to the legality of the original sentence of Aug. 19.

"I take full responsibility," said Judge Shurtleff last evening. "I went to Judge Williams and asked him to help. Public Defender Bachrach was in favor of granting probation."

IRISH ELECTION TODAY IS TOSSUP; VOTERS EXCITED

Cosgrave or De Valera? Both Camps Confident.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 15.—Ireland goes to the polls tomorrow in the most important election since the establishment of the Free State ten years ago. For the last fortnight the country has been torn by the bitter campaign, which was fanned to white heat by two assassinations and an attempted murder on the eve of the general election. No one knows tonight what the result will be.

All politicians agree that the race will be close and neither of the two major parties expects more than the smallest majority in the new dail, the Irish parliament. One of the two principal parties is the Cumanna-Gaedheal [League of the Gael] or government party, which is under the leadership of President William T. Cosgrave and has been in power for a decade, the oldest continuous government in Europe.

Predict Close Race.

Facing the government is the Fianna Fail party, led by Eamon de Valera. Among the minor parties are the Laborites, and a number of independents, most of whom can be relied upon to support Cosgrave.

Today while the leaders of both great parties exhibit moderate optimism, disinterested observers predicted either a majority in the dail of six or so for the Fianna Fail party supported by Labor, or a similar majority for the present government with the help of the independents.

The government's campaign cry has been its record of maintaining the treaty with England and the Free State's continuance as a member of the British commonwealth of nations.

De Valera's Fianna Fail party has as its leading plank the abolition of the oath of allegiance to King George, but Sean F. Lemass, chief organizer of the party, said today that this does not mean an immediate declaration of an independent republic.

Leaders Take Stump.

Both leaders were campaigning today. Cosgrave was at Cork and will remain there until Thursday or Friday, and De Valera is at Waterford. De Valera will return to Dublin tonight to address a final rally on the college green.

Summing up the situation on the eve of the poll, no one seems frightened over any possible result. De Valera today, with the responsibility of power in sight, it is generally agreed, is a much more moderate person than he was as the leader who talked a few years ago about having another round with England and the second battle of Clontarf. Cosgrave's friends declare he has proved himself a wise and capable administrator for ten years.

James Ennis, a government candidate from the Synglos district, County Dublin, was fired upon this morning. Two bullets struck his automobile, but he was not hit.

KILLS SELF WHEN TRAPPED IN BOMB ROBBERY SCHEME

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 15.—[Special]—Anton A. Christ, elderly man, once wealthy, shot himself to death in the lobby of the downtown offices of Bank of America today when trapped in a novel robbery scheme.

Christ appeared in the real estate offices of A. J. Martz, two blocks from the bank, placed a cylindrical bomb in Martz' coat pocket and a similar bomb in his own coat. The two cylinders were connected with a wire.

Christ told Martz to go to the bank and draw out all his money and hand it over or he would explode the two bombs with a battery in his pocket. Martz walked at the man's side to the bank, where his agitated appearance attracted notice of John Fitzpatrick, bank policeman. When Fitzpatrick approached the pair, Martz gave a sudden wrench and dislocated the wire from the cylinder in his pocket. Christ tried to hold back Fitzpatrick with his revolver, but when the officer came on, killed himself.

SPAIN SMASHES RADICAL REVOLT; ONE SLAIN IN RIOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Feb. 15.—Another abortive attempt to set up a "workers' republic" occurred today in Catalonia. One person was killed in a clash at the village of Ruetaria, near San Sebastian. Many were wounded in various towns during the day, but by night the "workers' republic" had died.

The mayor of Tarrasa was kidnaped and a red flag was unfurled at the city hall. An armed mob surrounded the barracks of the civil guards. A telephone call, however, brought troops from Barcelona and the uprising was smashed. Two guards were wounded by bombs. Twenty were arrested.

Frequent clashes between strikers and police took place in Barcelona. Traffic was impeded by glass and tacks hurled into the streets. Two were arrested in an attempt to dynamite water mains. Twenty-three were arrested. Other disturbances were reported at Valencia and Tarragona. Madrid is under heavy guard. Two bombs exploded, but none was hurt.

Tax Relief!

Vital Legislation Pending at Springfield Today

AFFECTS YOU

The House of Representatives passed the so-called "Funding Program" last week. It will be considered TODAY and TOMORROW by the Senate at Springfield.

The bills which constitute this program are the only measures seriously considered which give Real Estate Taxpayers and Home Owners of Cook County any relief.

They give the maximum opportunity to fund taxes under the present bonding power in Cook County.

They will permit the lifting of approximately 60% of taxes for 1931 for which full faith and credit bonds may be issued payable over a 20-year period to which personal property as well as real estate will contribute in the future to the payment.

They will postpone payment of 1930 taxes to 50% on October 1, 1932, thereby giving time for a reassessment of personal property for that year when and as undertaken by the new assessor to be appointed under the "Kelly Plan," thus permitting the creation of a legal assessment roll.

The remaining 1930 taxes and all future taxes will be payable quarterly in installments on a 12 month calendar basis, eliminating the possibility of 2 years' taxes being payable, as now, in one calendar year.

They authorize a reassessment for 1930 taxes which, if honestly done, would cut real estate taxes more than 50% and not overburden personal property.

They encourage immediate payment of taxes by those who are in a position to do so, protect their legal rights and allow them interest at rate of 6% per annum until tax is due thus providing immediate funds. This has worked successfully in other states.

They enable the issuance of full faith and credit bonds of the various municipalities which will be a sound investment and greatly strengthen the financial position of banking institutions and municipalities holding large amounts of tax anticipation warrants for which they may be exchanged.

This plan was developed at the request of the State Legislators of Cook County by competent counsel appointed by them and is endorsed by The Chicago Real Estate Board, its officers, directors, members and legal counsel—Nathan William MacChesney.

The interests and public officials opposing this plan offer no relief from the intolerable burden placed on the real estate taxpayer and are against this plan as it will shift a fair share of the postponed taxes to personal property omitted from the tax rolls to the extent of more than $15,000,000,000.00 in 1929 as found by Judge Jarecki of the County Court.

Any one responsible for the defeat or DELAY of this plan will be responsible for any failure to pay public employees or the breakdown of government if it occurs and not the taxpayers who are not responsible for the present conditions and who are willing to pay their taxes if the personal property interests and public officials will cooperate with them instead of opposing this legislation to make possible an honest assessment and tax relief.

The real tax strikers are not those who refuse to pay taxes based on fraudulent rolls but the owners of large amounts of personal property who have evaded their taxes for years and put the burden on small home owners and real estate which pays over 85% of the costs of government in this county, although it represents only 25% of the county's wealth.

The taxpayers of Cook County insist that the Senate pass this Tax Funding Program, the Governor sign it and the Tax Commission order the reassessment it authorizes.

MAGNATE LABELS WISCONSIN TAX BLOW AT RICH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—J. C. Kimberly, wealthy Neenah paper manufacturer, who has transferred his legal residence from Wisconsin to Washington because of an apparent state policy of goading wealth, passed through Milwaukee tonight and told of the regret he feels at leaving the state in which he was born and where he has lived more than 60 years.

He was seen at the North Western station here on his way from his winter home in Tryon, N. C., to Neenah, and repeated former statements that his moving from the state is because of exorbitant taxes and the political policies of which they are the fruit.

Mr. Kimberly also is vice president of the Kimberly-Clark company, was donor of a $100,000 fund last year to Lawrence college at Appleton, Wis., for the maintenance of a paper institute, and has been active for many years in promoting the prosperity of Wisconsin and the Fox river valley.

Here's Governor's Idea.

Gov. La Follette in his recent message to an emergency session of the legislature wrote: "The use of the taxing power is an effective instrument with which to distribute money to enable workers and farmers to trade with one another. Our problem is the redistribution of our purchasing power."

Mr. Kimberly, according to Earl E. Fuller, county treasurer of Outagamie county, Wis., paid an income tax of a little more than $21,000 last year on an average income of more than $300,000 for 1930 and each of the two previous years.

A surtax for the unemployed just imposed by the last special session of the legislature would more than double this tax. The rates imposed are the same as the normal tax but, unlike the normal tax, the surtax does not permit deduction of capital losses nor dividends from Wisconsin corporations.

Hits High Taxes.

"After living in Wisconsin all my life, I have established my legal residence in Washington because of the exorbitant tax being imposed by Wisconsin," Mr. Kimberly said.

"There are life long ties which must be broken," he continued, "but it is an essential of good personal business. I love Wisconsin. I have always loved the state, but I cannot continue to live here, in spite of its attractions, while there is an ever increasing effort to penalize wealth."

Kimberly says he has his business delegated so that his presence is no longer constantly needed.

Many friends have told him they intend to adopt his method of avoiding exorbitant taxes, he said, although he refused to tell who they are.

"The trend of Wisconsin government seems to continue to force taxes upwards," he said. "I don't know where it will end, but there must be a limit somewhere."

Mr. Kimberly and his family have lived summers at Neenah and during the last few years have spent their winters at Tryon, N. C. It was also their custom to open with Wisconsin home and spend the Christmas holidays there.

At least two other instances of loss of Wisconsin industries due to the radican political doctrine here were made known after the announcement by Mr. Kimberly.

Taxes Block Expansion.

An expansion program for the Milwaukee plant of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company will be held up, Ludington Patton, vice president of the corporation, announced. The Cutler-Hammer company, large manufacturer of electrical equipment, said the deciding factor in a decision not to move its Bantam, Conn., plant to Wisconsin was the high tax rate in Wisconsin and the uncertainty of future legislative action. It was decided instead to transfer the plant to New York state.

"There will be no immediate increase in facilities in the Milwaukee plant," Mr. Patton said. "The tax situation and the newly enacted compulsory job insurance law are deterrent to our expansion.

"It is not only a question of incorporation taxes but of income taxes as well. We can't ask capable executives to come in here and take charge of new departments in the Milwaukee plant without assuring them that they will not suffer because of greatly increased taxes on their personal income.

"We can't very well move our present plant outside the state, but we can concentrate our expansion on our 20 or more other units scattered throughout nine or ten other states." The company's two chief plants are here and in New Jersey.

"The Cutler-Hammer company not long ago considered replacing its older buildings in Milwaukee, meaning a total outlay of $500,000, but our plans were dropped in view of the tax situation," said Frank R. Bacon, president of the company.

"What is even worse than the policy of penalizing industry in this state is the definite effort made by the present administration to set up class hatred. It is not only a question of chastising the wealthy but of engendering class antagonism. Wealth is made to appear a badge of dishonesty and exploitation."

"Gabriel" Dies

SAMUEL DAVIS.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Samuel Davis, Negro actor, who played the part of Gabriel in "The Green Pastures," died of heart disease in an Indianapolis hospital today.

Davis was the second man to have the part of Gabriel in the show. Wesley Hill, who was understudy for Davis, was run down and killed by a taxicab a week after Davis was engaged.

Davis was born in Atlanta, Ga. He ran away with a tent show when only a child. Graduating to the minstrel shows he was featured in the Georgia Minstrels, Dixie Dandies, and then played in stock at the Budweiser theater in Tampa, Fla., for two years.

He formed a vaudeville team with Frank Innman and later played with Walter Crumbley. His first Broadway appearance was with Richard Bennett in "The People." He also played with Helen Menchen's company.

NO POLITICS IN FUND FOR RELIEF, RYERSON SAYS

Will Approve Bills for the Needy Only.

If the public fears that the $18,750,000 relief funds will fall into the hands of politicians for distribution those fears should be promptly allayed, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Emergency Relief commission, said last night.

E. L. RYERSON JR.

"This commission," said Mr. Ryerson, "which has sole jurisdiction over the spending of this money, will approve bills showing that money has been spent for relief, but only for relief. I understand people are becoming worried that this money will fall into political hands. They need have no worries on that score.

Must Sell Warrants.

"Meanwhile it is absolutely essential that the state warrants now on sale for this fund be sold. I cannot impress too urgently that this must be done if the money is to be made available for charity. Mere passage by the legislature of this authorization does not solve the problem. We have hopes that the remaining $14,200,000 of these 6 per cent state warrants not yet sold can be disposed of this week and if all coöperate it can be done."

Besides Mr. Ryerson, the commission is made up of these Illinois citizens: Samuel Insull Jr., Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works; Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Federation of Labor; Edward A. Cudahy, Omar H. Wright, banker of Belvidere, and Arthur Eidman, banker of Belleville.

The Cook county board will meet this afternoon to decide how much money it will need for its charitable work this year. Emmett Whealan, president, said yesterday that he thought the request might reach $4,000,000. The county will also seek 2,000,000 to pay bills incurred for caring for the poor during the winter months when it had assurance, the president said, that it would share in the charity funds authorized by the legislature.

Doubt Fund Retroactive.

There is a doubt that the $18,750,000 fund is retroactive and that it might be used for that uencit. Mr. Whealan may go to Springfield today to confer on that question with Attorney General Carlstrom.

It appeared yesterday that the move to transfer the bulk of unemployment relief from the Joint Emergency Relief fund to the county bureau of public welfare will be at a standstill for the present. Mr. Whealan said that he did not feel the county should take on this added amount of work.

Subscriptions to the state warrant drive yesterday included one for $300,000 from the Illinois Bell Telephone company. Twenty-eight smaller purchases, totaling $72,000, were also announced. That these notes are a sound investment is the conviction of F. O. Hale, president of the telephone company, who made the announcement.

FIGHT ASSEMBLY PLAN TO DELAY TAX PAYMENTS

Civic Leaders Ask April 15 Penalty Date.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Determined opposition to the pending legislative proposal to put off until October the first payment of 1930 Cook county taxes began to pile up yesterday in a manner believed to forecast delay on the so-called funding bills at Springfield today.

City and county officials, expert counsel, bankers and business men who have been trying to help the local governments out of their difficulties united in declaring that the 1930 taxes must start coming in at once and that the latest penalty date possible is April 15.

This declaration was made officially by the county board, which adopted resolutions on the subject. And there was the same unanimous agreement at a Chicago club conference called by D. F. Kelly. Great importance was attached to the conclusion of the conferees that further delay cannot be tolerated.

Want Bills Amended.

With this development in the situation, it was planned that President Whealan of the county board, Corporation Counsel Sexton, and others shall ask the state senate today to postpone action on the five "funding" bills and allow time for their amendment or revision into the new form which the lawyers say will make them constitutional.

It is expected that at least two days more will be required for this redrafting. This means that if the Chicago request is granted the plans for a recess from Thursday or Friday of this week until after the April 12 primary will have to be dropped and the two houses will have to meet again next week.

County Board Resolution.

The more important sections of the county board resolutions were as follows:

"The county board is unalterably opposed to any delay in the payment of 1930 taxes beyond April 15, 1932, and is likewise opposed to more than one installment for the payment of the 1930 taxes.

"The county board is further opposed to more than two installments each for the payment of taxes for the year 1931 and subsequent years.

"The county board is opposed to any plan of complete funding of taxes for any one year."

The board also indorsed senate bill 150 authorizing assessment of property omitted from or undervalued in a regular assessment.

The commissioners acted after they had heard from Attorneys Urban A. Lavery and Hayden N. Bell and from Michael J. O'Connor, assistant county controller.

"If the 1930 tax collections are deferred until Oct. 1 and only one-half of them made due on that date," said O'Connor, "you might as well quit. We wouldn't be able to function."

Peril of Bankruptcy.

"I am satisfied the taxing plan as it now stands," said Attorney Lavery, "will bring the county governments into actual bankruptcy in place of the theoretical bankruptcy we now have. This is actually a contest between strongly organized groups of taxpayers bent on securing further time for the payment of taxes long overdue and the continued existence of solvent government."

The participants in the Kelly conference included, in addition to Mayor Cermak and President Whealan, many of those who took part in similar previous meetings.

The single assessor provided for under that plan has not been selected yet, but it is expected that while he is in Springfield today President Whealan will discuss with Gov. Emmerson the qualifications of J. L. Jacobs, whom he favors for the post. The county board president and the governor are to agree on the appointment.

SWANSON HEADS DENEEN TICKET IN COUNTY RACE

Harry E. Hoff Is Slated for Recorder.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson for reëlection heads the Deneen county slate for the Republican primaries April 12 as announced last night in unfinished form. The Deneen group will meet again today to complete its ticket, which the leaders say was delayed by an endeavor to pick a strong ticket for the three sanitary district trusteeships. The slate in its incomplete form was given out as follows:

State's Attorney—John A. Swanson.
Recorder—Harry E. Hoff.
Sanitary District Trustees—Guy Guernsey, Paul Willis, Allan Healy.

Mr. Guernsey was alderman of the 6th ward from 1918 to 1931, is a former member of the legislature and former clerk of the Probate court. He is regarded as the original promoter of the Shedd aquarium on the lake front. Mr. Willis is a retired manufacturer who was head of the Kenwood Bridge company. Mr. Healy, a graduate of Harvard law school, is a son of John J. Healy, former state's attorney, and has served as an assistant United States district attorney. Mr. Hoff was deputy recorder under the late Joseph Haas, his father-in-law.

Democrats Hope to Avoid Split.

The Democratic triangular fight over the governorship nomination at the primaries is billed to open full force after Feb. 22, the last day for filing petitions. Meanwhile preliminary activities have already started up.

The Democratic county organization threw open its new clubrooms at the Hotel Sherman yesterday and began refashioning its old rooms into headquarters for Judge Henry Horner, organization choice for governor, and William H. Dieterich of Beardstown, congressman at large, who is slate candidate for United States senator.

Indications were that the governorship contest between Judge Horner, Michael L. Igoe, and Bruce A. Campbell of East St. Louis, while it is expected to be intense, will be kept within the boundaries of a well regulated family fight.

Seek to Avoid Bitterness.

The leaders in the rival camps say that efforts will be made not to let too much bitterness develop, with a view of harmony handshakes after the primaries are over.

Mr. Igoe, before leaving for Springfield last night, said that, whoever wins, he will support the Democratic ticket from top to bottom.

Judge Horner busied himself clearing up business on his Probate court calendar. Plans for the platform campaign are to be mapped out by the state and county committees.

Friends of Mr. Campbell said his headquarters will be opened in Chicago this week.

At the hospital it was said that Dix stood the operation well, but that he may be obliged to undergo treatment for a week or more. The operation was described as a minor surgical one. Three months ago Dix was a patient at Hopkins, where he underwent eye treatment by Dr. Charles Bagley. A year ago Dix was a patient at the Union Memorial hospital here.

Nelson's Sickness Forces New Delay in Trial

The illness of Oscar Nelson, state auditor, led to a continuance in the conspiracy case against him before Judge Edward Shurtleff in the Circuit court at Woodstock yesterday. Judge Shurtleff set the case for tomorrow and announced that if Nelson was still unable to appear a further postponement would be allowed. Nelson is charged with conspiracy to defraud the depositors and stockholders of the Waukegan State bank.

BRYAN JR. HAILED AS NEW LEADER OF BIMETALISTS

Free Coinage Slogan of Denver Confab.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Men and sons of men who cheered William Jennings Bryan in 1896 returned today to cheer William Jennings Bryan Jr., as the son of the great commoner opened the western states silver conference with a plea for bimetalism.

Miners from mountain ghost towns joined with representatives of twelve western states in decrying gold as a basis for the world's transactions and chorusing a demand for the rehabilitation of silver.

Ghost Has Arisen.

"In 1896," said Bryan, "the statement was frequently made that the silver question was dead. Today we are painfully aware that the silver question was never dead, but sleeping.

"Unless silver is again made to do duty as primary money, by the side of gold," Bryan declared, "there is no relief from falling prices, unemployment, bankruptcy, suffering, and misery for the unnumbered millions of the world."

Russell F. Collins of Seattle, Wash., urged America to force the issue in establishing bimetalism.

He declared nature has fixed the ratio between gold and silver down through the ages. He insisted that miners returning from the hills invariably bring from 13 to 14 ounces of silver to 1 ounce of gold.

Urges Free Coinage.

Former United States Senator Charles S. Thomas of Denver urged the convention to "briefly and unequivocably declare for the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the historic ratio established by statute a century ago."

The statutory ratio was slightly more than 15½ to 1.

C. G. Binderup of Lincoln, president of the Nebraska Silver league, said present economic conditions have as a basis, not overproduction, but lack of purchasing power, which he believed bimetalism would remedy.

Girl Flyer Dies, Victim of Suicidal Poison Dose

SENATOR MOSES LAYS THE LASH ON BUREAUCRACY

Assails Propaganda Rule of Nation.

many of my colleagues, who receive twenty such letters of a morning, come to believe an overwhelming public opinion is aroused. They vote so and so because they fear loss of their places."

Security for U. S. Products.

The senator declared the United States is now engaged in a war for the restoration of prosperity. Real readjustment, he said, can come in making American products secure for the American market. The free portal should be closed in order that America may take possession of its own, he declared.

"If we are willing to do away with that which has been our cherished possession we will deserve any fate which may come upon us," he said. "The members of congress want to do the right thing regardless of any personal interest. They are honestly striving for the best interest of the country.

"We want to have and we require to have some expression not from paid propagandists but from those who represent the strength of the people of this republic. If your representatives at Washington fail to produce the types of legislation which work for the benefit of the whole community the blame is not at the doorstep of congress, but lies in your home, your heart and your mind because you have neglected your duty."

SUGGESTS 5 WAY SPLIT ON CEMENT SALE TO COUNTY

The county commissioners yesterday invited representatives of five cement companies, bidders on a $1,000,000 contract for county road building material, to appear before the board today and consider splitting the sale among them. The action was taken during a stormy session of the roads and bridges committee. It was suggested by Commissioner Charles Weber, who said it would be good practice in view of business conditions to divide the contract among all the companies, provided they would agree to the purchase price per barrel of the low bidder.

Under Illinois statutes the commissioners must award all contracts to the lowest in a group of competitive bidders, and Commissioner Weber's suggestion met with opposition. County Attorney Hayden Bell informed the commissioners that the proposed action would be illegal. The board might, however, award only part of the contract and then readvertise for bids from each company, he said.

The Marquette Cement Manufacturing company was low bidder by 6 cents a barrel. The other bidders are the Universal Atlas Cement company, the Lehigh Portland Cement company, the Medusa Portland Cement company, and the Alpha Portland Cement company.

Four charges of larceny against William Bender, filed in Binghamton, N. Y., were continued to March 3 by Judge McKinlay yesterday. Bender will be arraigned on a confidence game charge in the felony court on March 2.

BLACKMER MUST PAY $60,000 FINE, RULING BY SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Upholding the constitutionality of the Walsh law, under which Harry M. Blackmer, self exiled oil millionaire was fined $60,000 for contempt of court, the Supreme court of the United States today ruled that Blackmer must pay this penalty.

Chief Justice Hughes delivered the court's opinion. Associate Justice Roberts, who was one of the government's special counsel in the oil scandal cases, did not take part in either the consideration or decision of the case.

Blackmer, wanted as a witness in the Fall-Sinclair trial, refused to come back to the country from France even though he was served with subpoenaes by American consular officers who also offered him $500 in two instances for traveling expenses. As a result $100,000 of his property was seized by the government and out of this he was fined $30,000 for contempt of court, in two separate actions.

Although Blackmer went to France he remained an American citizen, subject to this country's laws, and for disobedience to its laws through conduct abroad he was subject to punishment in the courts of the United States, Chief Justice Hughes asserted.

GENERAL HINTS CAROL HEADS FOR LOSS OF THRONE

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Gen. Alexandru Averescu, long an outspoken critic of King Carol's regime, has set politicians agog with a newspaper article declaring kings have lost thrones as a result of situations similar to Rumania's.

Gen. Averescu's latest criticism drew a light retort from Premier Jorga in parliament Saturday. The premier said he hardly knew whether to take the "hint" of the general as a joke, or call in the public prosecutor. Parliament gave three rousing cheers for "good King Carol."

Indications that all may not be quiet politically were read, however, in reports that high officials were in disagreement as to the handling of the non-aggression pact with Russia and Rumania's stand on disarmament.

SUPREME COURT WILL PASS ON REMAP TANGLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The question whether the Minnesota legislature may order the state reapportioned into nine congressional districts without the consent of the governor will be reviewed by the United States Supreme court, under an order by which the court today granted a petition for a writ of certiorari in the case of W. Yale Smiley against Mike Holm, secretary of state of Minnesota.

The Minnesota legislature acted under the 1930 census, which it held entitled the state to nine members of the national house of representatives instead of ten as at present.

After both houses of the Minnesota legislature passed the bill it was transmitted to Gov. Floyd B. Olsen, but he vetoed the measure and returned it to the state house of representatives, with his reasons for disapproval. The next day the house adopted a resolution directing that a copy of the enrolled bill be deposited with the secretary of state and remain as a part of the permanent records. This was done.

Smiley, a resident of the Fourth ward of Minneapolis, brought action against Secretary of State Holm in the District court. Eventually the Minnesota Supreme court ruled against Smiley.

JERSEY BUDGET CUT $9,375,000 BY GOV. MOORE

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Slashing $9,375,462.96 from requests of state departments and eliminating all appropriations for "useless" state commissions and activities, Gov. A. Harry Moore today submitted his 1932-'33 budget message to the legislature.

The governor's recommendations total $27,189,703.94, included in which is a new item of $2,656,800 for old age relief effective July 1.

Without resorting to new sources of revenue, Gov. Moore has turned a threatened state deficit of $731,282.82 into a free cash balance of $119,077.23. In case the legislature decides to postpone operation of the old age pension, as is proposed, the treasury balance will be $2,656,800.

Total requests from state agencies amounted to $36,565,165.90.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Feb. 15.—Costa Rica was in a state of rebellion today on the heels of yesterday's presidential and congressional election. Street fighting began here early this morning and was followed by the capture by rebels of the main military barracks here and in Heredia.

Other military stations, at last reports, are remaining loyal to the government. Fighting continued throughoutout the day with loyal troops, police, and volunteers attempting to crush the movement. The number of casualties is not known, but many persons were wounded. Authorities tonight said the revolt had been suppressed.

Loser Leaders Revolt.

Leading the revolt was Manuel Castro Quesada, former minister to the United States, who is running second in the race for president behind Ricardo Jimenez. Recent threats that Quesada would resort to force in case he failed to receive enough votes to take over the government were recalled.

Kidnaping of Fabio Baudrit, vice president and minister of finance, by a group of insurgents was an early development in the day's outbreak. Baudrit was seized near the Buenavista barracks, now in command of Quesada. These barracks are near the American legation in the heart of San José. Federal troops surrounded the building later in the day.

Although the election returns are incomplete, it is indicated that none of the four candidates has received a majority. This will necessitate another election.

Latest returns gave Ricardo Jimenez 30,000 votes; Quesada, 17,000, and Carlos Maria Jimenez, 12,000. A fourth candidate received 1,100 votes.

Accuses Police of Meddling.

Seats for 22 congressmen, half the total membership, were also voted on yesterday. President Viquez had taken precautions against election troubles by issuing regulations interpreting doubtful and conflicting provisions of the election laws. The Ricardo Jimenez party, however, charged that police authorities were "too anxious" to promote Quesada's cause.

Today's revolt was the second since 1870. The republic is generally considered one of the most advanced in Central America.

Alabama Jurors Ignore Plea of Self-Defense.

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Capiases returned today revealed the Montgomery county grand jury indicted a federal prohibition agent and a city policeman for first degree murder in connection with two liquor killings here last winter. F. A. McCartney, federal dry agent, was charged with murder in the first degree for killing Ferrell Day in a downtown rooming house Nov. 30. Day was killed by a bullet entering the left side of the back. He had run the length of the building in which the rooming house is located, according to a woman who witnessed the shooting, and was climbing out a window when McCartney shot him.

McCartney contended at the preliminary hearing he shot in self defense.

City Policeman O. M. Cobb was charged with first degree murder in the slaying of Charles Grayson here Dec. 24, 1931, and was released this afternoon under $5,000 bond. Cobb was attempting to arrest Grayson in connection with alleged liquor running when, Cobb says, Grayson tried to push him off the running board of Grayson's moving car. Cobb shot Grayson through the head, killing him instantly.

Tulsa Police Head Indicted.

Tulsa, Okla., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Thomas I. Munroe, Tulsa commissioner of fire and police, was arrested today, under a federal grand jury indictment for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

George Stewart, a detective sergeant, and Robert G. Kennedy, detective lieutenant, also were indicted. Kennedy is named as a co-defendant with Commissioner Munroe.

The indictments climax a department of justice investigation of several months. Kennedy has been in jail since Dec. 23, unable to make a $10,000 bond.

Groundwork of the investigation was laid by two negro undercover prohibition agents brought to Tulsa from Chicago.

It was alleged the negro bootleggers had been paying Kennedy $1,000 per month for protection.

Malachi L. Harney, a smiling ex-marine, moved into offices on the fourth floor of the Transportation building yesterday to take over the job of prohibition administrator for the Chicago area. He succeeds Col. John F. J. Herbert, who leaves today to direct prohibition enforcement in Hawaii.

The recent transfer of Harney from St. Paul, where he had been prohibition administrator for the past year and a half, to Chicago, and of Col. Herbert to the islands, came as a complete surprise to both men. "I had just bought a couple of new overcoats, a fur hat, and a supply of long underwear when I received word that I was to go where it's summer all the year around," remarked Col. Herbert.

Asked if he was planning any changes in the policy and personnel of the department, Mr. Harney replied that he thought not. "I haven't had time yet to even get my feet under a desk," he said.

Harney is 36 years old, married, and has been in the prohibition department since 1920.

U. S. TO APPEAL FROM DECISION IN CANNON CASE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The government today filed formal notice in the District of Columbia Supreme court that it will appeal from the court's decision, last Saturday, invalidating the indictment of Bishop James Cannon Jr. and Miss Ada Burroughs on charges of conspiracy to violate the federal corrupt practices act.

With Bishop Cannon's attorneys present, John J. Wilson, assistant district attorney in charge of the Cannon prosecution, appeared before Justice James M. Proctor, who rendered the decision, and notified him that the case would be carried to the District of Columbia court of appeals. The government now has sixty days in which to docket the appeal in the higher court and hopes, according to Mr. Wilson, to conclude actual proceedings before the court adjourns this year.

Should the court of appeals sustain Justice Proctor's ruling, the prosecution of the Virginia clergyman and the former treasurer of the Virginia anti-Smith campaign committee probably will be dropped. A new indictment is impossible under the statute of limitation.

CAPONE BEGS OFF ON PAYMENT OF $391,148 TAXES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Al Capone, Chicago gang leader now under sentence for evasion of income taxes, today petitioned the United State board of tax appeals to prevent the government from forcing him to pay $391,148 in back income taxes, penalties, and interest.

The bureau has assessed Capone $68,664 in back taxes for 1926, 1927, 1928, and 1929 and has notified him an additional assessment of $322,342 is to be levied. The gang leader, in his petition, asserted the government had erred in calculating his income.

According to the internal revenue bureau, Capone had an income of $1,355,277 for the period from 1924 to 1929.

Capone contended the additional assessments placed him twice in jeopardy on tax counts, since he has already been convicted of evasion in 1925, 1926, and 1927, and found not guilty of evasion for 1928 and 1929.

NINE YOUNG ROBBERS HELD.

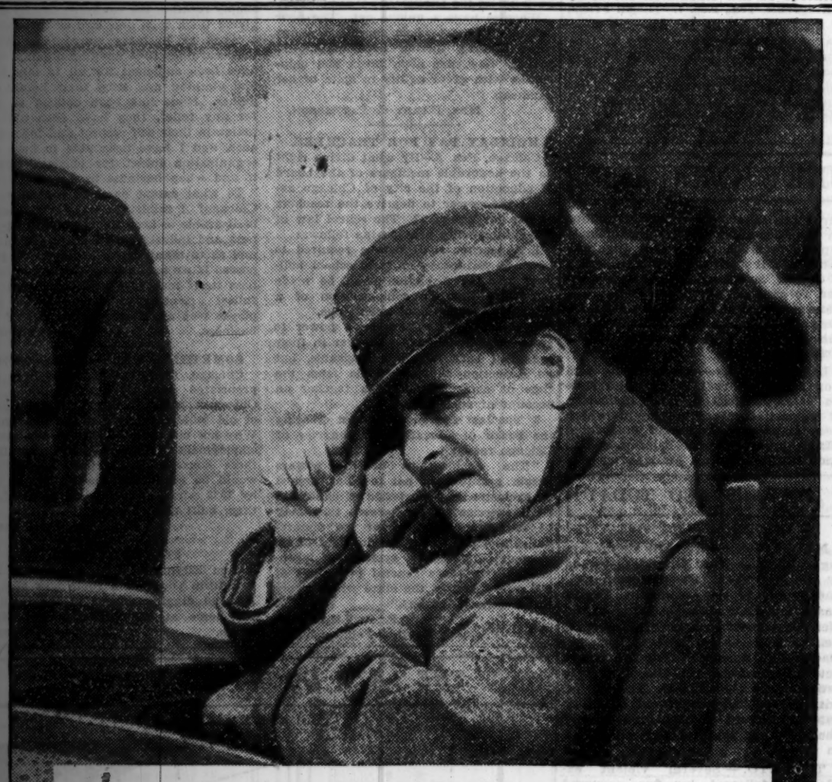
Nine youths who have confessed 135 burglaries, 100 purse snatchings and 15 robberies were held to the grand jury by Judge Brooks yesterday. They are Albert Swanson, Donald Ireland, Carl Baisler, Allen Sprouse, Michael Wagner, James Osborn, Charles Oehlert, Julius Joseph, and Emmett Grimes.

Pleads Not Guilty

Daniel L. Gilday, gun-toting dry reformer, pleaded not guilty to charges of assault to murder and of carrying concealed weapons before Chief Justice Harry Fisher in the Criminal court yesterday. March 1 was set as the date for trial. Gilday shot and seriously wounded Herman Knol, 17 years old, 6938 South May street on the night of Nov. 29. According to the state, Knol had offered to aid Gilday who was walking with wavering steps when the reformer whipped out a gun and shot the youth.

CERMAK OPENS NEW HOME FOR T. B. PATIENTS

Dedicatory services conducted yesterday morning by Mayor Cermak officially opened the new municipal home for tuberculosis carriers, at 750½ West 22d street. Attending the opening of the first unit, which will accommodate fifty patients and will realize a dream of several years in the control of tuberculosis in Chicago, was a large group of officials of the city and of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium, under whose auspices the new home will be operated.



COLD INSURANCE

He carries it with him, ready for just such times. That little box of Bayer Aspirin. If he catches cold, what of it? Bayer Aspirin will stop it. If his throat feels sore, he will end the soreness with one good gargle made by crushing these tablets in water.

Nothing is easier than the relief of colds with Bayer Aspirin—but don't postpone it. Dangerous complications can follow the neglect of "a common cold!" Every case of tonsilitis began with "just a sore throat!"

It's a wise plan to take aspirin after any undue exposure to bad weather, or whenever there is any chance that you've caught cold. If it's genuine aspirin it can't possibly hurt you; and how it does banish the aches and pains caused by colds, neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism, lumbago!

Bayer Aspirin will insure your comfort through the worst cold season. The more susceptible you are to colds, the more you need it. Tablets that bear the Bayer cross are perfectly harmless. You can buy them in handy pocket tins, or economical bottles of 100. You don't want the imitations at any price; safety is worth something!

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

DESTRUCTIVE RELIEF.

The state senate on Wednesday is expected to vote upon house bills 30 and 31. These bills provide that 1930 taxes will become delinquent on Oct. 1 next. On that date half the tax must be paid. Three months later, on Jan. 1, 1933, another quarter of the tax will be due and the final installment three months later, on April 1.

If these measures are adopted, the legislature will have demonstrated that bankruptcy in Illinois is not confined to matters of finance. The financial insolvency will be overshadowed by a bankruptcy of common sense and integrity.

The passage of the bills would amount to the bankruptcy of common sense because by this time it should be obvious that difficulties under which the governments are laboring as a result of excessive expenditure in the past and present have been enormously aggravated by the delays in tax collection. The taxes which it is now proposed to start collecting next October and finish collecting a year from next April would have been paid under normal circumstances last April. No government can be conducted without revenue or borrowing. The local governments of Cook county cannot borrow today even on the security of their bonds. Their sole reliance is upon current revenue. Their only hope of obtaining credit to carry on the essential services of government is a prompt resumption of tax payments. These bills are devised to postpone tax payment. They must, therefore, aggravate instead of relieve the difficulties. If passed they will make it wholly impossible to pay policemen, firemen or teachers until late next autumn, if then.

Likewise, the passage of the bills would signalize the bankruptcy of integrity in this state. The ownership of property carries with it certain definite obligations to the state which are well known to every real estate owner. Taxes are a first lien on his holding. If he wants to continue in possession of his property he must pay them. His annual debt to the state comes ahead of all his other obligations as a property owner. Citizen responsibility requires that the debt, already long overdue, be paid when possible, even at the cost of much hardship to some property owners. Certainly the hardships suffered by real estate owners are no greater than the hardships of the firemen and teachers to whom the owners are under the law obligated.

The remedy for the present difficulties does not lie in stalling off the payment of a lawful debt. That will only make matters worse. The sooner the 1930 bills are issued and put into collection the better. If, in addition, the legislature is able to devise some scheme for funding the obligations of those real estate owners who are temporarily embarrassed for funds, without prejudice to those who do perform their duty to the state, so much the better. But it would be a blunder of the first magnitude to destroy the fundamental services of government out of a mistaken tenderness for a minority.

REPUBLICANS TO FIGHT BUREAUCRACY.

Republicans of Wisconsin got down to fundamentals in their state conference in Milwaukee in declaring against the growth of bureaucracy and the terrific rate it is increasing costs of government. The rapacity of political jobholders, their greed for power and the unbearable burden of supporting them saddled on labor and industry head directly to the disintegration of our democratic government. It is the major political problem.

A series of taxpayers' meetings that have taken place lately in many Milwaukee wards present a phenomenon that warrants the serious attention of every man in public life or who hopes for a place in public life. The attendance at these meetings is composed of men clearly identified, not as ward hangers-on anxious for a crumb of political recognition, nor seeking an evening's mild entertainment without cost, but as eager workers desperate to find some solution that will relieve them of the taxes that threaten their holds on their small homes and modest comforts.

"We view with alarm the growth of bureaucracy in our national government and we urge upon the next national convention of the Republican party a strong plank condemning such policies, and we advocate that measures be adopted which will bring about drastic reductions in the cost of government," says the Wisconsin resolution, which continues:

"Not only is this true of the national government but also of state and local governments. We Republicans of Wisconsin protest emphatically against the excessive cost of state government that has increased more than 1,000 per cent in the last twenty-five years, and pledge ourselves to our utmost endeavor to reduce this unwarranted burden on the backs of the taxpayers."

The need for genuine reduction in government costs, not by cutting the wages of a few minor employes but by elimination of unessentials, is not a party matter. The candidate who shows that economy is something more than a seven letter word to him can be assured of an amazing success at the polls. Taxation is no longer merely something to talk about, but is a primary and fundamental issue of government.

The Wisconsin G. O. P. also expressed itself intelligently on the subject of prohibition, which, scarcely less than taxation, is contributing to pile up contempt for government. The Wisconsin delegation was urged to use every honorable means to have included in the next national platform a clear cut declaration on the subject of prohibition and the eighteenth amendment to guarantee the people the opportunity to express their opinions divorced from all other political subjects on the question of prohibition.

Both planks give evidence that the Wisconsin resolution makers have been around and heard what the people are talking about. They have evolved a program that other platform writers will do well to study.

SENATE INQUISITORS.

Secretary Hurley was inevitably destined to suffer insolence and pettifogging in the senate committee hearings on Philippine relations. But he has done a public service in refusing to submit. Senate inquisitions have become a scandal in recent years. Time after time the interrogation of citizens in these proceedings has descended to the level of an old time justice court and senators with the ethics of shysters repeatedly have bullied witnesses and tried to pervert their answers. Committees or committee members have flagrantly infringed the guaranties of civil right and abused their authority, exploiting the respect in which the senate, as an institution, is held to overawe citizens summoned before them, confuse them, and impose unfair implications upon their responses.

The spirit of tyranny and political chicanery exhibited in some of these senate inquiries has gone without effective rebuke, although the senate itself should have been the first to repudiate and punish it. Every American who has resented it and realized its ominous significance is grateful to the few individuals who have refused to submit to it in silence and who have asserted their right as citizens to the common amenities of human intercourse, to protection from insolence and innuendo, and to a fair hearing.

If the senate will not adopt and enforce upon all its members a higher code of ethics in public inquiry and discussion than has been repeatedly exposed in recent years, it will lose and deserve to lose the respect of the nation.

THE ARCH-HYPOCRITE.

The soviet government through its commissar of foreign affairs proposes the abolition of the "most aggressive types of armament," including tanks, heavy artillery, ships of more than 10,000 tons, naval artillery of more than 12 inch caliber, aircraft carriers, military dirigibles, heavy bombing planes, etc.—in short, all implements of modern warfare which soviet Russia is short of and least able to acquire.

All that the soviet would have on these terms would be the largest reserve of man power of any nation in Europe, controlled by a fanatic nucleus of disciplined bolshevik troops. The soviet is for complete disarmament. It can well afford to favor it for the same reason. If there were no modern weapons at all requiring technical skill to make, the power of a Russian horde would be proportionately that much greater. Civilized European nations would be at its mercy.

Communists like to talk about capitalist or bourgeois hypocrisy. There is no hypocrisy in history more flagrant than the bolshevik dictatorship's pretense of devotion to peace. The bolshevik régime was established by force and waded through blood to power. It is maintained today by arms and dares not meet the criticism and publicity of free speech or a free press. It has destroyed liberty of thought and conscience and the peace it has created is the peace of any other tyranny, the peace of the sword. As for world peace, it is carrying on throughout the world an organized conspiracy against the peace of every other nation, and the conspiracy is to foment violence, to plan and precipitate riots, to inflame hatred, create secret treachery, to break down the agencies of public order, and thus to give opportunity for ruthless minorities ready to seize power by slaughter and hold it by arms.

Bolshevism is the enemy of peace in every other nation. After nearly fifteen years of mastery in Russia, and in spite of its vaunted betterments, it dares not meet the challenge of free thought and speech. Its rule is the rule of armed might. When its emissary appears at Geneva, bolshevism holds up the dove of peace with bloody hands.

COUNTY FORESTS IN ILLINOIS.

[The Bloomington Pantagraph.]

McLean county has what might prove to be the beginning of a county forest preserve in the 20 acres of wooded land southeast of Leroy which was donated to the county many years ago by Simeon H. West. The tract is little cared for, and few people take advantage of it for recreational purposes. If the matter were properly taken up, similar tracts in other parts of the county could be set apart for public use, and with a little care they could be made attractive and usable for citizens and tourists.

It may not be generally known that several Illinois counties have quite extensive natural forest preserves, which they have acquired under a state law passed 18 years ago.

Cook county has acquired and improved tracts totaling 34,000 acres of timberland, encircling the entire city of Chicago. These woodlands were visited last summer by nearly five million people, and some parts of the preserve are as popular in winter as in summer. They have fishing and camping facilities by some of the rivers and lakes; athletic fields have been laid out in other places for all kinds of summer and winter sports. Trails have been cut into the heart of some parts of the woodlands which are almost as wild today as when the Indians roamed the region.

Winnebago county has eight forest preserves of good size, all in charge of a county forestry expert. The other counties mentioned have tracts totaling several hundred acres. McLean county should at least take some steps for caring for the one small tract which it now owns, and perhaps await favorable opportunity to acquire others later.

"GONDOLAS FROZEN IN ICE in Canals in Venice."—The Trib. Great hevings! First we are horrified at two inch snow in sunny California, and now we are grief stricken at the gondolas frozen in the ice in the canals in sunny Venice. In our genial Chicago climate, where the plum, the apple, and the cherry tree are all in glorious bloom in the middle of January, we can hardly vision two inch snow or ice locked gondolas. But just as we urged the inhabitants of Loz Onglaize to spend their winters in Chicago (what a climate! what a climate!), so must we likewise extend a cordial welcome to the shivering ladies and gentlemen of Venice. Come and bring your gondolas with you. Since the climate in Chicago has changed from ice and cold in winter to blue skies and soft, languid breezes, we must adopt the customs of countries once famous as being the places where 'twas always spring. We must have the refugees from sunny California bring their orange trees and the visitors from Venice fetch along their gondolas. Gondolas would be wonderful on the Chicago river skimming so lightly to and fro. They would be so much more attractive than the sand barges that now ply the river, and we wouldn't have to hoist up the bridges when they went under.

We almost had gondolas once before during the time of the World's Fair in 1893. One of the aldermen in the city council thought it would make our parks even more attractive to visitors than they were if gondolas were to be placed in all the park lagoons, and he suggested that forty or fifty be bought in Venice and brought to Chicago. Then rose Ald. John J. Coughlin of the Foist ward—more generally referred to in those days as "de Bat'house." John is reported to have said (and he should have said it if he didn't): "Mister Chairman, I'object to wastin' the city's money buying forty or fifty of thim there gondolies. Instid of that I move we buy two gondolies, a male and a female, and let nature take its coorse." Ah, yes, we should have gondolas in our beautiful climate, either forty or fifty, or at least a pair.

RETURN.

And new smoke drifts
When morning comes
And the fog lifts.

The wind that brought
The smell of sea
Is not the wind
It used to be.

It whimpers with
So thin a cry
It will be nothing
By and by.

What can I find
That is the same
As once it was . . .
Except the name?

All that I knew
I cannot find here
Any more.

Some things are better
Returning to

FERRY ADAMS.

NOW, IT MAY BE TRUE that lots of us motorists are just a little bit backward in buying our pretty new city auto licenses. But heck, why isn't some inducement offered? Now, if you buy nine gallons of gas lots of stations will give you a glass pitcher or a set of dishes or a bust of George Washington. Why doesn't the city wake up and advertise a handsome pair of gents' dress suspenders or a pure gold vanity bag for the gels, or something like that? By golly, that would sell the pretty little licenses like the w. k. hot cakes.

THOSE CUNNING LITTLE JAPS are still beating up an American consul or vice consul now and then. They really oughtn't to do that. Some day we may get quite cross at the Japanese about this and Secretary Stimson will tell them they are very, very naughty, so there!

THE BOOK PUBLISHERS in New York have proposed a twenty per cent cut in wages to their employés owing to the w. k. depression. All right, we'll tell the publishers something: Cut their detective stories down twenty per cent. Cut out the first chapter, the last chapter, and a hunk right out of the middle. It would make the detective stories much more interesting.

WHAT, WE ASK AGAIN, are the Jefferson lads in congress going to do about the lame ducks today? There's been an effort made for years to put salt on the tails of those lame ducks and shoo 'em out the window, but the Republicans, who are very tender hearted and kind to animals, have stood between the public and the ducks. But now the house is Democratic and the lame ducks should fly away home. Let us watch patiently and see what we shall see. Shoo! lame ducks.

ALOES.

I've been taught to look austere
When strangers start to flirt;
If I haven't met a man
He may do me dirt.

Very, very true it is,
So I'm usually prim—
When a stranger starts his stuff
I can finish him.

But I'm secretly in dread
Of that day somewhere
When I board a car and find

THE FAMILY DOCTOR PREVENTS MEASLES.

DR. GEORGE HELLER, a family practitioner, one who calls on his patients in their homes rather than have them call on him or go to a hospital, advocates a simple method of preventing measles. It is one that every family doctor might well consider. He carries a medicine bag, as the classical family doctor always does. In this medicine bag he has a syringe with a barrel that holds at least one ounce, and with a long, strong needle. This syringe and needle have been sterilized and are kept wrapped in sterile gauze covered by cellophane. In addition, he has in that bag a bottle of alcohol, one of tincture of iodine, and some sterile gauze.

When he is called to a house in which there is a case of measles he then and there injects all exposed children who have not had the disease. The first step is to find some healthy person who has had measles at some time or other. This person is solicited to give some blood for the protection of the children.

Nine times out of ten the person who acts as a donor is one of the parents. It is not a matter of much importance when the donor had measles. Blood from an adult who had measles in childhood is satisfactory. Nor is it necessary to make a Wassermann test, to type the blood, or to look minutely for evidence of disease. A mother who appears to be in reasonably good health, and who gives no history of syphilis—certainly none of recent symptoms—makes the most satisfactory donor, as a rule.

The detail of consent having been arranged, the doctor proceeds to clean and sterilize the skin of the mother over an exposed vein and the skin of the child or the children over a small area in the back, usually the back of a limb. The doctor then draws a little more than two-thirds of an ounce of blood from the mother's vein and quickly injects it deep into the child's muscle. If there are several children, the process is repeated for each, though the services of a second donor may be called for. This job being finished, the physician cleans up his tools, puts them in his bag, and is on his way.

If all the susceptibles in the household are inoculated the quarantine provisions can be lightened materially with safety, though all the facts should be reported to the health department for its decision as to which rules must be observed.

Many of the children thus injected do not develop measles. They become immune and remain so for several weeks. Others develop a few symptoms of measles after a few days, but they are sick for a day or two only and their symptoms are trivial. Those who develop mild attacks of modified measles are immune thereafter for life.

ALBINO BABIES.

Mrs. J. S. writes: I am the mother of a year old baby boy who is albino. When he was born it almost drove me insane. Now I guess I have grown used to his hair and eyes and coloring. What worries me at present are:

1. If I have another child would it be albino, too? My husband and I are first cousins.
2. Is that the cause of such a birth?
3. If not, what is the cause? The baby is a perfect darling otherwise, strong and healthy.

REPLY.

1. There is some chance that he would be and a better one that he would not.
2. I know of no proof that cousins' marriages are especially liable to produce albino children.
3. Nobody knows. In albinism there is a deficiency in pigment, but that is a fact for which there is no explanation.

ADDISON'S DISEASE.

J. W. F. writes: A sister of mine, age 63, has been suffering for three years with a disease which has recently been diagnosed as Addison's disease. I have heard of a serum treatment that has been successful in such cases. The expense of this, however, is far beyond our power to pay; that is, a year's treatment, which is estimated to effect a cure, costs $3,000, plus physician's charges, etc.

REPLY.

Treatment with an adrenal extract called cortin is being tried, and has been for a year or more. It appears to be promising as a means of promoting strength and prolonging life. The extract is scarce, difficult to get, and sells for a high price. So far as we can judge, it is much the most promising treatment of this very grave disease.

NECROSIS.

R. M. C, writes:

1. Is necrosis contagious?
2. What can cure it?

REPLY.

1. The word necrosis means death. There is no disease with that name.
2. You have misunderstood your physician. Ask him to tell you again, and at the same time ask him to tell you whether the disease you are interested in is contagious, how it is treated, and whether it can be cured.

NOISY TENANTS.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Please advise if a lease is broken when the agent cuts rent before the expiration of the time limit. 2. Could the agent collect rent if I moved out after telling him the people above me make so much noise we can get no rest day or night and he does nothing about it? My lease has three months to run.

T. B.

1. No.
2. Ordinarily, a tenant's remedy for misconduct of other tenants lies against those other tenants rather than against the landlord. There is no express time limit in our statute or ordinances, but noises amounting to legal nuisances can be enjoined or if the facts amount to disorderly conduct can be stopped by the police. In determining whether a noise amounts to a nuisance, the previous character of the neighborhood must be considered. Try reporting the facts to the new noise commission, city hall.

REFINANCING CHARGES.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In refinancing our automobile, the following transaction took place: Old balance, $210; the new payments to be $25.82 for twelve month, totaling $309.84. This makes the refinance charge $99.84, plus 7 per cent interest. In receiving the first invoice we find that it is from a different finance company than the one we did business with. 1. Is the first finance company within the law in charging us $99.84 to refinance an amount of only $210? 2. Can the second finance company charge us 7 per cent interest on top of the $99.84? 3. The first finance company has been in difficulty with the state's attorney's office recently.

P. E. H.

1. We are inclined to the opinion that this charge should be regarded as a fictitious cover for usurious interests, and hence that you could not be forced to pay more than the principal.
2. Depends upon whether the $99 charge was or was not regarded as interest.
3. In such case we would suggest that you take the matter up with the state's attorney's office.

LOCATING ESTATES.

No. You should write to the clerk of the surrogate's court where the deceased resided at the time of his death.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

YOKOHAMA, July 29.—The Japanese government issued the following statement on the recent engagement between the fleets of Japan and China: "In consequence of severe provocation three ships of the Japanese squadron were compelled to engage the Chinese fleet off Fontao, or Round Island. They captured the Chinese warship Tsaikoin and sank a Chinese transport with soldiers on board. Unfortunately one of the largest Chinese ironclads of the northern fleet, the Chen-yuen, escaped to China, and the Chinese torpedo cruiser Huan-tai escaped to Fusan, Corea. The three Japanese warships escaped entirely without injury."

SHANGHAI, July 29.—Confirmation has been received here of the report regarding the beginning of hostilities between China and Japan. In addition to the sinking of the Kow-chung by a Japanese cruiser as it was transporting Chinese troops, all on board being drowned, the Chinese Trading company's steamer Toonon, which was also being used to transport troops to Corea, has been sunk by a Japanese warship.

LONDON, July 29.—The Chinese legation received a dispatch from Tientsin saying the king of Corea was captured by the Japanese on July 23. The Chinese minister said there has been no formal declaration of war between China and Japan, in spite of the armed collisions which have occurred, and that negotiations for a peaceful settlement of the dispute over Corea continue.

FEBRUARY 16, 1904.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Senator Marcus Alonzo Hanna is dead. Death came painlessly after the senator had remained unconscious since yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Hanna, who has been in a state bordering on collapse, was not present when the end came. The illness from which Senator Hanna died really dates from last December when he was in New York, where he was seized with what was thought to be a case of grippe. After the Gridiron dinner on Jan. 30 he was forced to take to his bed which he never left. Dr. E. P. Carter, of Cleveland, one of his physicians, announced that the cause of death was typhoid fever. Senator Hanna was 66 years old. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss S. Augusta Rhodes of Cleveland; two daughters, Mrs. Harry A. Parsons of Cleveland and Mrs. Joseph Medill McCormick of Chicago, and one son, Dan R. Hanna.

LONDON, Eng.—The Japanese fleet sank eight Russian warships and captured ten in a battle off Port Arthur on Feb. 12, according to unconfirmed reports received here. One Japanese battleship, it was stated, was sunk and a cruiser so badly damaged that it had to give up the fight. The Russians are reported to have captured a Japanese torpedo boat. Shells from the Japanese fleet entered the Port Arthur forts.

FEBRUARY 16, 1916.

NEW YORK.—Fire early this morning swept pier 36 at Brooklyn, owned by the New York Docking company, and spread to the steamships Pacific Castle and Bolton Castle, lying at the pier, and to the dock of Barber & Co., as well as to several lighters loaded with gasoline. The fire is not yet under control and the damage is estimated at $1,000,000. It started with an explosion followed by other explosions and almost immediately the ships and the pier were enveloped in flames.

TORONTO. — Several violent explosions followed by fire occurred early today in the building occupied by the American club. The fire spread so rapidly that the building appeared to be doomed. The club has been the scene of several demonstrations in favor of the allies.

FALL RIVER, Mass.—The greatest fire in seventy-five years visited this city early today and by 2 o'clock had leveled many of the business blocks in the center of the town and caused damage estimated at $1,500,000. It started from an explosion of some nature and spread with great rapidity.

CHICAGO.—Police got on a direct clew to the whereabouts of Jean Crones last night and with this information came "the woman in the case." That Crones, alleged poisoner of the guests at Archbishop Mundelein's banquet, did not escape without aid was seemingly established when C. L. Abel of Watseka, Ill., a merchant, reported to Capt. Hunt of the detective bureau that he had seen a man answering to the smallest detail the description of Crones on a C. & E. I. train on Feb. 10. At Chicago Heights he was joined by a woman. She left the train at Watseka and registered at a hotel.

BERLIN.—British positions over a front of 800 yards near Ypres, Belgium, have been captured, the war office announced.

COOLIDGE.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—During the last few months I have noted with amusement, not unmixed with dismay, your editorial efforts to revive the Coolidge myth. I refer more specifically to a recent editorial blessing on the late Dr. Coolidge's theories on economy in national government. That the late doctor advocated and engaged in a queer sort of governmental thrift is not to be denied. But even a casual review of administrative expenses during his régime will dispel any thought that he was interested in economy in the sense of cutting expenses or curtailing governmental activities.

More sinister than this misplaced praise for Dr. Coolidge are your editorial calls for his reëntry in national politics. If I remember correctly, it was this same Dr. Coolidge who, when the bull market was showing some signs of collapse, issued a solemn pronouncement clad with all the dignity of his high office to the effect that stocks were not too high priced and should go higher still. It was the first time in the country's history that the presidency became a brokerage house. Once again, if I remember aright, Dr. Coolidge was echoed in his act of cheering the speculators on by Messrs. Hoover and Mellon, who, after diligent study, opined that conditions were sound and that the U. S. A. was on the high road to peace, wealth, and prosperity.

FROM B. HERBERT MILLIGAN.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—The letter protesting against the quality of Republican candidates for governor published in your column this morning over the signature of Herbert C. Milligan was not written by me or any member of my family. I have been and am actively supporting the present administration and it is my intention to support Mr. Omer N. Custer in the forthcoming primary and election as vigorously as I can in the sphere of my influence in the 48th ward.

CLEVER CATTLE.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Your article in THE TRIBUNE Sunday, Feb. 7, part 8, page 7, column 4, regarding the cows of Ispingo beach, Africa, interested me, but really American cows are just as clever. My own cows at Lake Vieux Desert, Wis., also know how to water themselves and frequently turn on the faucets in the yard unless the handles are tied or wired.

We also have a unique cat. The poor creature has one short foreleg and one short hindleg, having been caught in a trap. She runs after birds and chipmunks with great agility in spite of her handicap.

HOLIDAY PAY FOR TEACHERS.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—By what divine right do the honorable members of the board of education of the city of Chicago assume the power to deprive the teachers of pay for holidays? The school law of Illinois explicitly provides as follows:

1. A teacher shall not be required to teach on Saturdays or legal school holidays and no deduction shall be made from the time or compensation of a teacher on account of such days.
2. Boards of directors have power to grant special holidays whenever in their judgment such action is advisable, but no deduction shall be made from the time or compensation of a teacher on account of such days.
3. The last section of the act creating the board of education for the city of Chicago reads:

"The specifications of the powers herein granted are not to be construed as exclusive, but the board of education shall exercise all the powers that may be requisite or proper for the maintenance and the fullest development of an efficient public school system not inconsistent with those general provisions of the school law of the state which apply to all school districts."

F. R. LIDDIL,

WHY HE VOTED AGAINST RELIEF.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Gentlemen: As state senator for the 47th district, a newspaper publisher and an employing printer in the poster business, I am writing you in regard to the unemployment situation in Chicago.

Last week the state senate passed the Barbour-Igoe bills to appropriate $20,000,000 for unemployment relief, with the understanding that most of this sum would be spent in Chicago. I opposed this measure not out of lack of humanitarian impulses but because I did not feel that Chicagoans had lived up to their own obligations in respect to the unemployed and because I thought it unfair for the downstate, equally impoverished, to be called on to assume the burden Chicagoans have refused to carry.

Chicagoans stand convicted in their own courts of evasion of their civic responsibilities amounting to actual fraud. The record is that 98½ per cent of owners of personal property have had their assessments cut down or stricken off after the valuation was placed on the rolls. It also shows that tax assessing officials have been guilty of corruption, and that tax spending officials have been guilty of criminal corruption and waste. Several of them are under conviction of outright crimes, and I feel that many of the others have been guilty of impositions on the municipal commonwealth. Between these two millstones, the few honest taxpayers and those owning real estate incapable of concealment have been crushed to death. So far as I can observe, there is as yet no disposition on the part of Chicagoans either to accept a fair assessment of personal property or to pay such taxes as may be assessed. I anticipate a breakdown of government in Cook county.

Meantime, industry and business lag, and hundreds of thousands are unemployed and starving. The state is now called on to care for them—how long no one knows, but probably for a long time.

In this dilemma I am wondering how far industry and business in Chicago have gone to reduce the number of unemployed by the simple device of having employés divide time.

My own little business here has suffered in the slump, and today is operating at about 35 per cent of the 1929 level. But I have added no names to the list of unemployed. I could have cut my working force to one-third, but instead have kept every one on the pay roll by simply rotating the workmen day by day, giving them each one, two or three days a week as business warranted. While their earnings thus have been small, they have been sufficient for all to buy food and clothing and keep their homes together. None has been obliged to ask for any relief, they have been able to maintain their self-respect and independence, and I have been able to keep my organization intact for efficient service if and when business improves.

To what extent has this been done in Chicago? I think you will agree that it is desirable to keep the state out of business and industry, both as to regulation and as to taxation for paternalistic purposes. If we are to accomplish this, business itself must not neglect to give the fullest attention to the needs of employés who are a component part of the business.

JAMES O. MONROE.

SOMETHING FOR THE $18,000,000.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—There has been appropriated some 18 or 20 millions for Chicago's poor. Chicago has thousands of old buildings ready to be torn down. Why not use some of this money giving employment to thousands in dismantling these houses? By spring the grounds would be ready for new buildings, and by 1933 who knows but we would have them built up ready for the fair?

Good morning!

Well, having mastered German, I suppose the thing to do is to take up Russian. This job of being a critic becomes, as Alice would say, "complicateder and complicateder."

"The Road to Life," Russia's first talking picture, is soviet propaganda, but it is, just the same, a powerful real life drama presented with a simplicity and earnestness that compel the thoughtful attention.

The film appeals both to the man and woman concerned with world affairs in general and to the individual who merely, as a human being, loves children. Certainly this revelation of the lives of Russia's wild children before and after their reclamation cannot leave anybody indifferent.

The sight of the unfortunate adolescents, orphaned by war or other causes and left to roam the streets of Moscow uncared for save by the human wolves who use them to their own ends is one to arouse pity and indignation. If there is an unpardonable sin, surely those who prey upon children have committed it. And, as this vision arouses pity and indignation, observation of successful efforts to transform these youthful vagabonds into useful citizens inspires an enthusiasm equal in fervor to the horror wakened by the film's first scenes.

The actors, so you are told, had, at one time, in actuality, parts such as they portray in the movie. Gaunt, slinking packs of lads you see, ragged, dirty, smoking cigarets, drinking vodka, looking at women with old, lecherous eyes. And as you behold them on the screen, just so they were, it seems, before the Children's Collective took them in tow.

Great thing, apparently, this Children's Collective, with its shoeshops, chairmaking facilities, carpenter benches, etc., destined to direct turbulent thoughts into clean channels, the while giving restless hands plenty with which to occupy themselves! And what a man is Nikolai Batalov, who is in charge of this institution!

Neither force nor intrigue does he employ to corral the boys in the Collective which is located out in the country, miles from a railroad. Just understanding. It is fascinating to watch his mind work and observe the results of its activities. You'll be much impressed by him, and you'll be wild over Mustapha, chief "wild boy who becomes the pride of the Collective" and goes out fighting for that which once he had fought.

English subtitles clear the way of the narrative for non-Russians, but so illuminative is the pantomime that they're not greatly needed. The musical accompaniment is quite thrilling, I thought.

In presenting their propaganda the producers have stepped carefully, with the result that, when the picture is finished you do not see it AS propaganda but as the exposition of an ideal forging ahead to material realization.

STORY: The jury sitting on the case of a chorus girl alleged to have killed her elderly millionaire husband finds itself hung. (Sitting hung. Well!) At the start of deliberations eleven vote "Guilty." Only the eccentric, brainy, and wealthy Mrs. Crane holds out for a "Not guilty" verdict. Her successful negotiations to turn her brother and sister jurors to her way of thinking form the bulk of the picture's activities.

ACTING: Excellent. Edna Mae Oliver as Mrs. Crane keeps the house roaring, as does Robert McWade as the judge, who finds himself sorely tried by the unprecedented happenings in his courtroom and, finally, after ominous rumblings, indulges in a classic brainstorm.

LINES: Amusing.

Wales Physical Director for His Young Nephews

LONDON, Feb. 16.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—The Daily Express said today the prince of Wales was about to become a gymnastic instructor to his young nephews, Princess Mary's sons. In the reconstruction of the house at 32 Green street, London, where the earl of Harewood and the princess royal will take up residence tomorrow, a full sized boxing ring and two gymnasiums have been installed under the supervision of the prince. Here, the newspaper said, the prince would instruct the two boys—Lord Lascelles and the Hon. Gerald Lascelles, 9 and 7 years old—in gymnastic exercises. The boxing ring, however, was specially designed for the prince himself and his boxing friends.

Charming Blond Gives Some Tips to Her Fellows

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If my memory serves me rightly it was but a single year ago that every little girl [and a big 'un, here and there] that wasn't a platinum blond was inquiring how to get that way.

Well, just to prove how a feminine mind can change in the course of a platinumized year, look it where the platinum hair rage is today. Just in case you are uninformed, it isn't raging any more. It might look as if it were in certain quarters. But don't you dare the blond one's ire by even whispering in her presence that eight word letter, beginning with p and ending with um.

"Call me anything but a platinum blond," cries Claire Luce, stage and screen star. "Call me a honey blond! Call me names! Call me ter-rible names, but don't call me platinum!" And last read of Jean Harlow, the instigator of platinum heads, she was drafting into service bearded scientists to prove that what looks platinum may be only natural.

Because Claire Luce is a nice girl and a tres chic one and a smart one, we hereby withdraw the platinum charge and appoint her the honey blond, instead. Besides, she has some original ideas about blonds. Her hair is the color not of the golden content of the honey comb, but of the comb itself. Her eyes are a deep, rich blue. Her eyebrows are a bit astonishing in their finely attenuated line. Astonishing in the manner in which they abruptly leave a center fullness to fade away into the thinnest of hair lines.

She is tall, extremely slight and moves with the poise and grace of a prize winning dance pupil. Which she was, I believe—a conclusion you would draw, too, from the charming manner in which she uses her very artistic hands. Miss Luce's hands, by the way, are her pride, and look it. They're not too scarlet-tipped, either.

But about this new blond movement suggested by the honey-haired Claire Luce: the fluffy blond, the fragile looking, protection-inviting specie is due for a fadeout. In her place Miss Luce recommends an athletic looking blond [not a muscled athlete; no, none of that] but a blond who looks as if she could stand on her own.

Now, in order to look her own cabable support, Miss Luce recommends sleeker hair, for one thing, and a coat of tan, for another. Thirdly, she recommends getting away from those insipid pastel shades that formerly swamped a blond from cradle to the grave. A bit more "character" in colors would be welcome. And the tan, if Sol continues the only male who'd rather blister than prefer them, can be courted with one of the oils designed for easy tan and general healthy glow purposes.

New North Side Animal Shelter Has Opening Party

The new home of the North Side Animal shelter at 5352 Broadway was formally opened yesterday. Nearly a hundred homeless cats and dogs took up their abode in kennels, while others found permanent homes with visitors who came to the opening. The shelter is supported by society and club women and is presided over by Dorothy Eagles, who started her animal relief work four years ago. A rummage shop is conducted in connection with the shelter, the proceeds being used to support the homeless animals.

Early Spring Flowers Shown at Garfield Park

Thousands of early spring flowers are on exhibit this month at the February flower show in the Garfield Park conservatory. Early hyacinths, daffodils, and tulips are displayed in the show house, while in the horticultural hall are the new hybrid amaryllis in rose, pink, and scarlet. Among other exhibits are Alpine violets and old fashioned primroses. Many visitors attended the lecture yesterday in the refectory and were given pointers on landscaping.

Tailored Suit First Demand of Springtime

Knitted Sweaters Give Color to Costume.

By Rhea Seeger.

SPRING clothes mean street clothes, and Chicago shops are filled with interesting new things that will perk up the most jaded of souls. Spring in either town or country demands a suit, particularly if it is tailored and of the new rough surfaced woolens that are ribbed or woven in broken diagonals.

The distinctively dressed woman chooses for wear with such suits sweaters in either harmonizing or contrasting colors . . . but not the old fashioned, tightly woven, rather stiff sweaters, but those recently sponsored in Paris, of soft hand crocheted and knitted patterns. The meshes are huge—frankly they resemble some of the kindergarten efforts of our first attempts at knitting. The colors are breathtaking . . . soft dusky pinks and blues, apricot yellows and, one particularly unusual, was a delicate chartreuse green . . . what could be better to wear with a navy blue suit? You can wear these sweaters for every hour of the day, for they are tremendously decorative, with all dark colored suits and hats.

Silk blouses are always smart, always good, but this season don't be afraid to flaunt scarves, bows, and buttons on these blouses, no matter how tailored or severe the suit, and don't forget to wear the scarves outside the collars of your coat.

Coat Foundation Of Every Wardrobe

Every woman knows that the indispensable foundation of every fashion-right wardrobe is a coat . . . so why not start thinking of it early, shop around a bit, plan your frocks to wear with it, select the color that will be a future inspiration for dresses and accessories, and with such a coat purchased you are well on the way to fashion smartness for the spring season. Lots of the newest coats have detachable fur collars . . . one of the most successful models is snugly fitted to the figure and fastens with a long row of large buttons . . . it is really just as chic without the collar, exactly the kind of a coat to wear with a printed frock, later, when the weather turns warm.

The smartest dresses for immediate wear are the new knitted affairs, and those that simulate the hand knitted weaves are surprisingly inexpensive. And again, as in the sweaters, you will find the meshes large and loose. Many one piece styles sponsor the closely woven mesh for the skirt, while the blouse effect is achieved with the large and open mesh.

These dresses are available in stunning new high shades . . . vivid clear greens, rich warm reds, and browns and some very gorgeous color combinations, all of which make for gratifying results for new color contrasts under your winter cloth or fur coats, worn on cold, gray days that are bound to happen, even though spring lingers, with the rest of good things, just around the much discussed corner.

Brims Return in Hats for Spring

It's amusing to say spring hats when one is discussing straw hats . . . especially when capricious femininity insists upon braving a February change of weather in such creations, but nevertheless it is traditional that all women feel infinitely more courageous with a new straw hat when everything and everybody seems in league against them, and we are only being usually inconsistent when we wear straws in winter and velvets and felts when the temperature soars.

We will all like the new models, for brims have returned, to give even the most beautiful features a proper and captivating frame. Brims are not merely brims this time—now they dip and bend and curve with a knowing air that is vastly becoming, far superior to the old stiff and uncompromising, unbendable brims of old. Undoubtedly our masculine admirers have had a word to say about them, for countless males have been annoyingly insistent that nothing is more flattering or more mystifying feminine than a hat with a brim. Of course, you will still wear your hats tilted on your head . . . the angle you achieve is of the greatest importance, for that alone dates your fashion knowledge. Master Parisian designers, themselves, differ as to the correct angle and the amount of the head to cover. Descat decides that no 1932 hat shall cover any part of the back of the head—it shall be tilted forward and to the right—sometimes sharply to the right. Talbot insists that the truly new line is a straight one, with the hat nearly covering both brows . . . and Reboux plunges in for practically all the angles. The thing to do is to decide for yourself . . . wear your hats to suit your own individuality—you can't help but be chic then.

Choose a color that is becoming and then manipulate the model to subtly complement every angle of your face and head . . . judge the result carefully in your mirror, and when you yourself are satisfied you can face the world with charming equanimity, come rain, snow, or, much worse, more harrowing tales of Chinese wars or declining stocks.

Gloves and Handbag Highlight Costume

Your gloves, shoes, and handbag should highlight your costumes. Gauntlet gloves that curve like the shape of the arm are very new and snug and comfortable over your coat sleeves . . . and you can wear trimmed gloves this season . . . discreetly restrained to tiny tucks and revers. Some gauntlet flares are stitched to resemble a plaid design . . . but brevity in gloves is still the soul of chic.

Long and narrow and easy to carry are the newest envelope bags, some elaborated with stitching and others depending on unusual and interesting new flaps and clasp slides for their popularity in the fashionable world. A new squarish envelope bag of Russian leather in all shades of blue is particularly effective with blue suits and ensembles . . . it, too, is embellished with stitchings, in self color or contrasts.

It's a new life and a new season for clothes and accessories . . . now is the time to take your enthusiasm and ideas to town.

Warns Against 'Billboard' Effect in Unusual Dress

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Mae" doesn't put it that way—but the question her letter asks is: "Do men like conspicuous girls? Girls who dress conspicuously, girls who act conspicuously?"

The answer is NO, speaking for men in general! Here and there you may find one who likes billboard company. But they are few and far between. Men like their women's appearance to reflect a certain glory on their success, or on their good taste. But they do not like them loud, either in clothes or actions.

One of the hardest boiled little golddiggers I ever ran across emphasized this very point of conspicuousness as anathema to men. And what she didn't know about men is Cleopatra's business.

"Mae" claims to be different. Men have told her so, time and time again. [Don't laugh, sisters, and say you heard that one before.] "Mae" means different looking. Her eyes are different—unusual as to color and shape. Her figure—well, it has come through a couple of contests victoriously.

She feels she has a right to wear things that are unusual. The gentleman who was destined to come into her life and bring the candor of an escort who would prefer his girl above giggles and startled stares tells her she doesn't know how to dress. That the best dressed girls are girls who run to the conventional in clothes.

"Has he the right to tell me what I should wear and how I should act?" Mae asks. "He seems to think, too, if you raise your voice above a whisper you're trying to attract attention."

Maybe he hasn't the right to tell. Nevertheless, it might be profitable advice to listen to. Conspicuousness in men's eyes is bad form. They may know nothing about the dress details that make a woman conspicuous, but if they are so original as to make him feel uncomfortable, they are bad form in his eyes.

You can be dressed more sumptuously than other girls, but I gather from confidence and observation that to be dressed in the same style as most other women profits more than to try to be too original.

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE

Finds O'Neill Trilogy Long and Slow; Says It Waits Until Third Act for Emotional Fire.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

LONG, long, long—more than five brooding hours of acting. Slow, slow, slow—fourteen dramatic episodes clotted with black omens of dire tragedy. A work that runs to the solemn, set speeches of ancient tragedy; that reads much better than it plays. Occasional outbursts of hysterical emotion to quicken its heavy and monotonous tread. Fresh proof that Eugene O'Neill, its author, writes like a novelist rather than a dramatist, and fascinates his audiences with the literary grace and flow of his vivid, highly imagined style. . . .

These are impressions from the first Chicago performance of the much discussed and highly praised—overpraised, indeed—"Mourning Becomes Electra," given at the Blackstone theater yesterday afternoon and evening.

It struck me that in this trilogy O'Neill has not warmed up into hot emotional fire until he reaches his third play. The first two plays, although containing their bolts of terror, moved with a wooden pace. They seemed burdened with their close relationship to the "Electra" theme of the ancient Greek drama.

His insistence upon the "mask-like" quality of the faces of his central characters, and perhaps the learned and stylized stage direction, weigh heavily upon the action. The characters were more like puppets than humans. But in the last phase, when conscience takes its revenge upon the two leading figures in the grewsome tale, the performance became highly vitalized.

Acting on High Level of Guild's Standards.

The acting represents, to a satisfactory degree, the high level of the Theater Guild's standards, and I feel that this company will not suffer in any marked extent from comparison with the cast that now interprets this work with sweeping success in New York.

Judith Anderson plays the strange heroine who commands the trilogy with the utmost fidelity to O'Neill's conception and stage directions. Walter Abel is admirable as the mentally afflicted brother, and in the final episodes he is the chief thriller of the performance. Florence Reed's study of the mother is colored with the idiosyncrasies of her personal style and gives the character certain affectations which become slightly trying in the longer speeches; but she has moments of fine, reserved power, especially in the breakdown that precedes the murderess' suicide.

Now for a consideration of the work itself:

"Mourning Becomes Electra" is an exploitation in melodrama of the most famous and most sinister assumption of Freudian psychology—the Œdipus complex. In Dr. Freud's dark, sex-haunted underworld of neurotic personalities this is the chief devil—the unconscious bent in the child mind toward incestuous desire.

Eugene O'Neill, running true to his record as a dramatist obsessed with abnormal psychology, has taken this incest theory as the mainspring of a story borrowed from Greek mythology. He has used it as a substitute for the classic conception of Fate in recounting the horrors of a modern House of Atreus.

He has striven to recapture the brooding terrors of ancient tragedy, the clash of harrowed mortal souls with the inscrutable will of the gods, by following a formula out of medical literature that lacks the support of any conclusive body of observed facts. He has written brilliantly in the terms of his formula; and if you choose to accept Freudism and the Œdipus complex as a convincing answer to the mysteries of twisted minds, "Mourning Becomes Electra" must be regarded as a work of high power. The craftsmanship of this searching and copious study of a New England family which parallels that of Agamemnon of Mycenæ [chief of staff in the Trojan war] is superb.

Smothering Deluge of Morbid Sexology.

But if you, like myself, do not choose to swallow Freud as the prophet of a new revelation "Mourning Becomes Electra" will strike you as a monstrous affair. It stands in my view as a smothering, sickening deluge of morbid sexology, written by a gifted man of letters whose genius leads him infallibly to themes of the most flagrant sensationalism.

Many critics have acclaimed "Mourning Becomes Electra" as the greatest drama of the epoch. It is certainly the longest. It is also the most horrible. Through its full length of five hours, it insists upon and wallows in the theme of incestuous lust, ungratified but always smouldering in its Freudian fever—the lust of a daughter for her father, of a son for his mother, and finally of a brother for his sister. I cannot admit that the quality of literary greatness abides in the unrestrained use of his material.

The extreme and to me burdensome length of "Mourning Becomes Electra" as a theatrical performance cannot be charged up to O'Neill, although he is lawless in matters of construction. He wrote this work as a trilogy—a sequence of three plays with continuous action, to be staged on successive nights. The Theater Guild, remembering its success with "Strange Interlude" as a so-called "dinner drama," decided that with some well considered cutting of the text, the three plays could be given at one sitting. Hence this triple header, offered as a palpable "stunt" rather than as rational play going recreation. I make this explanation in order to free O'Neill from the suspicion of a Richard Wagner complex.

"Mourning Becomes Electra" contains fourteen acts, five major characters, two secondary characters, and twelve incidental types, the latter serving as suggestions of the chorus of ancient Greek tragedy. Its story deals with one normal adultery, one murder by poison, one murder by shooting, two suicides by shooting [off stage], two cases of thwarted sex perversion, and one case of personality disintegrating into insanity.

New England Home Is Scene of Action.

The production employs six stage settings, all but one of which represent the New England home of Ezra Mannon, a general who returns from the civil war to meet at the hands of his wife the fate that Agamemnon met at the hands of Clytemnestra, and for the same reason—a lover. The façade of this house, with its porch in the style of the early American Greek revival, is the scene most often used, and the view of its Doric columns runs through the performance to suggest the mood of ancient tragedy.

In the first play, called "Homecoming," the daughter Lavinia — the "Electra" figure who commands the story—discovers her mother's wartime adultery, and byl her hateful, menacing attitude breeds the central crime of the plot—the poisoning of Gen. Mannon, when he returns from the front, by his unfaithful wife. In his death agony, he accuses her, in Lavinia's hearing.

The second play, "The Hunted," deals with Lavinia's lust for revenge. She goads her brother Orin [Orestes in the Greek], who has come back from the war as a case of shell-shock, to the murder of her mother's lover—a ship captain who is her cousin and who has a background in earlier scandals in the House of Mannon. She leads the neurotic youth to the captain's ship, where they hear the adulterous pair discussing their successful poisoning plot, and urges him to a killing by ambush. Then they return home to tell their mother that their vengeance has been completed. She commits suicide at the news.

The third and final play, "The Haunted," represents the "Orestes" phase of the Greek tragedies on the subject. Lavinia and Orin are in the aftermath of their crime, and Orin is living with the furies of a tormented conscience. He does not regret the murder but feels that he has also killed his mother, and the Œdipus complex bites his addled brain sharply.

Lavinia, on the other hand, has come into bloom. Her complex is subject to transference. It had shifted slightly toward the cousin whom she slew, because he resembled her father; and on a voyage to China she is supposed to have flirted with a marine officer and felt pagan yearnings toward a Hawaiian native. Her sexology becomes complicated and fantastic.

She fears that her crazy brother will confess his crime, and drives him to suicide. She endeavors to seduce a swain who has been dangling after her for years, but in her erotic hysteria she calls him by the name of the cousin whom she had slain. So she surrenders to her destiny, stalks inside the gloomy house, orders all the shutters closed, and announces that she will immune herself among the family ghosts for the rest of her life. Mourning becomes Lavinia but she will eventually need a straight jacket.

Early Curtain Bars Evening Attire at Play

The appearance of the audience at the opening of the Theater Guild's production of "Mourning Becomes Electra" last evening at the Blackstone theater was not as festive as it might have been had the time of opening been 8:30, instead of 4:30 o'clock, but it was a large and appreciative audience nevertheless.

There were a few brave men who had gone home and donned their evening clothes in time for the performance and the ladies they were escorting were in evening gowns, but most of those who lived through the tragic two years of the Mannons portrayed in O'Neill's trilogy were in street costume. One of the most attractively gowned women at the theater was pretty little Helen Walton, who was wearing a long sleeved black velvet gown with a black velvet coat lined with ermine, a tiny ermine hat shaped somewhat like a soldier's overseas cap, and a wee ermine muff.

Among others in the audience were Dr. and Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams—they were in evening clothes—the senior and junior Arthur Bissells, all in street clothes, Mrs. Waller Borden, just back from an eastern trip, Mrs. Richardson Dunham, the Stanley Zarings, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Maher, she looking very chic in a brilliant green hat and a brown gown and coat, Miss Mary Rend, Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, Mrs. Francis Stanley Rickcords, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins and Mrs. Watkins' sister, Mrs. William C. Pullman, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Pelouze, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pike, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bentley, the William B. Hales, the Marvin B. Pools, the John T. Piries, and Mrs. Philo A. Otis.

Actors Await Polly Moran in 'Lysistratta'

Dramatic Club will See Hollywood Takeoffs.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 15.—Polly Moran is giving local folks a treat with anticipation of her rôle in "Lizzie Strutters," a burlesque of "Lysistrata," to be given by the Dominoes club, women's dramatic club here. The text contains some rather broad takeoffs on Hollywood characters and additional ones are being concocted by club members.

Hollywood girls know their economy and the first of the year sales finds Billie Dove with a new chinchilla coat, price $20,000, and reasonable at that, we say, trying to wangle enough money out of the family budget to buy flower seeds.

Then there's Daisy Lukas, Paul's wife, with a new mink coat. And Lil Tashman, who, it seems, has gone on a big bust about New York clothes shops and added three fur coats to her several others.

Heather Thatcher, the English actress, has Hollywood boulevard ga ga with her monocle; only female monocle in town. Other night at the Embassy she lost it and snatched Lowell Sherman's, which she wore for the rest of the evening.

At a recent party Phil Baker cracked a telling one about the Warner Brothers' merger with a biscuit company so they could make talking animal crackers. This excited Jack Warner so that he tore up his opera hat.

This is Fifi D'Orsay's idea of the funniest story of 1932: "There was a Scotchman who had a Follies girl friend and he said: 'I'm keeping a close check on you, baby.'"

Exclusive rights to use the name "Madison Square Garden" and to film anything in the line of sports carried on in the New York indoor amphitheater was the commodity for which Charles R. Rogers, independent film producer, paid a goodly sum to the New York Garden corporation after a special trip east. Rogers already has assigned Thompson Burtis, author, to do a story to fit his title, which will be simple "Madison Square Garden." It must be a story with pugilistic highlights, for Rogers already has signed Jim Gleason to be featured, and is angling for Bob Armstrong, Gleason's immortal sparring partner of "Is Zat So" and other hits. Edmond Lowe may also appear in the yarn.

In order not to be outdone putting Chinese war stories into the theaters this spring, M-G-M is rushing a rewrite of the script of "China Seas" to include oriental battle scenes and feature Clark Gable.

Radio Pictures got a jump of several weeks on its rival studios by fixing up the original story, "Roar of the Dragoon" so that filming can begin immediately.

Here's a depression note for the beauty shop and hair dye industry: George Cukor, Paramount director, says: "A good camera man can make a brunette look like a blond merely by the way he takes the shots. All he has to do is place light filters over the lens of his camera." Cukor contends it is unnecessary for brown and black haired girls to dye themselves for that platinum effect—at least for film purposes.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams
(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

Uncertainty is, of course, the one thing that makes life worth living. If we knew exactly what was going to happen to us throughout the entire gamut of our existence, the suicide rate probably would double over night. Contract bridge, like life, has the same uncertain quality. In yesterday's play a problem West made a perfectly natural and proper bid of one. Now in the vast majority of cases West's bid of one would have been helpful to the partnership. And in an equal number of cases his refusal to make a bid of one would have been very hurtful to both himself and his partner. However, in this case the mere fact that West bid at all made the final play of the hand extremely simple for South. This was the hand:

NORTH.
♣—A,9

WEST [dealer].	EAST.
♠—K,3	♠—4
♥—J,6,5	♥—10,8,7,4
♦—K,9,5	♦—J,10,7,6
♣—K,Q,J,10,4	♣—7,6,5,3

SOUTH.
♠—J,10,8,7,6,5
♥—K,2
♣—8,2

West dealt and bid a club. North doubled. East passed and South bid one spade. West passed. North went to three spades. East passed again and South bid in the game with four spades.

West opened the ♣ K, dummy came up with the A, East played the 3 and South the 2. Dummy now plays the ♥ 3 to South's K. South led back the ♠ J. West played a small spade, dummy taking the finesse, played the ♣ and East followed with his singleton 4. South now played the ♠ 5, West was forced up with his K and dummy took with the A. Dummy now played the ♥ A and followed with the ♥ Q, on which South discarded his ♦ 8. On this third round of hearts, West played the J, but to be sure [just why we shall see later] that West had no more hearts, North now led a small heart which South trumped with the ♠ 6. South now led the ♣ 8, West was forced to take with the Q, and to the ninth trick was left in a quandary. If West leads a diamond it comes up of course to South's A-Q, who must take the rest of the tricks. On the other hand, if West leads a club, South will trump in the dummy and discard the ♦ Q from his own hand and take the balance. Either way North and South make their game and two extra tricks—a little slam made but not bid, nor could it have been bid.

It is obvious the moment dummy goes down that West must have practically all the high cards not held by North or South in order to make his original bid. This means that a finesse, which shouldn't be tried anyway, will probably not work in the diamond suit. South's best play, therefore, is to strip his hand as well as West's and then put him in the lead with a club to force either a diamond or a club lead.

♦—K,J,4

WEST.	EAST.
♠—A,5,3	♠—J,8
♥—K,J,3,2	♥—Q,7,5,4
♦—8,6,5	♦—Q,9,7,2
♣—Q,J,2	♣—7,6,5

♠—K,Q,7,6
♣—10,9,8

Bid and play the hand and then compare the result with that printed tomorrow.

Giving the children all the things they need for school is a problem which confronts many families with an income. Here's a father who is trying to do it despite the fact that he has had no employment for a year. Can you help him?

Arden Shore Boys to Be Guests at Lake Forest Homes Tonight

Ten Very Special Supper Parties Will Be Followed by Trip to Movie House.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE will be ten very special supper parties in Lake Forest tonight and we'll wager that never have there been more appreciative guests in the ten houses than the fifty-four boys from Arden Shore who are to be entertained. This is the Lake Forest Arden Shore committee's annual February party for the boys of the camp and after supper the ten hostesses and the fifty-four guests—no doubt, the ten husbands will go along, too—will see the movie, "Ben Hur," at the local theater.

Mrs. William Burry Jr. and Mrs. McPherson Holt are co-chairmen of the social hostess committee and have made arrangements for tonight's party. Each of them will have supper guests and the other eight hostessess will be Mrs. Edward K. Welles, Mrs. Dwight Ingram, Mrs. Donald P. Welles, Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, Mrs. Charles N. Goodwin, Mrs. Evans Spalding, Mrs. Richard Bentley, and Mrs. Hermon D. Smith.

The annual Arden Shore drive for funds starts in May and already the young women in charge are making plans to make this year's drive very successful, for Arden Shore, like every other charitable organization, is greatly in need of funds just now. Mrs. Kingman Douglass, chairman of the Lake Forest committee, and Mr. Douglass left last Friday for a fortnight's motor trip to the southwest. Phoenix is their destination and they expect to make several visits along the way.

Former Muriel McCormick Plays Shaw Role Tonight.

We'd like to be in Palm Beach tonight to see the former Muriel McCormick play the title rôle in George Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan," wouldn't you, Mr. and Mrs. Reader? The Palm Beach Players are putting on this satirical drama for the coming week's offering, and those who saw Miss McCormick last year [she is Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard now] in the religious play, "The Face," predict a great success for her in Shaw's play. She gave up all social engagements last week, our correspondent writes, in order to devote all her time to rehearsals.

Every one in Palm Beach will be at the opening tonight, no doubt, and there will be scores of dinners before the play. Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock were dinner hosts last night for Mr. and Mrs. Volney Foster of Lake Forest, who are visiting the McKinlocks just now, and their other house guests, Mr. and Mrs. George Edgar Vincent of Greenwich, Conn.

Miss Virginia Waller, daughter of the William Wallers Jr., and her guests, Elizabeth Smith and Louise Brewer, who motored to Palm Beach from Chicago, are at the Sea Spray Bath club every day and are having what the girls no doubt term "a whirl" during their stay in Palm Beach. Mrs. Waller and her daughter and niece, Miss Winifred Wheeler, will sail in about three weeks for an Egyptian trip. Our correspondent writes that Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Belden and Mr. Belden Jr. are at The Breakers for a stay of several weeks, and that Mrs. Joseph B. Long, who has an apartment at the Everglades club this season, is giving a large dinner next Sunday in the orange gardens of the club. Apparently entertaining, even in Palm Beach, is not as lavish as it was during the period of inflation, for our correspondent, in describing the charm of dining in the orange gardens, writes: "It is a boon that in these times of depression people can entertain at small expense in these lovely surroundings." Mrs. Long, who has Mrs. Kay Wood as her guest, has invited about fifty to her party Sunday night.

Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick of Chicago has the only villa in Palm Beach furnished in the modern manner, and, of course, every one is most anxious to see it, but it is not quite complete yet, and so Mrs. Chadwick is doing no entertaining until it is finished. Mrs. Jacob Baur will go south to visit Mrs. Chadwick a bit later. Lockwood Pirie and Gilbert Bell of Chicago spent last week-end with Mrs. Franklin P. Smith and Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr., who gave a dinner party Sunday night for their guests.

Woman's Exchange Holds Winter Sales.

I don't know of any one who does more winter traveling than efficient and capable Mrs. Nora K. Crane, who manages the Woman's exchange, for she is in Florida now and next month she will go west to exhibit the exchange's lovely wares at the Arizona and California resorts. And in the summer it is the same, for she travels to all the smart eastern resorts. Today, tomorrow, and Thursday Mrs. William Waller Jr., who motored south last week, will open her Palm Beach house for a sale, and next Tuesday and Wednesday an eastern patron of the exchange, Mrs. James H. Hammond, will give her Miami Beach residence for an exhibit and sale.

On the way back to Chicago to replenish her stock before going west Mrs. Crane will stop at Aiken, S. C., to stage a display at the residence of Mrs. George H. Mead of Dayton, O., who has many of the exchange's smart articles in her Dayton and Aiken houses, we are told. The Phoenix sale will be held at the Arizona-Biltmore on March 10 and 11, and the Pasadena one will be at the Huntington hotel on the 14th and 15th. I just don't know who of the exchange friends are in Phoenix now, but I remember last year that there were several of the board there for the sale, and it was like "old home week" with all the Chicagoans in the place visiting the sunroom where the sale was held.

Mrs. Robert Hunter, the former Gwendolyn Mitchell of Chicago, always is active in helping with the Pasadena sale. From Pasadena Mrs. Crane will go to Los Angeles, but the date and place of the sale there are not set yet. The Misses Clara and Mary Cudahy will open their Santa Barbara residence on March 23 and 24 for a sale, and there will be one in Burlingame before Mrs. Crane returns to Chicago.

Mrs. Harold C. Smith and Miss Anne Byron Smith gave a small dinner last night at their residence at 229 Lake Shore drive for Miss Alice Means of Boston, who is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. William H. Hubbard. After dinner the party went to the current events class that is being held on Monday evenings at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown, 2450 Lake View avenue. About thirty-five of this and last year's debutantes attend the classes, which are conducted by Prof. Clifton Utley.

Friends of Opera to Hear Insull.

Samuel Insull is to address the Friends of Opera at their annual meeting this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Casino, and that insures a large attendance, for the members always are anxious to hear Mr. Insull's remarks about the future of the Civic Opera company. Margery Maxwell will add to the pleasure of the occasion by singing two groups of songs, and after the program tea will be served. Mrs. Arthur Meeker will preside.

The Chicago Woman's club will celebrate its 56th birthday at a tea tomorrow afternoon following the weekly club program at which Rupert Hughes will give a talk entitled "The True George Washington." A luncheon will be given before the program for members who joined the club prior to 1890 and for a group of past presidents, including Mrs. John O'Connor, Mrs. George Bass, Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley, Mrs. Edwin Theodore Johnson, Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, Miss Grace E. Temple, and Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton. Mrs. Harvey Fox, president, will cut a huge birthday cake at the tea.

The Winnetka Garden club, which will meet tomorrow at the residence of Mrs. Rudolph Matz on Sheridan road in Hubbard Woods, is planning to have one major and three minor exhibits in the Garden and Flower show to be held at the Navy Pier April 2 to 9. Mrs. Arch Shaw will do a modern mantel setting, Mrs. Willoughby Walling a low bowl bouquet, Mrs. Robert Gardner a high vase bouquet and Mrs. Richard Walsh a shadow box. At tomorrow's meeting O. G. Shafer of the University of Illinois will talk on "Garden Design."

Travel Plans and Spring Vacations.

The Nelson Thomassons are planning to drive down to their country place, Monte Vista, at Oakland, Md., for their sons' spring vacation. They will leave on March 24 with the two younger boys, Gardiner and Norton, and Nelson, who is at Princeton, will join them at Monte Vista.

Mrs. Malcolm Shroyer, who departed about ten days ago for a winter vacation at Nassau, will return the end of this month.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus Hibbard of 2440 Lake View avenue will leave on Thursday for Tucson, Ariz. After two weeks' stay at the Pepper Tree inn they will be at the Rancho Linda Vista in the Catalina mountains, near Oracle, until mid-April.

Mrs. G. W. Thatcher and Miss Virginia Thatcher of 237 East Delaware place have been at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York for several days.

All-Illinois Art Group Sponsors Two Exhibitions

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Two exhibitions under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts have just opened. Paintings by Florence Ezzell Stevenson are in the Florentine room, Congress hotel, and paintings by Tom Wilder are hanging in the Revell alcove gallery. Both exhibits are worth seeing.

Mrs. Stevenson is versatile in her presentation of flowers and her successful handling of still life is exciting to follow. Now she startles us with a vivid gust of color as in her "Sketch" of scarlet poppies tossing in the wind; again she compels our admiration with a straightforward painting of a cup with its accompanying teapot or of the corner of a piano, dark in color, solid, substantial and yet through its line and pattern distinctly picturesque.

"A Bountiful Harvest" is interesting in composition and color; it stands out among the finest of Mrs. Stevenson's work. Another stunning canvas is the large "Poinsettia," and a lovely, delicate study is the "Dogwood Blossoms." The "Geranium" has a modernistic background which is intriguing and a piling up of color values that fascinates the imagination.

Tom Wilder paints in a manner utterly at variance with the happy loose handling of Mrs. Stevenson. His pictures are landscapes and make a delightful summary of places he has visited. If they are a little tight, even on occasions a little prim, that must be forgiven. When he does forget Wuermer and Von Hofsten [of both of whom we are reminded in certain pictures, though probably the artist is unconscious of having gone to them] and lets himself go as just Tom Wilder, the result is immense. You will get it in "A Verdant Canyon, New Mexico," and in "Salt Marsh, Oregon," as well as in "Meadows and Peaks, Glacier National Park," and "Oregon Coast." This is good painting, sincere, honest and strong.

The two exhibitions will continue to March 10.

Engagement Told

Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Smith of 6101 Sheridan road announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Janet Smith, to Mr. Frank G. Ellerman, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Ellerman of 1418 Thorndale avenue.

Jackets of Fur Are Popular in Paris Fashions

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The short fur jacket for both day and evening has been a staple item of Paris styles all the long winter. It has, perhaps, become a bit too staple for the fancy of ultra smart women. They are taking to the cape, instead.

Capes, whether they be made of fur or cloth are more decorative and less practical than jackets. This is the reason they are dearer to the ladies who can afford to be luxurious without thought of what is useful.

Evening capes of ermine outnumber the jackets of this fur when fashionable society appears in public. These capes are usually short—no more than waist length.

Worth's cape of white ermine, shown in our sketch today, is one of the smartest. It was designed for the Princesse Faucigny-Lucinge and pretends to have sleeves, which is what makes it so chic. The circular cape that covers the shoulders and upper arms has very full, bell shaped cuffs of ermine attached to the border of the cape, as is shown in the sketch. The collar is a standing shawl collar that stands away from the neck.

At the bottom of the sketch is the kind of daytime cape the fashionable Parisienne wears over her plain cloth coat or coat dress. This cape is from Molyneux and is made of black astrakhan fur. It has a small standing collar with tie ends and a collarette like those of the nineties around the shoulders. Below this is a circular cape that extends to the elbows. Among the smart women wearing this cape is Mrs. Cole Porter.

City Club Forum.

At the Forum luncheon of the City club at 1 o'clock today Herbert E. Bradley, explorer, will speak and show his latest African films.

By Their Auto Tags You Shall Know Them

Sidney Gorham Owner of Prized No. 1.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

A pretty afternoon four or five summers ago "New York No. 1" drew up beside "Illinois No. 1" in the parking lot at the Onwentsia clubhouse. Sidney Smith Gorham, coming in from nine holes of golf, was surprised to see that the license tag of the handsome limousine from the Empire state matched that of his own 12 cylinder motor.

"An introduction," mused Mr. Gorham as he walked over to the limousine, "is necessary." Then in his most gracious manner, "May I present automobile No. 1 from the state of Illinois and the owner, Sidney Gorham?"

"Delighted," came the reply from the lady comfortably ensconced in the back. "I am Mrs. Al Smith."

This story, readers, is to introduce you to the man who has held "Illinois No. 1" ever since there were license plates and to give you a few related facts on the subject of automobile tags. A list of the first 500 reads like the social register and the state's official roster in combination. And not a single one of these owners would part with his number for a bag of rubles or the Russian crown jewels [depression considered]. Of course there are a few of the 1,400,000 who contend, "But why a low number? All the cops know us then."

Mr. Gorham earned the privilege of carrying No. 1 on his family car as father of the motor vehicle law, the basis of our present license plate system.

"I first introduced the bill in 1905," Mr. Gorham explained yesterday. "It was passed by the house and senate, but vetoed by Gov. Deneen. Two years later the governor let it become a law without a signature, and James A. Rose, then secretary of state, offered me the first number. A few years later I went back to Springfield and framed the amendment that makes possible reassignment of numbers applied for 30 days before the date of expiration. The legislators laughed and said, 'You want to keep your No. 1,' and I replied, 'You're darned right I do!'"

The story of No. 1 goes even further in the Gorham family, since Sidney Smith Gorham Jr. carries "11,111" on his car and the younger son, Willett, has "1,011,111." Recently Mr. Gorham replaced the four digit number on his personal car with "1,111,101." Amos C. Miller, head of the law firm in which Mr. Gorham is a partner, not to be outdone, applied to the secretary of state for seven "ones." Achilles J. Granata of Springfield would not relinquish his claim on "1,111,111," so Mr. Miller has satisfied himself with the next best offering, "1,111,110."

The governor's car carries license "No. 3," while two other conveyances attached to the executive mansion have "23" and "441" on their license tags. Henry W. Austin, after whom the west side community is named, has owned "No. 2" ever since his legislative days a quarter of a century back, and for almost the same length of time the chauffeur of Mrs. Eva T. Gurley at 1416 North State parkway has driven "No. 8" motor.

Two Springfield residents, Thomas D. Vredenburgh and Cornelius J. Doyle, are the owners of "10" and "100" respectively. When No. 1,000,000 was issued in 1925 Jack Graham "of the million miles" received it for the Chicago Motor club road car. And it is interesting to know that there are always three "1,000,000" plates made since Mr. Graham has one for each of the rear fenders as well as the front. Apropos of the Motor club, President Charles M. Hayes of Winnetka, who is now sojourning in southern climes, drives cars carrying license numbers 29 and 47.

Is there any one who doesn't know that Cartoonist Sidney Smith drives No. 348, immortalized by old Doc Yak and Andy Gump of comic strip fame? The report is that Mr. Smith acquired the number and then adopted it for his comic characters. John T. McCutcheon has a place among the first score with No. 19, and Edward J. Brundage another place with "15." Senator Richard J. Barr of Cherry Hill, Joliet, has "20" and "294" on cars of the same make and the Calvin Fentresses of Hubbard Woods own two motors with "32" and "75" for their tags. Lawrence Y. Sherman has always regretted that he gave up No. 28 to Dr. N. D. Vedder of Carrollton on election to the United States senate.

Although Ira C. Copley of Aurora spends the major part of his time in the west, he keeps three expensive automobiles here, all of them with distinguished numbers, 41, 44 and 92. The Silas Strawns' chauffeur drives a limousine bearing No. 145 and Mr. Strawn's sister, Dr. Julia C. Strawn, has No. 140 for her motor. Mr. Strawn's law partner, John D. Black, owns "342" while Mrs. Black claims even more distinction for her motor of the same make with plate No. 59. Roy O. West, who owns license "350," has given precedence to his son Owen A. West with No. 171.

The automobiles of Melvin A. Traylor may be recognized by licenses 123 and 124 and Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick is in the same class with No. 128.

Bride to Be

MISS HARRIET ELLEN MacNEILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence T. MacNeille of 828 Bluff street, Glencoe, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Harriet Ellen, to David Dunning Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. David N. Brown of Chicago.

Human Soul in Almost Any Time Is Described in "Broken Arcs"

"Broken Arcs," by Erika Zastrow. [Henry Holt.]

"... on earth the broken arcs,

MAY SINCLAIR.

The setting is in Schleswig-Holstein, first under the domination of Denmark and later under the rule of Bismarck. This novel, however, is not concerned with social or political changes and it is in no way dated. "Broken Arcs" is the record of a human soul that could exist in almost any time and any place.

Ready and eager for life, the heroine, Anne-Marie, is frustrated first by the tragedy of her father and later by her lover. Like two forces continually at war are the desires to devote her life unselfishly to others and to love a man, make a home, and have him the all in all of her existence. She is buffeted by chance and the mistakes of her own decisions until finally she discovers the peace and happiness in the search for which she has devoted over thirty years of life.

The second part of the novel describes the life of Christian, a German musician, who in early Chicago meets and loves Emily, a delicate, simple, beautiful child. They marry and go out to the prairies where tragedy, poignant and terrible, descends upon them. The gentle Christian is hurt, so hurt that he no longer wants to live. He is another broken arc.

The romance and tragedy of Christian is perhaps the most fascinating section of the book. The tone of brooding melancholy, of delicate tenderness is beautifully communicated by the author to the reader. The style, on the whole rather undistinguished, attains in this section a softly lyric, almost poetic, quality. Many times the emotionalism of the author becomes sentimentality but on the whole it stays on the right side of that dangerous border line between unreality and reality.

Separate Stories Are Well Handled.

Structurally this section is not integrally one with the first and third sections. It is an attempt at counterpoint and, as in music, only a skilled technician can effect the combination of parallel developments under one thematic intention. Miss Zastrow is not a deft or practiced enough artist to achieve complete success. Nevertheless, as separate stories, the lives of Christian and Anne-Marie are capably and convincingly handled, but the story of Christian holds more continuously the interest of the reader. It is to the point, not too long and simply and lyrically narrated.

Three Books Are Published Today.

These three books are published today:

"Seven Stars," by Andre Malvil [Macmillan], tells the story of a sensitive, selfish man tortured by fear. The bitterness and tragedy that come to him through an unhappy love affair teach him to suffer, pierces his armour of egotism, and results in peace for him. The novel is written in the first person and is reminiscent of Proust.

"The Month of May," by Jane Dashwood [Century], describes 24 hours in the life of a young girl torn between love and loyalty. The setting is in England, in a country house, and the whole novel has a charming English flavor about it. The book has received high praise in England.

In "The Intercessor," by May Sinclair [Macmillan], are gathered five short stories of horror and occult lore. Many of them deal with the psychic and the strange maddening power of human will. One tells of the disastrous effect an Indian mystic's will has on two people. Through his power two artists change places with each other and are deprived of their memory. "The Intercessor" is a gruesome account of a child's ghost. Another story deals with a man with a marvelously beautiful face whose wife died strangely on her wedding night and of his engagement to another girl to whom he appears one night in ghastly horror.

"Jones' Karma" concerns the life of a man who has made three terrible and crucial decisions and who is permitted to relieve those moments. The irony of this story is unforgettable. All these stories are interesting and in their power and evocation of terror and evil reminiscent of Poe. M. D.

Finds Woman's Symphony Has MadeNewGain

Continues Artistic Path with Firm Tread.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra, one of the most interesting adventures in Chicago music since its foundation, is continuing its artistic path with firmer tread than ever before. The fourth concert of the present season was played at the Goodman theater last night with ample proof that the orchestra has staunch supporters and that it is making a constant effort to play in a manner worthy of them.

Conductor Ebba Sundstrom had put together a good program, with the Chausson Symphony as principal number and Bizet's "Patrie" overture, Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker" Suite, and Chabrier's "Espana" for contrast. The orchestra improves. It grows steadily more spirited in interpretation. In fact it went into the symphony last night with a fervor that showed not only good intentions but good training, and in the light of what it did an occasional note of better intention than production counted for little.

Alice Mock, soprano, was the soloist, singing Lia's air from Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" in the first part of the program and "Ah, fors'e lui" in the second. She is the possessor of a lovely, warm, clear voice, also of most of the secrets of how to use it to best advantage.

The St. Olaf Lutheran choir, here only a short time ago, returned to Orchestra hall last night to sing a new program but with the former fine ability and dexterity which is always in evidence when the director, F. Melius Christiansen, is in command. Their Bach singing is an inspiration. The motet for double choir, "Be Not Afraid," was used last night. Crueger's "This Is the Sight That Gladdens" sounded curiously modern, although the composer dates about half a century before Bach. In Kallinikoff's "Agnus Dei" there was a depth in the bass section fit to rival some of the best of the Russian choirs. Director Christiansen had also composed "Celestial Spring," an elaborate work in four sections for this program.

The beautiful woman guards against constipation. She knows this condition can cause headaches, sallow skin, dull eyes, pimples, premature aging.

Protect yourself from constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN furnishes blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much safer than pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases, with every meal—will correct most types of constipation. If your trouble is not relieved in this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal, with milk or cream, or use in cooking. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

The Charming Cheat

By Clara Sharpe Hough

SYNOPSIS.

Ricardo Dane visits New York in search of his aunt, Miss Filomena Stanley, his mother's half sister. Ricardo's mother had recently died and left him heir to the ranch and mountain land in Romeu valley, California, where he had spent most of his life. He intended to find his sole remaining near relative and bring her back to Romeu valley. He had understood this to be his mother's dying wish. His aunt, an actress, had been out of favor with the family.

Ricardo locates a Filomena Stanley, but instead of an aged aunt he finds a beautiful young aunt. She is living in a Bohemian studio with a Follies girl named Frances. Ricardo readily believes this lovely creature, who acknowledges the relationship. His arrival was fortunate for Filomena, who had been out of work for weeks and was in a sad state financially. Ricardo showers her with gifts and moves her into a better apartment. He moves into the same building on another floor. Webster Sutton, a college friend of Ricardo's, visits New York. He and Eunice Greenway, a girl from home, who is studying in New York, are entertained by Ricardo and his aunt. Eunice is a friend of Ricardo's fiancée, Rachel Beatty. She heartily disapproves of Filomena. Web believes his friend is being trimmed, and before he leaves tells him so. Ricardo learns that Web was right when Filomena is called home due to the illness of her father. After another search Ricardo finds his real aunt. She is acting in a Broadway play. Ricardo takes Filomena to the city hall, where they obtain a marriage license. His plan is to have her prepare for the wedding and leave her waiting at the church, but before he can carry it out Rachel arrives in New York with her father, who has been called there on business. Ricardo takes Rachel to call on his real aunt.

COMPLICATIONS.

They climbed the winding old fashioned staircase and entered the room of decided charm and character, where he had sat with his aunt last week. The wide bay window let in a great rectangle of pale late sunshine, striking a glimmer here and there upon brass and pewter among the crowded furnishings. This room was crowded, too. There lacked here the airy spaciousness that marked that almost empty living room of Filomena's. Everything one could want or admire or like was in this one room, and it was with difficulty the visitor maneuvered his way between the antique desks and tables and lowboys, the chairs, the empire sofa, the muffin stands and bookracks, which almost completely filled Aunt Filomena's sitting room.

"Kettle's on," announced Aunt Filomena cheerfully. "What else do you youngsters take at this hour? How about cocktails?" she glanced inquiringly at Rachel.

"Aunt Filomena's a bear at shaking 'em up," said Ricardo.

"Been seeing the sights, I suppose?" she said to Rachel.

"Only a little of Fifth avenue so far," replied the girl. "Tonight we're going to the Follies, and tomorrow Dick's going to show me a lot of things."

"Want some tickets for my play tomorrow?" offered Aunt Filomena. "Did Dick tell you about it?"

"No. That is, yes, I think he did. You have such a cozy little place, Miss Stanley. How many rooms do you have?"

"Just two. A scrap of a bedroom, and this. I like it. It's quiet, though that may surprise you. And it's not far from the theaters. I couldn't live uptown, you see. Or downtown, either. This play of mine now is at the Plymouth. It's a sort of mystery play. Only not a detective play."

"How interesting," murmured Rachel, whose thoughts plainly were not with Miss Stanley's professional activities, "and, Dick, your room is on the next floor, I suppose?"

"Not a chance," said Aunt Filomena. "He lives the other side of the park, where he can put on a lot of swank. I hope you'll enjoy my play."

"Marie Eames plays Miss Marsh," pursued Aunt Filomena, bringing forward three cocktail glasses. "I hope this is mixed to suit your taste, Miss —I forget your other name—Rachel. That's easier anyway, and you won't mind, I'm sure, from Dick's aunt, will you? Here's how, children," she lifted her own glass and took a sip.

"It's very nice," Rachel tasted it a bit doubtfully.

"In the first act," said Aunt Filomena, "I only walk across the stage in the dark. That is, it's almost dark, so that they see my figure quite plainly. Then later when Miss Marsh goes into the conservatory, it looks as though it were I."

"Do you play the piano?" asked Rachel irrelevantly.

Ricardo sat up straight, or as straight as one could who was more or less enveloped in an overstuffed armchair. He looked at Rachel with suspicion that fast crystallized into conviction. He knew what this meant. Damn Web. Damn that prying girl Eunice. He knew now why Rachel had insisted on seeing his aunt.

"No, not in this play," said Aunt Filomena, not to be diverted from her engrossing subject. "Let me fill your glass, Ricardo."

Rachel set her glass down carefully on the edge of the Duncan Phyfe table that crowded against her chair. "I do want to see your piano," she said, crossing the room.

"It's lovely," she rubbed a finger over the age darkened rosewood case of the baby grand in the corner. Its chief use seemed to be that of a resting place to some half hundred photographs, all inscribed with flourishes to Filomena Stanley or dear Filomena.

Rachel lifted the lid and speculatively touched a yellowed key.

"It's a lovely piano," she said admiringly. "You must have had it a long time."

"About fifteen years," said Aunt Filmena. "I don't play much, but it's a nice thing to have, of course. I have had one or two parts where I had to play a bit. Now there was 'Divided by Two.' Do you remember that? I went on the road with that. Played the lead."

Rachel, no longer interested in pianos, dropped the lid back with a tiny bang and went back to her chair, giving Ricardo a look sufficient to have stabbed him then and there.

"O, the tea," exclaimed Aunt Filomena then. "I wondered what that noise was. It's the kettle, of course, boiling like fury. Do you want a cup of tea, Rachel? You don't care much for the cocktail, do you? You wait, I'm going to show you what a good cup of tea is." She busied herself at the tea table, where the brass kettle bubbled over an alcohol burner.

"It's a delicious cocktail," said Rachel. She lifted her glass with decision and drained it at a gulp, setting it down again with a defiant flourish.

Ricardo, resigned, dropped back into the cushioned recesses of the overstuffed chair and lit a cigaret. Whatever was on Rachel's mind there was no use trying to get it off. She herself would attend to that in her own good time and in her own way. She sat up rather straight now, the color rising in her cheeks, due either to the sudden draught of alcohol she has just taken, or to some emotion that stirred her.

She was a damned good looking girl, he reflected, sitting there erect and flushed, spirited and aristocratic from head to toes. Any man might be proud of her. He was proud of her himself, if he did know she was planning to give him the deuce of a ride as soon as she got around to it.

Aunt Filomena had filled delicate cups with steaming tea while she explained in detail the second act of the play.

"You've made it awfully nice for Dick, Miss Stanley," said Rachel, holding her cup firmly in one hand and looking straight at her hostess, "taking him around to the places he hadn't seen and——"

"I've scarcely seen him," said Aunt Filomena candidly. "Of course I got him a seat for my play—two seats," she smiled, "one doesn't give a handsome young man one seat to a play, if he is one's nephew. And that was a pretty little piece you picked up to bring along, Dick."

Rachel sent Ricardo a glance fraught with meaning that any one could have read. It was interpreted quite correctly by Aunt Filomena, who in her turn glanced in some alarm at her nephew. He lounged deeper if possible into the deep chair and blew out a cloud of smoke.

"Aunt Fil," he said gently, "you've forgotten the symphony, haven't you? And our drives in the park. You see, Aunt Fil, I've told Rachel everything about myself, because she—we're engaged, you see."

"You should have told me that sooner," said Aunt Filomena, rather tartly. "Why, Rachel, my dear——" She set her teacup down again and crossed to take a chair beside Rachel. "I don't know much about western young men any more, but I think you've drawn a prize in Dick. Of course he's my sister's boy. I would think so. He's been so nice to me——"

"But I thought you just said——" Rachel looked slightly bewildered.

"Don't worry about what I said. I talk so much and so fast half the time my meaning gets all balled up. I said I'd scarcely seen Dick all this week, and it's true. I haven't. I don't know why you should have thought I meant anything. What could I have meant, anyhow?"

"It seemed odd," Rachel was looking down into her teacup, "it seemed a little odd. I understood you two practically lived together, and then you said you'd scarcely seen him." She frowned into her teacup, seeking an elusive idea that had been with her a moment before. She wasn't exactly dizzy, but her thoughts did seem to get so scattered.

"This week," said that young man unblushing, "this week, Ray. I don't know what in the world you're trying to get at, Ray. I wish you'd say right out what you mean. Of course we've been together every day, up until this week. As it happens, Aunt Fil's been frightfully busy this week. At the theater. You know she has to be at the theater every night ——"

"And two matinées," said Aunt Filomena.

Hotbed Gives Sweet Corn Good Start

BY PAUL POTTER.

Sweet corn is said to be one of the most tender garden crops in Chicagoland, yet some of the veterans have discovered a trick by which they have sweet corn by the time others are beginning to look for a crop of faster growing vegetables, such as radishes, onions, peas, and spinach.

There is no secret to this method of growing early sweet corn. Yet three to four weeks can be gained on those who follow the more sedate gardener's pace. The early corn is obtained by starting out the hills in a hotbed, cold frame, or window space, planting four to five kernels in a flower pot, or perishable fiber container. The latter can be placed right in the soil, where it will disintegrate sufficiently to permit the roots to expand into the garden soil.

The safe planting date after which no more frosts can be expected in the Chicago area is about May 1. So the early hills are started indoors or in a protected place about the first of April. Clay pots or paper pots can be used. The latter seem to be more advisable, as the small corn roots should not be disturbed when transplanting time arrives.

Others who get the "jump" on spring planting and thus reap a garden harvest before their neighbors find that it often pays to gamble on the weather by planting before frost danger has passed. If frosts occur and the new plantings are killed, then the job is done over again. For a succession of sweet corn, gardeners usually plant early, medium, and late varieties at the same time, or delay their second planting for three to four weeks.

Women Tell Falsehoods; Lie Detector Traps Them

Members of the Chicago Woman's club attending a meeting of the home and public welfare departments yesterday were convinced of the truthfulness of the lie detector when Leonard Keeler demonstrated the instrument. The lie detector is used at the Scientific Crime Detection laboratory which is affiliated with Northwestern university. The women purposely told lies which were detected by the instrument. Each had registered an "emotional reaction" on the instrument's graph when telling her lie.

BY MARY MEADE.

Although dried prunes have been primarily thought of and used mostly as a breakfast fruit, there are many other delightful ways of preparing them. It is no longer necessary to soak them over night before using them. The fruit growers have perfected the drying of them to such an extent that we may nibble on prunes as they come from their modern cartons. Or we may wash the bulk variety and soak them for a mere two or three hours—until they absorb sufficient water and become nicely plump. Or again, you may take them, after washing, and steam or cook them without soaking. For the steaming, use the upper part of your double boiler, or a colander, over boiling water. Whatever you do, don't add sugar to plainly cooked prunes. They are naturally sweet, and the sugar so used takes away from their delicacy of flavor.

A luncheon cocktail that is good is made of prunes and orange pulp. For each serving use four steamed prunes, half an orange, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, and a wee touch of sugar. Cut the prunes in quarters, add the orange pulp, lemon juice, and sugar to taste. Serve ice cold in shells of orange skin. Another idea for a party luncheon or tea are the prune bars offered as a dessert at tomorrow's dinner. Here is the recipe for them:

Prune Bars.

1 cup of sugar.

Wash and soak the prunes two or three hours. Dry, and cut up in small pieces. Beat the yolk of the eggs and add the sugar. Beat the whites until stiff and add alternately to the yolk mixture with the sifted dry ingredients [flour, salt, and baking powder]. Add the chopped nuts and prunes. Bake in a greased shallow pan in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for about thirty minutes. Remove from the pan and cut in bars one by three inches. Roll each in powdered sugar and serve.

Yield: About twenty bars.

Prune Snowballs.

Have as many five-inch squares of cheesecloth as you have persons to serve. Spread two or three tablespoons of hot, cooked rice on each square. Place three cooked and pitted prunes in each center. Pick up the corners of each cloth and tie so as to entirely cover the prunes. Dip in boiling water and cook for ten minutes. Remove from the bag and serve immediately with cream or a custard sauce.

GOLDEN GLOVE TRIALS START WITH 56 BATTLES

6 CHANGES MADE IN FOOTBALL'S CONSTITUTION

1931 Fatalities Guide Rules Committee.

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—To safeguard school and college football from the mounting toll of casualties which reached an unprecedented number last season, the national football rules committee today announced the most drastic revisions the game has known in a quarter century.

Chief among six major changes in the playing code for 1932 are regulations which abolish the dangerous flying wedge formation from kickoff, and outlaw the aggressive use of hands on the defense, with severe penalty for violation.

Going further in its sweeping move to root out the sources or causes of girdiron injuries and deaths, the rule makers decided to liberalize the substitution rules, to permit the reëntry of any withdrawn player in any subsequent period; to abolish the flying block or tackle, recently developed by many high powered offensive systems; to make the ball dead when any part of the ball carrier's body touches the ground, except his hands or feet; and to alter the player equipment, with greater safety and protection in view.

Look to Cut Casualty List.

Not since the forward pass was introduced, paving the way for the modern open game, has the girdiron code been given a more severe shaking up.

Hall expressed the conviction that these ills had been properly diagnosed and the remedies applied to accomplish a forward step in reducing the changes of player injuries. Leading coaches and officials collaborated with the committee in framing the changes that apparently cover all factors blamed for the heavy toll in youthful lives.

The committee, although charging exaggeration, did not minimize the sport's dangerous trend nor modify its action. For example, it ruled unhesitatingly against the flying wedge on kickoff, despite conclusive evidence that not a single fatal injury resulted from such mass formations. Dick Sheridan, the Army end who died from injuries in the Yale game, was hurt in tackling the ball-carrier on kickoff.

To Hold 5 Players Back.

Under the new kickoff rule, the ball may be put into play from its customary spot on the 40-yard line by any one of three methods—drop-kick, punt or, as formerly, the place-kick. On the defensive side, at least five men must remain on their own 45-yard line until the ball is kicked. This provides for more strategy on the kickoff, besides preventing a mass formation to protect the ball-carrier, who will nevertheless be given an opportunity to make a fair catch.

"Players on defense are forbidden to strike an opponent on the head, neck, or face with hand, wrist, forearm or elbow," the new regulation provides, adding, "Such players may hereafter use the palms of their hands on the head of an opponent to ward off or push such opponents in order to get at the ball or the player carrying it."

Puts New Burden on Officials.

This apparently will call for some fine arts of discernment by officials, charged with the task of distinguishing between legal and illegal use of hands. The penalty for violation is disqualification of the individual and loss of half the distance to the offending team's goal-line.

Abolition of the flying block or tackle, with a five-yard penalty for violation, extracts something from the defensive but it appears offset by the rule making the ball "dead" at any time the carrier's body touches the ground, excepting his hands and feet. This is aimed at dangerous "piling up," the source of numerous injuries, but it also will cut down the gaining powers of many a back who specializes in making progress under difficulties or in getting loose after a partial knock-down.

Substitute Rule Aids Stars.

Under the new rule affecting substitutions it will be possible for one player to enter and leave the game four times, instead of twice. The withdrawn player can go back in any subsequent period. Thereby one of the causes for keeping a star in the game until he nears the point of exhaustion is removed.

However, the team making a substitution will be charged with a "time out," unless time already has been called for some other reason.

CANZONERI WHIPS LEW MASSEY IN TEN ROUND BOUT

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Tony Canzoneri tonight came back to the arena, where he dropped his junior welterweight championship to Johnny Jadick last month and gained a decision over Lew Massey, Philadelphia scrapper, in 10 rounds.

Canzoneri battled aggressively all the way and was able to coast to victory toward the end. Tony staggered the Philadelphian in the first round and sent him to the canvas with a hard right to the jaw in the second. Massey bounded right back, however, before Referee Tommy Reilly started to count.

How Coaches Regard Grid Rule Changes

Opinions of leadin football coaches throughout the country on the changes made in the football playing code were widely divergent last night. While practically all of them praised the rules committee's obvious intention to eliminate the danger of serious injuries to players, many expressed the opinion that some of the rules changes would heighten that danger instead of lessening it.

Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern university expressed satisfaction with the new rules on equipment of players, substitutions, and restraint of defensive players on the kickoff but objected strenuously to the rule abolishing the "flying block."

"In all my career as a player and coach," Coach Hanley stated, "I have never seen a player injured on an open field block. To me it is one of the fine phases of the game. This new action will tend to curb the running game and will leave no place for the small player. Emphasis will now be placed on the big fellow, who can butt or shove players out of the way.

Hits Dead Ball Rule.

"Such a rule also will serve to embolden the defense into taking more chances. The defensive player will now throw himself into the path of the interferer, since he knows that the latter cannot take him out with a flying block, thus creating a hazard for injury which did not previously exist.

Anderson Raps One Rule.

Coach Heartly Anderson of Notre Dame voiced opposition only to the rule which prohibits defensive players from striking an opponent's head, face or neck with the hand, wrist, forearm, or elbow.

"This rule will put a premium on the larger player with strength in his body and will lessen the value of the small player like Bert Metzger and other small guards who rely on strength of their arms," Anderson said. "The offensive lineman can be taught to duck and feint so that his head comes in contact with the defensive lineman's hands. An end, extending his hands to ward off a blocking interferer, may accidentally hit the blocker's head and be disqualified."

Opinions of other leading coaches follow:

Dr. Marvin A. Stevens, Yale—Of course there always are going to be injuries because football is a high speed sport with a lot of contact. But I think that if the modifications proposed by the rules committee are followed out, both by coaches and officials charged with supervising the game, it will result in a general reduction of serious hurts.

Gil Dobie, Cornell—The changes will make the game somewhat safer. I don't believe that they will interfere with the playing of the game.

Dan McGugin, Vanderbilt—The new regulations as a whole are good and constructive and will tend to make the game safer.

Howard Jones, University of Southern California — I believe the new ruling on substitutions will speed up the game from the spectator's viewpoint. I think the committee did a fine job.

Glenn S. [Pop] Warner, Stanford.—The rule making the ball dead when any part of the ball carrier's body except his hands or feet touch the ground is aimed at "keeing" and "piling up." I think it should be more specific.

William Ingram, University of California—The new rule on using the hands, I believe, would rather increase than eliminate the danger of injuries. I think a defensive end coming into two blockers would have no chance to protect himself unless he threw himself under the play, thus laying himself wide open to injury.

Bob Zuppke, Illinois—It simply means more and better whistle blowing. I like the new kickoff rule. It should get the game off to a nicer start. We are not affected by any of the changes.

PURDUE QUINTET CRUSHES OHIO STATE, 43 TO 26

Parmenter, Fehring and Wooden Lead Attack.

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Purdue's offense functioned like clockwork in the first ten minutes of play here tonight as the Boilermakers piled up a 15 to 4 lead on Ohio, and then coasted to a 43 to 26 decision in a game that strengthened Purdue's hold on second place in the Big Ten race.

ILLINI, 23; GOPHERS, 15

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—For thirty-seven minutes tonight Minnesota failed to make a field goal against Illinois and it looked as if a unique record for a Big Ten game might be set but the Gophers finally connected for three baskets in the last three minutes. Illinois won, 23 to 15, leading all the way.

The Gophers gained most of their points by the free throw route. Robinson was the Minnesota player who broke the field goal ice, batting one in after a follow up and scramble at the net. Cielusak and Anderson were the other Gopher scorers from the field.

HOOSIERS, 33; BADGERS, 21

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Indiana routed Wisconsin, 33 to 21, in a Big Ten basketball battle here tonight. It was the Hoosiers' third victory in eight conference games. Four crimson players led the victory march. Woodrow Weir, who last week advanced from a substitute position to a regular forward berth, headed the scoring quartet, with Hoffar, Suddith, Zeller, and Hodson following suit. Weir scored five field goals. Hoffar, Zeller, and Hodson each made six points and Suddith five.

U. S. CAPTURES SLED CROWN AS OLYMPICS CLOSE

Final Standing

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The final standing of the nations competing in the Olympic winter games, points being awarded on a 10-5-4-2-1 basis, follows:

United States	10	Hungary	7
Norway	27	Rumania	4
Canada	49	Italy	3
Sweden	26	Poland	3
Finland	25	Czecho-Slovakia	1
Austria	15	Belgium	1
Germany	12	Japan	0
France	10	Great Britain	0
Switzerland	9

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The third Olympic winter games ended today as they had started almost a fortnight ago—with an American victory. Holding fast to the remnants of a slight lead he had established in the first two heats yesterday over Henry Homburger's No. 2 United States team, Billy Fiske drove down the Mount Van Hoevenberg run to the Olympic four man bob sleigh championship.

The giant slide was a bit faster today than it had been yesterday when Fiske led the other American team by three and eighteen hundredths of a second, but it was not speedy enough to permit any unusually fast times. To overtake the young Cambridge alumnus, Homburger would have had to equal his own world's record of 1:52 on his last run, but all he could do was 1:54.28 as Fiske triumphed by 2.02 seconds.

Climax Lacks Ceremony.

In sharp contrast to the official closing ceremonies on Saturday, today's climax was a simple one. The bobsleighers clustered at the bottom of the course and Dr. Godfrey Dewey, president of the local organizing committee, presented each of the riders, Fiske, Eddie Eagan, Clifford Gray, and Jay O'Brien, with Olympic diplomas and gold medals.

Then Capt. Werner Zahn of Germany, victim of one of the bobsled crashes, advanced with his arm still in a sling and handed Fiske the huge silver bowl, known as the Martineau challenge cup, emblematic of the world's championship.

America Totals 103 Points.

With the capture of the first two places in the bob run the American total advanced to 103 points, as the United States won the winter Olympics team championship for the first time. Norway stayed in second place with an aggregate of 77, with Canada third with 49.

The crowd today was far below its

New York, Feb. 15.—In the distribution of cheers for persons involved one way or another in the Olympic winter games it would be unfair and unsporting to neglect the hotel keepers, the merchants, and the speakeasy proprietors of Lake Placid, who showed remarkable restraint in the presence of an opportunity to use the gun on the visitors and, on the whole, treated them as customers, not as victims. Even the kidnapers of Lake Placid manifested the spirit of moderation when they named the modest sum of $1,000 as the ransom price of the guest who was stolen from a cottage at night.

The prohibition agents, although their prices are confidential, obviously were reasonable and amenable men. Five of them called to inspect the Cellar A. C. one evening and took the proprietor out for a walk in the night air. Only thirty minutes later the bobbers of all nations were beating the tables with their ale glasses again and singing their stein songs as before.

Inasmuch as there was no advance in the price of ale, which remained at $1 a quart throughout the meeting, it stands to reason that they could not have been excessive in their dealings with the proprietors.

Makes Good Impression.

There is no measuring the value of the good impression which was thus created among the foreign bobbers, who had heard that the Americans were not a law-abiding lot. The proprietor of the Cellar A. C. undoubtedly had an agreement permitting him to conduct his A. C. in return for certain considerations and when these conditions were met he was allowed to continue business at no increase in the cost to his customers.

It was unfortunate that the bobbers alone were allowed to train on ale. It is the constant purpose of the bobber in training to put on fat so that he will ballast his bobsled the better, but the athletes engaged in the other sports must remain as skinny as possible and therefore did not frequent the Cellar A. C.

It was the speed skaters, who are skinny athletes and strict non-ale drinkers, who caused the worst quarrel of the Olympic winter games; but in ten nights in the barroom of the Cellar A. C., with the bobbers of many nations sitting at adjoining tables and sometimes mingling at various tables, there was never any note in the chorus which had the sound of a squawk.

There are very few fat reformers.

Give the Boys a Hand.

Possibly in some future winter, when the country has become snow conscious and the people are turning to the mountains for their pleasure as avidly as they used to turn to Florida and other southern recreation centers, the prices will go up and the customers will have to protect themselves at all times. But, on the record to date, the business men of Lake Placid deserve generous recognition, the more so because so many of them are New England Yankees with a profound reverence for the law of supply and demand.

This year the prices of food, lodging and everything except taxicab transportation were so modest that I find it difficult, now that the games are over, to put together a respectable expense account for the ten days' assignment. There was never any trouble about this in Florida.

Brings Surprise and Pride.

It is with a sense of surprise, not untinged with pride, that the novice in the mountain winter discovers that he can face a blizzard at zero and actually like it, provided he keeps moving. He is then pleased to learn that he is still man enough to keep moving.

Miami and other Florida cities have had trouble enough, some of them retributive troubles, traceable to hotel rates of $15 a day and up, with service furnished by staffs of migratory loafers, and I would not wish to see their resorts entirely superseded by such places as Winnipeg, Hibbing, and Medicine Hat. But the pleasures of the northern winter are being rediscovered this year, despite the untimely blurt of summer which embarrassed Lake Placid for several days. And those who go north to the snow undoubtedly look upon a life of white pants, string orchestras, and little bamboo walking sticks as unworthy and effete. It is the feeling of the chest-beating cold bath addict.

Old Bob Has Its Virtues.

There was an old fashioned farm bob with a deep wagon box filled with hay and a wide team, mounted on red runners, standing for hire on the main street of Lake Placid. There were two fat horses attached, festooned with jingle bells, and the driver was bundled in a great hair coat and wore icicles on his mustache.

"Does that remind you of anything?" she asked.

"Sure," he admitted. "I remember. It was in one of those with the blankets over us that I got up the gumption to give your hand a squeeze. Let us get up a party."

Whether to go south or north in winter, hereafter will be a matter of taste and comparative expense to the people who this year had their first experience or anyway, their first in many years. There will be this in favor of the snow country, however, that the business men among the snow drifts do not charge their guests for their climate, but only for goods and services rendered. I have visited places in Florida where everybody put something on the bill for the sunshine.

EDDIE MINTZ OF DOUGLAS PARK FINDS HIMSELF

BY FRENCH LANE.

He may not be the greatest fighter on the west side. Some other game youngster may knock him over before the Golden Gloves tournament is much older, but Eddie Mintz laughed and cried, jumped up and down, as his smile broke the flow of tears, when he came steaming out from his shower at Ashland Boulevard auditorium last night.

The 2,000 spectators had nearly lifted the roof off the auditorium with cheers for Eddie when he whipped George Russell. And to hear folks applauding him was something new. For Eddie has shifted around for himself on the west side almost from the time he can remember. There was a hard battle here and there, not with boxing gloves, which he won, but there was no applause.

When it came time to enter this year's Golden Gloves tournament, Eddie, who had taken pretty good care of himself in competition, and who is a clean cut boy in every way, thought he must represent something. He had played and fought for a good many years around Douglas Park. So on the official program there ap-

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The boys of the west side, sixteen of whom will battle in the Tournament of Champions, last night started their qualifying battles at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium. For nearly five hours, these ambitious youngsters strove to remain in the trials which will be concluded tonight.

More than 2,000 saw the first night of Golden Gloves boxing in Chicago this year. Fifty-six bouts were staged as 112 boxers from a record entry of 271 reported for ring tests.

The west side meet ends tonight with more than 40 bouts. Sixteen boys, two in each weight, then will remain in the race for Golden Gloves. They will be joined by other Chicago squads as the north side and south side meets are concluded. The combined Chicago squad will meet the teams from 21 cities in the Tournament of Champions, Feb. 29, March 1 2, and 9. Then comes the intercity battle in New York on March 28.

Saga of Courage Resumed.

The opening trials in the fifth annual Golden Gloves tournament sponsored by THE TRIBUNE told the same saga of courage, hardihood and desire of evenly matched lads testing each other's mettle with a pair of padded gloves, which Chicago has learned to appreciate. It was resumption of a story of the ring that never grows old.

Professional boxing is just that. Skill ordinarily is a qualification and courage is another, at least to a degree. But for earnestness of purpose, even if the efforts frequently are misdirected, amateur boxing is supreme. These boys, many of whom never had been under the blazing ring lights before, advanced with flailing gloves determined to win a place in tonight's finals.

Among this group of west side youngsters, from schools, from business and some even gathered from Chicago's unemployment shelters, there are those who will go far in the 1932 tournament.

Crowd Acclaims Fighters.

And if the enthusiasm of last night's crowd is any indication, tonight's attendance will be larger. Amateur boxing must be good if one is content to watch a series of bouts for nearly five hours.

Each boy who reported for his trial last night received a Golden Glove button. These mementoes, of course, are not the incentive which brings out a host of contestants. It is the belief that a place on the intercity team is waiting. And there are 24 places waiting for Chicagoland's best boxers who will defend Chicago's title against New York.

Some of the veterans of Golden Gloves boxing were back on the west side last night. There was George Holden, runner-up for the lightweight crown which Scotty Sylvano won in the final bout last year. Holden was on the Chicago team, defeated his New York opponent, in fact, but these honors were not enough. He wants a Golden Gloves championship and it seems as if he will have the opportunity to continue in the Tournament of Champions.

Holden Wins Two Bouts.

In his first match last night Holden required only two rounds to stop Joe Burzycki of the Twin Card A. C. In the first round the boxers locked in a clinch and fell to the floor, but George got the range in the next round, the referee stopping the bout because Burzycki was taking too much punishment.

In his second fight of the night, Holden won a decision over John Hartwell, although he had a busy second round. Holden's punching power makes opponents a bit fearful of leading. Hartwell made a great fight in the third round and his stamina and courage drew the biggest applause of the night.

If the luck of the draw pits Danny Neenan of Trafton's gymnasium against a top notch lightweight, it may be just too bad for his opponent. Neenan looks as if he might be good for a New York trip. He dropped Irvin Rivard for a knockout in two rounds last night.

Watson Stops Foe.

Earl Watson, the colored 135 pounder who was a member of Chicago's Golden Gloves team in 1930, was back for another try last night. Earl failed to make the grade last year, but he started fast last night with a technical knockout of Peter H. Conley of St. Bernadine Parish, Catholic Youth organization.

Laddie Rozhon of the National Athletic club was a winner in the mid-

And then there was Paul Steger of the Belle Plaine Athletic club who outrushed Ralph Pastorf to win a decision. If Steger hadn't had his mind on a knockout punch he might have done just that, but many of his blows were wild.

Joe Fontana, a member of last year's intercity squad, won his first bout, but caught a tartar in Phil McQuillan, a colored lad from the Denemark Athletic club. For a long time McQuillan has been trying to win a Golden Gloves title, and last night he wouldn't let a squad member stop him. In the second round McQuillan bounced Fontana into the ropes with a stout right hand punch which did much to assure him a margin in the remaining minutes.

And so the battling went on, bout after bout. And tonight the conclusion will be reached and one-third of Chicago's boxing army will have qualified for the Tournament of Champions.

There wasn't any one in the crowd at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium that had ever heard of Eddie Mintz. Eddie could not recognize any of the faces peering up at him.

It was the first time he had ever donned real fighting togs, the first time he ever had a boxing glove slipped over his agile fist, the first time he had ever stood beneath the bright lights where folks were willing to cheer for him if he would fight and if he was game.

If Thurston or the late Houdini had been present they could not have brought about a faster transformation.

All at once Eddie Mintz became a fighter that brought everybody in the audience up with a shout for him. He was a clown one second, a marvelous boxer the next, and a vicious fighter the next instant.

What Chance for Russell?

He can't remember this morning how he did it, but he brought the old Fitzsimmons shift into perfect motion. He doesn't know how or why he did it, but he became a Griffo, stuck his chin out and the old timers in the crowd could almost hear the ghost of Griffo chant out "It me 'ead, George."

How could poor Russell cope with a Fitzsimmons shift and with a kid who unconsciously resorted to Griffo's old tactics and who danced and dodged around as cleverly as Griffo ever did? Well, George Russell couldn't do it. He wound up taking the neatest trimming of all the plucky boxers who were beaten on the west side last night.

This is not to say that Eddie Mintz will become a champion. Probably he will not this year. But it is going to take a clever boy to whip him.

Even if he is beaten Eddie Mintz, who has gone smiling along, has discovered that the world is a place to smile in always. Most of the folks who became hoarse cheering for him last night would like to go along cheering for kids like Eddie through a lifetime. They demonstrated it last night.

RIBAS DEFEATS PETERSON; LEADS BILLIARD MATCH

Charles C. Peterson of St. Louis, defending champion, was beaten by Isidro Ribas, of Spain, European title-holder, in the first block of the second match for the world's fancy shot billiard championship at Mussey's Wabash amphitheater, 113 to 129, last night. Ribas, who trailed by 13 points at the end of the first match in St. Louis last week, now has a three point advantage, leading by 390 to 393. Low score will decide the match.

Ribas was in better stroke than the champion, making 19 of the 34 shots to 15 for Peterson. Under the rules each player is allowed only four trials, a point being counted for each attempt and five if the player misses on all four.

St. Philip C. Y. O. Aces Seek 7th Victory Tonight

The St. Philip Neri Aces, leaders of the Catholic Girls' Basketball league, will seek their seventh consecutive victory when they meet St. Clara in the feature game of tonight's schedule at the Dominican High school gymnasium, 2100 East 72d street. Four other games will be played.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts almost dead?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel—drives out the thick impure blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if it does not end their Piles no matter how stubborn the case?

Survey Reveals Iowa Hunters Sportsmen Also

BY BOB BECKER.

Last fall, when the Illinois game code lost its power to protect hen pheasants from the attacks of hunters, the state was treated to a display of two kinds of shooting. One class of scattergun artists, who care more about killing than sportsmanship and the future of upland game hunting, went out and wiped up on hen pheasants. Some gunners killed large bags of these birds.

Then there was the other and larger class of Illinois sportsmen, who decried this practice and worked hard to get a law on the books that would provide protection for hen pheasants. This group finally won out, as the law was passed to stop the killing of these birds.

But Illinois hasn't a corner on sportsmanship and "gallantry," says a neighbor state, because Iowa tells of a recent survey which shows that sportsmen in that state, although permitted to kill hen pheasants last season, often refused to do it.

This fact has been established as a result of a survey made of the recent Iowa hunting season. The state asked hunters to report on their game bags. After looking over 645 reports it was found that there were 10 cock pheasants taken for every seven hens.

Knowing how many more chances the average hunter gets at hen pheasants than shots at cock pheasants, there wasn't any doubt but what the sportsmen simply passed up chances to drop the former with their guns when opportunities for shooting were offered.

In this day when the question of farmer sportsmen partnerships are being discussed and organized in order to produce more game birds and provide for more hunting, Iowa's report on the question of hunting privileges are interesting.

Facts on this situation also are brought out in the recent hunting survey. It was found, for example, that approximately 5 per cent of Iowa hunters pay farmers for the privilege of hunting on their land, while another 3 per cent compensate the landowners for board and in other ways.

The survey points out that although the percentage of hunters compensating farmers for hunting privileges is comparatively low, it is evidently increasing. The indications are that more farmers will charge for hunting privileges next year than did this last season.

Polish Hockey Team Arrives, Then Arrives

Poland's Olympic hockey team, which plays the Marquette university sextet at the Chicago Stadium tonight, has arrived in Chicago. And when a Polish hockey team arrives, it arrives. Its arrivals are not casual affairs like that of the ordinary hockey team which alights from a train and goes quietly to its destination.

The Polish players, coming here direct from Lake Placid, where they played in the Olympic winter games, were scheduled to arrive yesterday morning to be greeted officially by Greeter Gaw and a reception committee of 1,000 prominent Chicagoans of Polish descent. All of the arrangements had been made to welcome and escort them in style to their hotel.

Make Unofficial Arrival.

It's easy to imagine, then, the consternation of officials in charge of the reception when, on Sunday night, they learned that the team already had arrived—unofficially, of course—and had been taken by a taxicab driver to the Lewis hotel at Milwaukee avenue and Division street. Plans for the reception seemed at the moment to have gone very largely awry.

But, when a Polish hockey team arrives, it arrives. So, the premature and unofficial arrival was kept a secret and to allay the suspicions of any who might have witnessed it, the information was casually passed out that what was believed to have been the Polish hockey team arriving was not a Polish hockey team at all, but merely a Polish hockey team's baggage.

And to make sure that there would be no anti-climax when they did arrive, the squad was bundled into taxicabs and rushed southward to the Englewood station, there to board a New York Central train and arrive in scheduled style at their destination. At 10:55 a. m., the reception committee gathered at the La Salle street station to await the train, and at 10:55 a. m. it swarmed through the train shed. At 11 a. m. the New York Central train arrived. Greeter Gaw gave a final polish to his best hockey team greeting and the 1,000 prominent Polish American citizens lighted their countenances with their best welcoming smiles.

Hurried travelers and red caps dashed from the train into the station in a steady flow. Then they began to trickle and finally the stream dwindled away to a few porters trundling trucks. But no Polish hockey team. Faces of prominent Polish American citizens began to ache from the strain of maintaining broad welcoming smiles. Fidgety business men studied their watches, and finaly decided that something was wrong. A search of the train revealed no Polish hockey team arriving.

Ah! There They Are!

Then from the rear there came a shout and with it, charging in from the taxicab stand, came the Polish hockey team—arriving. The reception committee did an about face and presented their smiles to the station entrance to welcome the triumphant hockey players, who although they had missed the train at Englewood, had arrived, officially.

They were rushed to the Polish consulate and entertained there. Today at noon they will be guests of the Chicago Rotary club at the Hotel Sherman, at a luncheon which will be devoted to the part played by Polish heroes in George Washington's life. Proceeds from tonight's game will go the Olympic games fund.

record proportions of yesterday, when 20,000 saw the first two heats. Those who witnessed the affair came early so that there were almost 10,000 present when the final heats were started. But there was no great increase in the number of spectators later on, so that the initial attendance figures stood for the day.

When his time of 1:44 was announced it was evident that he would never be able to make the final quarter of a mile in eight seconds. Homburger was beaten there and the crowd sensed it. He shot across the finish line in 1:54.28, the fastest clocking of the day, but it was not fast enough to win.

DEMPSEY HERE TODAY TO POLISH UP FOR LEVINSKY

Former Champion Favored to K. O. King Thursday.

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, arrives in Chicago this morning from Flint, Mich., and will workout at the Arcade gym today and tomorrow for his four round no decision bout with King Levinsky at the Chicago Stadium Thursday night. He will indulge only in loosening up exercises before the Levinsky bout.

Although there will be no official decision, there was a number of Dempsey backers last night who were willing to bet real money that the former champion would knock out Levinsky. Dempsey became the favorite at 8 to 5 to win the popular decision.

To Box in Louisville.

Apparently Dempsey thinks he will come through with his contest against Levinsky in good shape as he added another city to his present exhibition tour. An announcement from Louisville yesterday stated that he would box Frankie Wine four rounds there Feb. 23. Jack's manager, Leonard Sacks, already announced that the former Manassa Mauler boxes at Philadelphia Feb. 22, Newark Feb. 25, and Baltimore Feb. 29.

Following his final gymnasium session tomorrow Dempsey will go to a friend's home in the suburbs away from the large crowds which follow him and the attendant excitement until Thursday, when he will appear at the state athletic commission's offices to weigh and be examined.

Levinsky is training as hard for this bout with Dempsey as he has for fights of ten rounds and he is concentrating on a knockout over Jack. The King boxed six rounds yesterday at Trafton's gym, four with Roy Williams and two with Tom Jones. He will work with the same men today.

Jones to Meet Nichols.

The wagering on the Dempsey-Levinsky match was somewhat overshadowed by the betting which took place on the Billy Jones-George Nichols ten round semi-final bout. This contest is a light heavyweight title tournament semi-final combat, Jones is the choice to win but many fight fans believe Nichols' southpaw tactics will cause Billy plenty of trouble.

Nate Lewis, Stadium matchmaker, yesterday signed Santiago Zorilla of Panama to meet Barney Ross, local lightweight, in an eight round bout to complete the supporting card. Another eight round match will match Franta Nekolny, European welterweight champion, and Millio Militti, Omaha, at 148 pounds. Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg, Canada., middleweight, and Jack Moran of Chicago meet in a six round contest, and Charley Young and Marion Matuszak, local heavyweights, clash in the four round opening encounter.

A Man a Minute! Dempsey's Pace for Two Fights

Flint, Mich., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey knocked out a man a minute in a short-lived exhibition here tonight, dropping George Kohler, Chicago, and Pat McLaughlin, Waupaca, Wis., in just a little more than two minutes. The bouts were scheduled for two rounds each.

Kohler lasted just 61 seconds, then went down before a right to the jaw after Dempsey had chased him into a corner.

McLaughlin showed a disposition to trade punches with the former champion and got in two stiff body punches before Dempsey found the range and sent him down for a three count. Then came a series of rights and lefts which brought the exhibition to a close. Dempsey weighed 190 pounds; his adversaries about the same.

CUBS, 23 OF 'EM, REACH CATALINA ISLAND TODAY

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 15.—Things will begin to hum tomorrow afternoon around the Catalina Island training camp of the Cubs. When the noon steamer from the mainland ties up at Avalon, twenty-three athletes of various attainments will slip down the gang plank and the remainder of the day will be devoted to the annual mad clubhouse scramble for uniforms and caps that fit.

Any daylight remaining after this ordeal can be used by the newcoming talent in inspecting the island which the late William Wrigley transformed from a down at the heel community into a bristling, going establishment.

Begin Real Drill Tomorrow.

The actual conditioning process of the talent included in the advance squad will not start until Wednesday morning. For the first day Boss Hornsby will have them out on the grass a bit ahead of schedule because of the yearly influx of still and movie photographers, but thereafter the camp will settle down to a business basis of three hours daily between 11 and 2 o'clock. There will be ten days of this before the regular squad arrives.

The labors of the rookies and the few oldtimers will not be so hot for a few days from the standpoint of interest. It will take a little time to get the lads opened up, after which they will be treated to some batting practice which may cause them some annoyance. It will if old Grover Cleveland Alexander, who is going to do some of the pitching, has himself in the kind of shape promised by him when he started himself on a course of intensive training at the island a couple of months ago.

Pat Malone also will share some of this work if he is ready. He is supposed to have been working on the island for the past few weeks, but being a fellow who changes his mind frequently it is possible that he may have stopped over in Los Angeles for purposes of golfing.

Others to Join Today.

When Los Angeles is reached in the morning, the party will be augmented by Catcher William Campbell, recalled from the Angels; Outfielder Marvin Goudat, purchased from Columbus; Stanley Hack, the supposedly sensational third baseman from Sacramento; Pitcher Leroy Herrmann, another recall from Los Angeles; Harry Taylor, a first baseman from the Seattle club and possibly Mr. Malone.

That will make 21 who are pure Cubs, Manager Hornsby included, but there will be two others in Pitcher Red MacKenzie and Catcher Fred Bergmann, the musically inclined athlete from Northwestern university. The pair belongs to the Los Angeles club, but will not be turned over until later.

THURNBLAD WINS FROM MOORE IN 3 CUSHION MEET

Arthur Thurnblad, former world's titleholder, defeated John Moore, 50 to 31, in 53 innings in the all star three cushion billiard tournament at the Kieckhefer Recreation yesterday. In another game Harry Towle triumphed over Richard Valentine, 50 to 48, in 72 innings. Thurnblad's high run was 8, Moore's 4, Towle's 6, and Valentine's 4.

Two games will be played today. This afternoon Augie Kieckhefer, the present world's titleholder, will oppose Harry Ticks, and in the second, at 6 o'clock, Johnny Riley will play Charles Morin. This will be Kieckhefer's second appearance, the champion having scored a victory over Morin in the opening game.

DOUBLE HEART VICTOR IN MIAMI SPRINT EVENT

Beats Pennate 5 Lengths; Miss Tulsa Third.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Stepping the six furlongs of the St. Valentine claiming handicap in 1:11 3-5, Double Heart scored a popular victory over six rivals in the feature event at Hialeah park today. Pennate finished second, with Miss Tulsa third.

Miss Tulsa showed the most early speed, with Double Heart and Pennate in close attendance. On the lower turn Double Heart disposed of the pacemaker and drew away into a comfortable lead, crossing the finish line five lengths in advance of Pennate. The latter, under an energetic ride by Jockey Workman, was up in the final strides to gain the place from Miss Tulsa. The winner paid $6.

Another for Tokalon.

Prince Tokalon, consistent five year old, scored his third successive victory of the meeting when he romped to an easy triumph over his five rivals in the seven furlong third event. Jockey Elston had the Prince off at the start and quickly opened up a commanding lead, to complete the trip three lengths in front of Rip Van Winkle. The latter enjoyed a length advantage over Waterway, the public choice. The winner paid $7.10 and was timed in 1:24 2-5.

Fretwork Beats Juveniles.

Fretwork, odds on choice over her 16 juvenile rivals, awarded her backers with an easy five-length victory in the three furlong dash, third on the program.

Just a quick, hard rub with the fingertips to get Vitalis deep into the roots. Then a vigorous brushing. In 60 short seconds you have done your looks a favor that will win the approval of all your friends.

No more worrying about the threat of loose dandruff and falling hair. No more dull and unkempt hair. And no more stubborn, upstanding hair!

VALET DIES WITH SECRET OF ROYAL LOVERS' TRAGEDY

Archduke's Old Servant Held Key to Mystery.

VIENNA, Austria, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Another page in the mystery of Rudolph and Marie was written today—but it did not solve the violent end of the heir to the Austrian throne and his beautiful sweetheart, the Baroness Vetsera.

It was on a cold and foggy January morning in 1889 that the lovers met in a hunting box at Mayerling, Austria, and died with the secret of their rendezvous.

Every shred of evidence that has since come to light merely confounded self-appointed Sherlocks and now the death of the archduke's former valet has come, and it is no exception.

His name was Johann Loschek an he died Saturday at the ripe old age of 87, leaving the secret of that rendezvous untold, for the public at least, although he was said to have imparted it to his son, now the mayor of Kleinwolkersdorf, Austria.

Words of Guilt.

Another mystifying clew broke into the pitcure almost simultaneously from Panama City, Panama, where a ship's captain today brought a story of another death in the famous mystery.

Capt. Hawkins, master of the schooner Islena said a secretive doctor, Hans von Tietdjke, died recently at San Andres, Colombia, with the Mayerling mystery and words of guilt on his lips. The doctor died, Capt. Hawkins added, without saying anything more than he had taken the blame for another's crime, some one "higher up" in the Mayerling mystery.

There was evidence here that old Loschek, the valet, knew the secret of the mystery, that is, whether it was suicide, murder and suicide, or two murders. Shortly after the deaths became known a parcel that had been sealed by the valet appeared. In it was a curious onyx ash tray, and on it had been written in mauve ink: "Rather revolver. Not poison. Revolver is more certain." It was the Baroness Vetsera's handwriting.

FALSE CLEWS MARK TRAIL.

Few mysteries of fact or fiction have equaled the deaths of Rudolph and his sweetheart. From the very first false clews marred the trail. The royal family at first merely announced he had committed suicide in his hunting box.

Later it became generally known that Marie died of a gunshot wound by his side. The exact manner of the archduke's death was never fullly revealed. There were stories of suicide; then murder and political intrigue, some of which linked the archduke's name with a coup to seize his father's throne.

Another car, immediately behind Prochaska's, and driven by Roy Maxon, 35 North Central avenue, also ran over her. Miss Haas was taken to the county hospital where she died. Mrs. Coombs was drowned early yesterday when an automobile in which she was riding with James Smith, a Chicago Heights policeman, ran off the road into Glenwood creek. The two occupants of the car were thrown out and Mrs. Coombs' body was later found submerged in two feet of water.

The continuance was caused by Policeman Smith's inability to testify. He is in the St. James hospital with minor injuries. He and Mrs. Coombs had been to a roadhouse before the accident, it was revealed. Mrs. Coombs' husband lives in Stapp Lake, Colo., where he runs a summer resort.

INSULL HOPEFUL AS HE EXPLAINS LARGE LOSSES

BY O. A. MATHER.

Samuel Insull, Chicago public utility magnate, faced the most critical audience of his career yesterday. Before two meetings of 1,500 stockholders of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and the Corporation Securities Company of Chicago, Mr. Insull was called on to explain how these two big investment companies have incurred a depreciation of around $333,000,000 in their assets as the result of investments in the Insull group of companies.

SAMUEL INSULL.

At both meetings, which filled the Chicago Civic theater, Mr. Insull frankly confessed that the judgment of himself and other officers of the two investment companies was at fault, judged by subsequent events. By inference, he also confessed that his own fortune, which a few years ago was rated one of the largest in the United States, has shrunk. However, he reaffirmed his belief in future prosperity and a recovery in security prices. And so what appeared to be a critical crowd was turned into a sympathetic gathering that applauded their gray haired chairman as the meetings ended.

Calls Judgment Poor.

"I exercised and my associates exercised exactly the same judgment in purchasing stocks for our companies as all you stockholders exercised in purchasing Insull stocks," Mr. Insull reminded. "In the light of today, that judgment was very poor. I did as people all over the world did at the same time; I did the best I could, according to my knowledge and ability. I had no knowledge that we were in for a world crisis that would sweep values throughout the world and rock things to their foundation. That is my answer to those who criticize me for paying $300 a share for Commonwealth Edison stock.

In Same Boat.

"As stockholders, you have suffered greatly. But in proportion I have suffered just as much myself. With the exception of common stock dividends received by me and my family, which we needed to sell, the Insull family is in possession of just as much stock of these two organizations as it was on the day they were formed. We are in the same boat that you are in. I have done the very best I know how and I have done it honestly. There is not a person here who suffers as much in pocket and in reputation as I do. But I hope to carry the thing through to a final successful conclusion.

"As to general business conditions and the effect on our line of business, last year was the hardest in all my business experience, and I have been at work now more than half a century. But I am still an optimist as far as the United States is concerned. I have firm belief that when people get over their panicky fear, when the hoarding of money ends, as it will and always has, and with some help from congress, then there will be a turn in affairs.

Hope for Improvement.

"When the general sentiment changes, when people feel better, I think we will see general improvement. I do not believe we can see any tremendous boom in affairs the world over until a great many serious international problems are settled.

"We have a country of great wealth, great natural resources, and if the people of this country will take a hitch in their belts and have courage, that is all that is needed to carry them through to success. And if the country as a whole is carried through to success, there is no question about our being carried along with it."

Holds Market Prices Unjustified.

Mr. Insull pointed out that earnings of the Insull operating companies held up very well last year; also that utility companies have weathered depression better than either industrial or railroad companies.

"The only really bad thing about our great operating companies is that the prices at which their stocks sell in the market, like those of a great many other securities not only in this country but the world over, bear no relation whatever to the intrinsic value of the securities," he asserted. "When we find the same general shrinkage in market prices of utility stocks, the earnings of which are affected relatively slightly by depression, is just about as great as in other forms of industrial investments which are very severely affected, you can come only to the conclusion that market prices are sympathetic and have no relation to intrinsic value."

Asserts Red Tape Blocks Rail Success

BY SCRUTATOR.

The railroads, as shown the other day in this column, would be in a position to help themselves if they were given a freer rein.

When congress began to wrap the red tape of regulation around the carriers they were rich and strong. They enjoyed a monopoly of transportation. The only competition was between two or more lines serving the same territory. The automobile hadn't arrived and streams were undeveloped. The shipper had no alternative. Practically all traffic moved on rails.

During the last generation, and particularly since the war, the situation has changed radically. Competition is no longer between the carriers, but between the railroads on the one hand and the trucks, buses, private motor cars and boats on the other.

The roads are no longer rich and strong. Expanding bureaucratic regulation has not only devitalized the railroads, but has been a boomerang to the shippers and the public. The interstate commerce commission set out to protect the public against high rates. It has given the nation the highest rates in history and at the same time has broken the railroads.

Several Things to Do.

There are several things that the commission can do to help the railroads get back their lost traffic.

First, it should abandon absurd distinctions on quantity shipments. The commission will not let the railroads quote a lower rate on trainload shipments than on single carloads.

This is a "distinction without a difference," for lower rates are permitted on carload shipments than on less than carload shipments. The line of demarcation is purely arbitrary with the commission. As a matter of fact, the size of cars has been increased so much that the present car now hauls an old fashioned trainload.

If giving the man who ships a carload a lower rate than the man who ships a crate is not unjust discrimination, then there would be no unjust discrimination in quoting a still lower rate to the man who ships several carloads.

That is simply good business. The railroads need more volume to improve their load factors. No one charges discrimination because bananas are cheaper by the bunch than by the dozen or because they are still cheaper if bought by the carload.

Question of Rates.

Second, there is no reason why the carriers should not be allowed to quote a lower rate to the man who makes regular shipments than it quotes to the man who makes an occasional shipment. Freight is not an important item to the individual shipping a radio from Chicago to New Orleans once in a lifetime. But a few cents more on the freight bill may cause the company making regular shipments to New Orleans to stop selling in New Orleans, look for a cheaper means of transportation, or establish a new assembling plant.

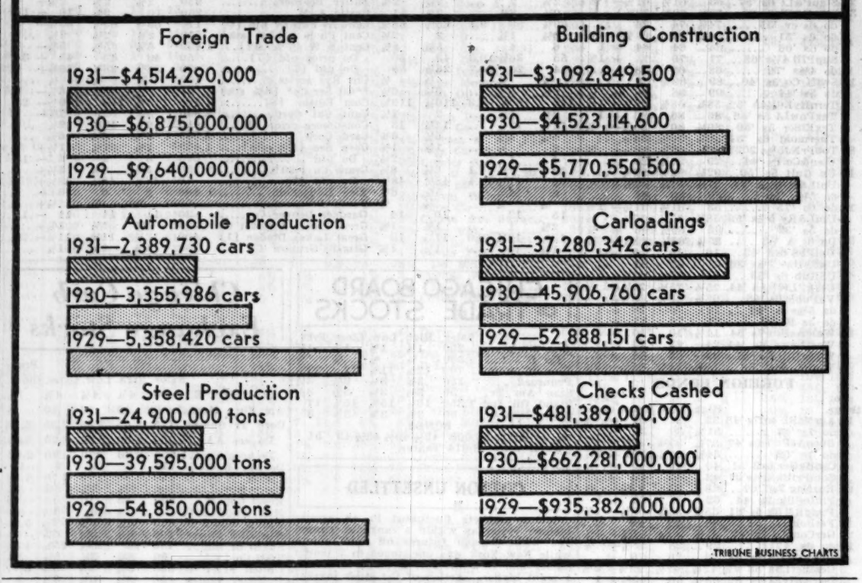
The steady customer is the fellow on whose business the railroad prospers most. He provides regularity of demand and keeps the equipment moving smoothly.

Third, the commission can and should grant more relief in administering section four of the transportation act. This section provides that the charge for a shorter haul shall not exceed the charge for a longer haul, the one being included within the other; in other words, that the rate from Chicago to Reno shall not exceed the rate from Chicago to San Francisco. The commission is empowered under the act to make exceptions.

For every three cars coming loaded from the Pacific coast, two are hauled back empty. The intercoastal boats carry the freight westward, because the railroads are not permitted to make competitive rates to the coast without lowering rates to all intermediate points. To date political expediency has balked efforts to gain this needed form of relief.

The carriers should be permitted to load up these westbound empties. They have to go back anyway and they might as well be loaded and produce some revenue.

American Business for Three Years Compared



THREE RELATED COPPER FIRMS OMIT DIVIDENDS

Kennecott, Others Act to Conserve Cash.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—Three affiliated copper companies omitted dividends today. They were the Kennecott Copper company, the Utah Copper company and the Nevada Consolidated Copper company. The last previous payment of Utah Copper company was $1 a share, Kennecott paid 25 cents a share and Nevada Consolidated 10 cents a share.

The Kennecott Copper company is the parent organization. It owns 98⅛ per cent of the capital stock of the Utah Copper company. The Utah in turn owns 45½ per cent of the Nevada Consolidated Copper company, which gives it working control of that organization.

The Utah Copper company is one of the largest low-cost copper units. It has a record of large dividend payments. In 1929 it paid its stockholders $16 regular and $4 extra a share, or $20 a share altogether. The Kennecott Copper company paid $5 a share in 1929 and $3.75 a share in 1930, while last year it paid $1.50 a share. The Nevada Consolidated Copper company paid $3 a share in 1929 and $1.62½ in 1930, while last year it disbursed 80 cents a share.

Du Pont Pays Regular.

Doubts concerning dividend action of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., were set at rest today when directors declared the regular quarterly payment of $1 on common stock, payable March 15 to stock of record Feb. 26.

There was considerable uncertainty in market circles regarding the payment, caused by the recent action of General Motors' directors in reducing that corporation's quarterly payments to 50 cents, compared with 75 cents previously. The Du Pont company holds a substantial interest in General Motors, and the subsequent loss in income to Du Pont has been estimated at about 22½ cents a common share per quarter.

Take No Action.

Directors of the International Nickel Company of Canada took no action today on the common dividend. Three months ago 5 cents was paid.

The United States Playing Card company declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents, placing the stock on a $2 basis, against $2.50 previously. Western Continental Utilities, Inc., omitted the quarterly dividend of 32½ cents, on one-fortieth of a share of Class A on the Class A stock due at this time.

Stix, Baer & Fuller company declared a quarterly dividend of 12½ cents on the common stock, placing the stock on a 50 cent annual basis against $1 previously.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—The interstate commerce commission today announced its aproval of an immediate loan of $1,500,000 from the government's new Reconstruction Finance corporation, to the Missouri Pacific railroad, out of a total of $23,250,000 applied for. It outlined simultaneously the reasons for its sanction of a $7,173,800 loan to the Wabash railway, granted by the corporation on Saturday.

The principal reason cited by the commission in support of its action on the Wabash proposal was that "the transportation needs of the country require that the Wabash be continued in efficient operation."

The $23,250,000 requested by the Missouri Pacific was represented as covering the needs of the carrier during 1932. The amount of $1,500,000 was given as the sum required to enable the road to meet obligations which matured on Feb. 1, 1932, on which date, interest on bonds and equipment trust certificates aggregating $2,388,545 became due. The applicant had on hand less than $1,100,000 in cash available for part payment on interest matured and on maturing equipment trust certificates amounting to $153,000, leaving $1,500,000 to be obtained from other sources.

SILVER PRICES ADVANCE; EQUAL BEST 1932 LEVEL

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Silver prices approximated the best levels of 1932 in the New York market today, as speculators bid for the metal on the theory that stocks in Shanghai were being sharply reduced by withdrawals from the banks by depositors, and war expenses incurred by the Chinese government.

Silver for immediate delivery in New York rose ¼ of a cent an ounce to 30⅝ cents, duplicating the 1932 high established Jan. 2. More recently it sold as low as 29¼. In 1931 it ranged from 25¾ to 37¼.

Trading in futures in the National Metal exchange was the most active since Dec. 18, with a turnover of 2,500,000 ounces. Advances ranged from .11 to .90 of one cent an ounce. March sold at 31 cents, and January reached 33.45 cents. Closing prices were off a little from the top.

$40,000,000 GOLD TO BE SHIPPED OVERSEAS TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—Unusually large gold shipments to France, with consignments of smaller amount to other countries, together amounting to around $40,000,000, are scheduled to be made upon two fast transatlantic ocean liners sailing tomorrow. The Ile de France and the Berengaria are scheduled to take about $12,000,000 each of French earmarked gold. This virtually completes the shipment of $125,000,000 of gold, which it was announced from Paris early in January would be withdrawn from earmark for that purpose.

There is no indication that more metal from the same source will not be shipped, for while gold has been taken from earmark and shipped, more gold has been earmarked for French and other Central bank accounts at the local reserve bank.

GIANNINI WINS BACK CONTROL OF HIS COMPANY

Transamerica Corp. Battle Ends.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 15. — A. P. Giannini of San Francisco, whose meteoric rise to power in the financial world reads like a story by Horatio Alger, won his fight to regain control of the $300,000,000 Transamerica corporation which he founded, at the annual stockholders' meeting of the corporation here today.

A. P. GIANNINI.

Mr. Giannini's victory, after six months' battle for proxies, was overwhelming. He produced proxies for 15,371,578 shares of the corporation's 24,453,900 outstanding common shares, compared to 9,000,000 shares produced by the faction of stockholders and officers led by Elisha Walker of New York, chairman of the board of directors, who sought to retain control of the corporation.

Proxies from Nearly 200,000.

The shares of stock produced by Mr. Giannini were represented by proxies from nearly 200,000 of the corporation's 250,000 stockholders, the majority of whom live on the Pacific coast.

Former Federal Judge Hugh M. Morris of Wilmington, counsel for Mr. Giannini, was chairman of the meeting. Mr. Walker did not attend the meeting, remaining in his rooms at the Du Pont-Biltmore hotel.

After he was informed that the board of directors nominated by friends of Mr. Giannini were elected without opposition, Mr. Walker said that he "as Transamerica's largest stockholder wished the new management every possible success."

Immediately after election of Mr. Giannini's board a motion was adopted that the new board meet a few minutes later in the offices of Mr. Morris in the Du Pont building for the election of officers.

Mr. Giannini was elected chairman of the board of directors to succeed Mr. Walker, and John M. Grant of San Francisco, manager of the international department of the corporation, was named president to succeed James A. Bacagalupi of San Francisco, who was associated with the Walker faction.

Serves Without Salary.

Mr. Giannini announced that he would serve as chairman of the board without any salary, although Mr. Walker, while chairman, received

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15. — Tradition proved too strong for the young "bull wonder" stock market today. Profit taking by traders who were lucky enough to get in on some of the earlier stages of the upswing and fresh selling by confirmed bears, dead sure it could not last, brought about the inevitable reaction and the final gong found prices off from 1 to 4 points from the peaks they attained in Saturday's sensational trading.

Volume fell off smartly, too. This, however, was accepted by veteran observers as a good sign, evidencing as it did that many who had bought stocks at higher ratings were in no hurry to dump them at the first cry of "woof, woof." It has been a matter of common agreement that the rally of Thursday and Saturday was going too fast to last and that a slowing up of the pace would be highly welcome to leaders of the bull element even though it took a sharp setback to bring it about.

"Amateur" Bears Suffer.

Another thing: Those who make a business of keeping closely in touch with the market's shifting sands say that last week's skyrocketing markets were staged very largely at the expense of "amateur" bears, an element which usually loses no time in covering at the first sign of trouble. Demand from this quarter has now been surfeited, evidently, but the big bears, it is contended, have stood pat on their short positions, almost to a man. Indeed, it is reported that some of them have shown their scorn of the recovery by increasing their commitments on the side of the decline.

This has served to keep the market fundamentally healthy, it is reasoned, preserving a technical position that will justify further constructive effort when the list has gone through the customary process of "organizing" its new advanced position.

Late in Starting.

To the surprise of the fence watchers, today's "corrective" reaction was rather tardy in getting under way. Opening sales were higher in some parts—due to belated short covering, no doubt—and most of the leaders showed slight change from their previous closings. The big bun-

The Company has covenanted to deposit sufficient cash with the Corporate Trustee each month, beginning March 1, 1932, for purchase or redemption of $42,000 principal amount of these bonds, and these deposits are calculated to retire the entire issue by maturity.

Three other strong features of this issue

Wide territory—The Company and its subsidiaries own and operate properties which supply electricity or gas or both in over 200 communities in Kansas, including Topeka and Atchison.

Stable earnings—On the basis outlined in the circular net earnings for the twelve months ended November 30, 1931 were greater than in the same periods in 1930 and 1929 and were over 2.8 times interest charges on all the funded debt of the Company and subsidiaries.

Well secured—The bonds are to be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a first mortgage on important properties owned by the Company and are to be further secured as is fully explained in our circular.

CHICAGO STOCK LOSSES ARE CUT DOWN AT CLOSE

Trading Interest Centers in Insull Shares.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The reaction which swept over the markets early yesterday carried prices of Chicago stocks off from the higher quotations reached at the close last week, but before the day was out moderate recovery set in and shares closed with only moderate net losses.

Speculative interest centered in the Insull securities as La Salle street mulled over the 1931 reports of the two investment trusts, Corporation Securities company and Insull Utility Investments. Although previously discounted, the formal report of the staggering losses these companies sustained in the value of their holdings was reflected by the ticker.

Equities Are Erased.

Insull Utility common and preferred were sharply lower in recognition of the fact that the equities of these issues have been completely erased by the terrific decline in security prices of the bear market. The intangible value of the issues rests in the balance of power which the trust together with Corporation Securities holds in the important Insull operating companies and the opportunity to benefit from a general upturn in prices.

The report also showed that at the close of the year the Insull Utility Investments debentures had an asset value of approximately $470 for each $1,000 note. Yesterday's price of 21¼ for the debentures reflects the further shrinkage since the end of the year and the uncertainty over the future trend of securities prices. The decline of 6¼ in the market price on yesterday's transaction indicated that the actual figures on the asset value were below general expectations. The turnover in the issue was heavy, with debentures of a par value of $231,000 changing hands.

Show Little Change.

As the prices of Corporation Securities shares had previously reached minimum levels there was little fluctuation yesterday. All things considered, the position of the stockholders of this trust is not regarded as favorably as is that of Insull Utility.

Shares of the operating companies, Commonwealth Edison and Public Service, were lower, but were in line with the general market recession.

Quotations on other types of stocks receded moderately, but actual net declines were kept within a narrow limit. U. S. Gypsum common was an exception moving ahead slightly on the strength of the 1931 earnings report showing that dividend requirements were covered by a safe margin.

Another Trust Reports.

Little interest was shown in Utility and Industrial corporation shares as the preliminary income estimate was made public. The results reported conformed with expectations. An investment trust, the firm encountered the same conditions as similar concerns. The company's portfolio at the close of the year had a market value of $15,653,482 as compared with a total cost of $36,608,129.

Net income for the year after charges including realized loss on the sale of securities amounted to $1,413,963. This was equivalent to 39 cents a share on the no par common stock. In the preceding year the company earned net of $1,585,445 or 54 cents a share.

SELLING ARISES TO SEND WHEAT PRICES LOWER

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The failure of the stock market show the strength expected and a lack of aggressive outside buying of wheat futures yesterday caused a number of the local professionals who were free buyers late last week to take profits. Sufficient pressure was put on the market to carry prices off around 1¾c from Saturday's finish, and the close was within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of ¾@1¼c. March finished at 57c; May at 60c, and July at 60⅞@61c.

There was not the snap to the buying of wheat which had been in evidence the two previous sessions. The reduction of 922,000 bu in the net open interest on Saturday as compared with Thursday suggested to some observers that the upturn had been due in part to short covering, which weakened the technical position and left the market in a position to be readily influenced by profit taking.

Sentiment Less Bullish.

Liverpool wheat showed independent strength and closed 1⅛@1⅝c per bu higher, with May at 59⅞c, the latter being only ⅝c under Chicago at the time, the smallest difference in weeks, and compared with 4⅜c under recently. According to cables there were liberal purchases of Argentine wheat over the week-end, which was reflected in a slower demand for Manitobas. The seaboard reported sales in all positions at 400,000 to 500,000 bu from both coasts, but claimed there was a better inquiry for hard winter. Winnipeg was off 1⅜@1¼c for the day, with May at 65⅝c in Canadian funds, the latter being somewhat stronger at 12⅝ per cent discount. Buenos Aires was strong early, but reacted and closed ⅝@⅞c lower, with March at 45⅛c.

Discuss Dying Grain.

The idea that the 175,000,000 bu of farm board wheat be denatured, so as to render it uninviting for human consumption although still available for live stock feed, was received with mixed emotions by the trade. Some operators were decidedly skeptical that it would work out. John R. Mauff, former secretary of the Board of Trade, however, said in Germany it had been found that staining 20 per cent of rye with an aniline dye made it impossible to mill the grain and at the same time it was nonpoisonous.

Whether the proposal to denature the government holdings of wheat has received serious consideration by Washington authorities is not known, although it is claimed the idea had been presented to Secretary of Agriculture Hyde.

The proposition received enthusiastic support in some quarters and was the subject of a special summary by George Saunders with J. S. Bache & Co. The latter said in part "Let the government destroy its wheat stocks as a liability, or denature them as human food, and the whole world, I think, would jump for the long side of this cheap wheat. Argentina's corn crop is tremendously short and Europe, alone, should welcome government wheat as stock feed."

Comment By Blum.

Herbert J. Blum, whose operations in the corn market several years ago attracted world-wide attention, said it should be an easy matter to lift wheat to a dollar a bushel.

"To meet the economic crisis effectively," said Blum, "we need the help of the government and its agencies, and I have reason to believe we will receive full coöperation from them for constructive operations in wheat. I do not believe in this hour of need a government agency will put any obstables in the way of advancing the price of grain to a just one.

"Everything done by the present administration and congress will convince any reasonable person beyond a doubt that $100,000,000 worth of government wheat, or 175,000,000 bushels, will not stand in the way of lifting a commodity on which the stability of nations and civilization depends."

A weakened technical position was disclosed in corn and, with scattered selling, prices declined and closed ⅝@⅞c lower. March was 36¾@36⅞c May, 40¼c, and July, 42⅝@42¾c at the last.

Oats eased with corn, with the active futures closing ⅛@⅛c lower. May closed at 25½@25⅝c, and July, 25½c. Rye was off 1@1⅛c with wheat. May finished at 46⅛@46⅜c, and July, 47½c.

SHORTS, MARGIN TRADING BLAMED FOR TRADE CRISIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Short selling and margin trading were held responsible for "all the major crises that have occurred since 1929" by Jackson Martindell, economist of the New York investment house of Carter, Martindell & Co. In testimony today before the house judiciary committee.

In support of legislation to prohibit short selling practices, Mr. Martindell declared the margin business conducted by brokers was the root of the trouble and makes the "vicious aspects of short selling possible."

"Brokers should not be allowed to lend securities that belong to customers, but what is more important, they should not be permitted to lend money on securities," Mr. Martindell declared. "They should not be permitted to do a margin business, which not only usurps a commercial banking function but makes the vicious aspects of short selling possible.

"It is the brokers who lend stocks to short sellers, and they practically always lend stocks that are held on margin by clients. No commercial bank of reputable character would think of lending its customers' stock collateral. The fact that all reputable banks take this attitude should be proof enough as to the ethics of the thing."

Abbreviated supplies boosted the market for all classes of live stock yesterday. Combined receipts of cattle, hogs, and sheep at the 20 leading markets at 285,000 were smallest of the year for Monday and 100,000 head, or 25 per cent under a week ago. Evidently last week's price slashing has further curtailed the movement.

The hog market showed more life directly after the opening of trading, though it was far from a runaway affair, and at times showed an easier trend. Both the extreme top and general average price at $4.15 and $3.85 showed 5c advance.

Closing rounds were comparatively strong when larger houses came into the buying and the accumulation of poorer grades was reduced to 6,000. Quality of hogs yesterday was poorest of the season for Monday, and more "tail end" shipments of last spring's pig crop were included in receipts. Arrivals at Chicago were estimated early at 60,000 and later at 55,000, against 75,716 the previous Monday. The total at the 11 points was second smallest for Monday since last October.

Hog Futures Unchanged.

No changes were made in the offers and bids in hog futures yesterday. July contracts were offered at $6.50 and bid $5.00, while May hogs could be bought at $5.50, or sold at $4.75. March mediums were offered at $5.00 and bid $4.25.

Strength in the cattle market was not as widespread as in some other divisions of the live stock trade, and soon after specialties had been disposed of the trade dragged slowly toward a weaker finish, and some loss was cited in closing sales. Best grades ruled strong to 25c higher, going into eastern buyers' hands during the early rounds, but large local houses refused to follow at the pace set by order buyers.

Long fed yearlings averaging 1,020 lbs. went to Swift for eastern trade at $8.75, the extreme top of the market. Few others were eligible to more than $7.75, and the rank and file of plain to good grades sold at $5.00@7.25, some at the inside figure carrying a good layer of flesh.

Lambs Reach $6.85.

The smallest Monday sheep receipts since last July surprised traders, who had expected a larger movement from nearby feed lots. Activity featured the trade and gains of 25@50c were scored soon after the start. City butchers bought at $6.85 and packers paid $6.75 for about 3,500 head, taking medium to good grades at $5.75@6.25.

Competition of packing houses has caused country buyers to limit their orders for shearing stock, and few of these kinds are available below $6.00. One shipment of yeshy kinds went to a country buyer at $5.85, intended for a short feed. It was the highest price paid for feeding stock in recent months.

The only sales reported were about 67,000 bags of Porto Rican for February shipment at 3 cents, all to an outport refiner. Approximate sales were 35,100 tons. Prices follow:
